TESTIFIER(S): Anne E. Lopez, Attorney General, or Kaena N. Keao, Deputy Attorney General

Chair Takayama and Members of the Committee:

The Department of the Attorney General (Department) has the following comments on this bill.

The purpose of this bill is to repeal certain non-medical exemptions from immunization requirements for school entrance.

For purposes of clarity and administrability, we recommend replacing the wording "that the requirements are not in accordance with the religious tenets of an established church of which the person is a member or adherent" (page 11, lines 13-15) with "that immunization conflicts with the person's bona fide religious tenets and practices."

Thank you for the opportunity to provide comments.

Bill Title: HB 1118 RELATING TO NON-MEDICAL EXEMPTIONS TO IMMUNIZATION REQUIREMENTS.

Purpose of Bill: Repeals the non-medical exemption from immunization requirements.

Department's Position:

The Hawaii State Department of Education (Department) respectfully provides comments on HB 1118, which proposes to repeal non-medical exemptions to immunization requirements in Hawaii.

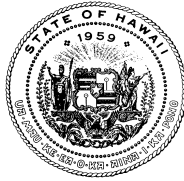

The Department defers to the Department of Health on matters of public health and safety. However, eliminating religious exemptions may inadvertently limit some students' ability to attend school, creating disparities in educational opportunities and hindering the Department's mission to provide inclusive and comprehensive education for all students. Families who object to vaccinations for religious reasons may be unable or unwilling to comply with the new mandate, resulting in their children not accessing public education. This could disproportionately affect certain communities with deeply held religious beliefs, cultural practices, or historical mistrust of the medical community, further exacerbating barriers to education.

The provision on page 4, lines 3-7, which ensures that students qualifying for an Individualized Education Program under federal and state law are not prohibited from accessing special education services, is appreciated. While students with disabilities are entitled to accommodations under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, any exemptions must be applied equitably to avoid disparity between students with and without disabilities who receive education at school. Striving for fairness in this context supports the Department's commitment to providing equal educational opportunities for all students.

The Department remains committed to promoting inclusive policies that ensure all students have access to quality education. We appreciate the opportunity to provide comments and look forward to continued collaboration to support the diverse needs of students in Hawaii.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide testimony on this measure.

Testimony in SUPPORT of H.B. 1118
RELATING TO NON-MEDICAL EXEMPTIONS TO IMMUNIZATION REQUIREMENTS

REPRESENTATIVE GREGG TAKAYAMA, CHAIR
COMMITTEE ON HEALTH

Friday, February 7, 2025, 8:45AM, Room Number: 329

- 1 Fiscal Implications: Elimination of non-medical exemptions to school entry and attendance
- 2 requirements would serve to improve immunization rates; thereby increasing community-wide
- 3 protection from vaccine-preventable diseases and ultimately reducing costs related to medical
- 4 care and treatment, potential hospitalization, reduced work days or loss of employment due to
- 5 illness or child-care needs, and Departmental outbreak investigation and response activities.
- 6 Department Position: The Department strongly supports this measure and offers comments.
- 7 During the 2023-24 school year, Hawaii's overall non-medical exemption rate grew to 5.3% with
- 8 55 of 382 schools reporting non-medical exemption rates exceeding 10% of their student
- 9 populations. Decreasing immunization coverage due to rising rates of exemptions which have
- 10 no medical basis increases the risk for vaccine-preventable disease outbreaks that can be
- 11 potentially fatal to children who attend school. This is especially concerning for students with
- 12 medical conditions who are unable to be immunized and who must rely on their vaccinated
- 13 peers to prevent the introduction of vaccine preventable diseases in their schools. Maintaining
- 14 the highest level of safety for Hawaii's keiki is crucial. Elimination of non-medical exemptions
- 15 would provide a significant level of protection for all keiki attending schools in Hawaii.
- 16 Thank you for the opportunity to testify on this measure.

Dear Representative Takayama and Committee Members:

SUBJECT: HB1118 Relating to Non-Medical Exemptions to Immunization Requirements

The Hawai'i State Council on Developmental Disabilities SUPPORTS HB1118 which repeals the non-medical exemption from immunization requirements.

This legislation is critical for maintaining high immunization rates and ensuring herd immunity, a vital protective measure for individuals with developmental disabilities who may be medically unable to receive vaccines. Herd immunity is essential for safeguarding those who cannot be vaccinated due to medical conditions such as immunodeficiency disorders, complex health needs, or treatments that weaken the immune system. For individuals with developmental disabilities, many of whom rely on specialized healthcare and support services, exposure to vaccine-preventable diseases can lead to severe, even fatal, health complications. Maintaining a high community vaccination rate is the most effective way to prevent outbreaks and protect our most vulnerable residents.

The increasing trend of non-medical exemptions, as cited in the bill, is eroding this critical layer of protection. In the 2023-2024 school year, non-medical exemptions more than doubled compared to previous years, weakening the herd immunity that individuals with developmental disabilities depend on to safely participate in schools, workplaces, and community settings. Without strong immunization coverage, we risk outbreaks that disproportionately harm those least able to fight infections.

Thank you for the opportunity to submit testimony in support of HB1118.

