programs that are unique to the judicial district that redirect individuals with low-level criminal behavior with a behavioral health condition to community resources and treatment rather than continued criminal justice involvement (program). Interested stakeholders must include law enforcement, jail officials, district attorneys, public defenders, judges, pretrial service providers when available, and local community mental and behavioral health providers within the judicial district.

The chief judges shall convene stakeholder meetings to design and develop programs, contract with local community behavioral health providers to assist in accomplishing the goals of the programs, and administer the programs after implementation.

Each program must include a standardized, evidence-based screening tool to be used by jail personnel to preliminarily identify individuals in custody who might be eligible for redirection through the program. Each program must identify existing programs and resources available for individuals with behavioral health conditions. After the prescreening, designated jail personnel shall refer individuals who might potentially be eligible for the program to a redirection specialist in the judicial district who shall, within 48 hours after arrest, evaluate the individual for eligibility based on established criteria. Upon completion of the evaluation, the redirection specialist shall notify the court and all other required parties, as determined by the program, of the evaluation results and the redirection specialist's recommendation for redirection.

Information collected from or about the individual during either the prescreening or evaluation must be kept confidential as required by law.

The court shall make a determination about redirecting an individual into the community behavioral health system. If the court orders the individual into redirection and behavioral health treatment, the criminal charges against the individual must be dismissed. Each judicial district shall establish procedures and agreements concerning how to track such individual's progress.

Local community behavioral health providers are responsible for complying with any reporting and communication requirements of the program as established by the stakeholders.

The state court administrator is responsible for overall program administration, including ensuring that, on or before January 1, 2019, each judicial district implements its own unique program.