Dear Chair Takayama and Members of the Committee:

Thank you for this opportunity to provide testimony in OPPOSITION of HB 1118, Relating to Non-Medical Exemptions to Immunization Requirements. My testimony is submitted in my individual capacity as a member of the Kauai County Council and the Public Safety & Human Services Committee Chair of the Kauai County Council.

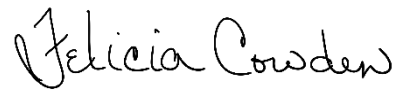

HB 1118 is of broad concern to a number of parents in Kauai County as it infringes on personal freedoms, parental rights, and religious liberties. Medical decisions, including vaccination, should remain a matter of personal choice, guided by informed consent. Eliminating non-medical exemptions would force individuals to undergo medical procedures against their deeply held religious beliefs or personal convictions. This is a concerning overreach of government authority.

In my personal experience, I had a child admittedly injured by the diphtheria, tetanus, and pertussis (DTaP) shot, as was evident in the doctor's office. Another child showed symptoms of attention-deficit/hyperactivity disorder (ADHD) and Dyslexia in early childhood, without necessarily a clear tie-in to his vaccinations obtained up to kindergarten. I chose to homeschool my sons for middle school and sent them to private high school to avoid the vaccine risk. No parent should have to choose between their child's safety and education. My older son fortunately grew out of his ADHD, and my children have been healthy as only having half of their vaccine schedule. Everyone should have this freedom.

Submitted in STRONG OPPOSITION by Jamie Detwiler, Hawaiian Islands Republican Women

HB1118 is a direct violation of our rights found in the U.S. Constitution and the Hawaii State Constitution.

U.S. Constitution

Our first amendment protection of religious liberty cannot be subjugated by state law. Americans have the right to refuse any order, medicine, or procedure that violates their religious beliefs as well as anything that is immoral or unethical according to their well-informed conscience. As a retired health care professional and a consumer of health care, we are entitled to Informed Consent and have the right to refuse any medical intervention including immunizations in any circumstances.

Hawaii State Constitution

Article I. FREEDOM OF RELIGION, SPEECH, PRESS, ASSEMBLY AND PETITION

Section 4. No law shall be enacted respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances

HB1118 proposes:

1. to ELIMINATE this section from current HRS Law, SECTION 2. Section 302A-1156, Hawaii Revised Statutes: "If any parent, custodian, guardian, or any other person in loco parentis of a child objects to immunization in writing on the grounds that the immunization conflicts with that person's bona fide religious tenets and practices. Upon showing the appropriate school, official satisfactory evidence of the exemption, no certificate or other evidence of immunization shall be required for entry into school.
2. to ADD: The department of health pursuant to chapter 91 may adopt rules that it deems necessary for public health and safety. (This gives the Department of Health authority over parent's medical decisions for their children)
3. to ADD: no objection (from parent/guardian) shall be recognized when, in the opinion of the director of health, there is danger of an epidemic from any communicable disease." (This gives all power to the Director of Health)

Please preserve our constitutional right of freedom of religious liberty and our God-given inalienable rights.

May I respectfully remind you that our actions today will impact future generations to come. Please vote NO on HB1118. Thank you for the opportunity to testify.

Respectfully submitted,
Jamie Detwiler, Hawaiian Islands Republican Women

Comments:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB 1118, which seeks to eliminate non-medical exemptions for vaccinations in Hawaii as a condition for enrollment in school, daycare, or higher education.

No product that has DEATH as a possible side-effect should be indirectly being mandated.

Where there is risk there should be choice!

Passing this bill will not encourage families who don't vaccinate to comply. Instead they will homeschool or leave the state.

This bill aims to achieve "herd immunity" and protect immunocompromised students, but fails to acknowledge that most vaccines do NOT prevent infection or transmission (just like the Covid jabs, does anyone remember?). And in case you believe it does protect, why are you afraid of the unvaccinated? How are they a threat?

There are numerous pertussis outbreaks in schools with 100% vaccinated populations. The vaccinated can be asymptomatic carriers and make them MORE dangerous to the immunocompromised than those that are not vaccinated who would show symptoms. And live-virus vaccines can shed, and thus spread the vaccine-derived version of the disease.

Our current exemptions laws already have provisions for the unvaccinated to stay home during an outbreak.

Furthermore, what about all the adults, like teacher, staff, and (grand)parents who have NOT received all those shots students are required to get? I actually had all of the typical childhood diseases and still have immunity. But those who received for example an MMR shot as a child, need another one as an adult, because their efficacy wanes. Most adults don't know this and they are then unprotected.

Selected quotes from Physicians for Informed Consent about the immunocompromised:

“The vaccination status of other schoolchildren does not pose a significant risk to immunocompromised schoolchildren for the following reasons:

- Some vaccines cannot prevent the spread of the bacteria or viruses they target.
- Immune globulin (plasma containing antibodies) is available for immunocompromised children exposed to certain infectious diseases.
- Some infectious diseases rarely cause complications in immunocompromised schoolchildren.
- Not all infectious diseases are contagious.
- Some infectious diseases are not spread in schools

Immunocompromised schoolchildren have the option to receive all the vaccines licensed for children in the United States, except for the live virus vaccines (such as vaccines targeting measles, mumps, rubella, or varicella infections).

Although vaccination often results in protective levels of antibodies in immunocompromised children, clinical vaccine safety trials typically exclude immunocompromised subjects.

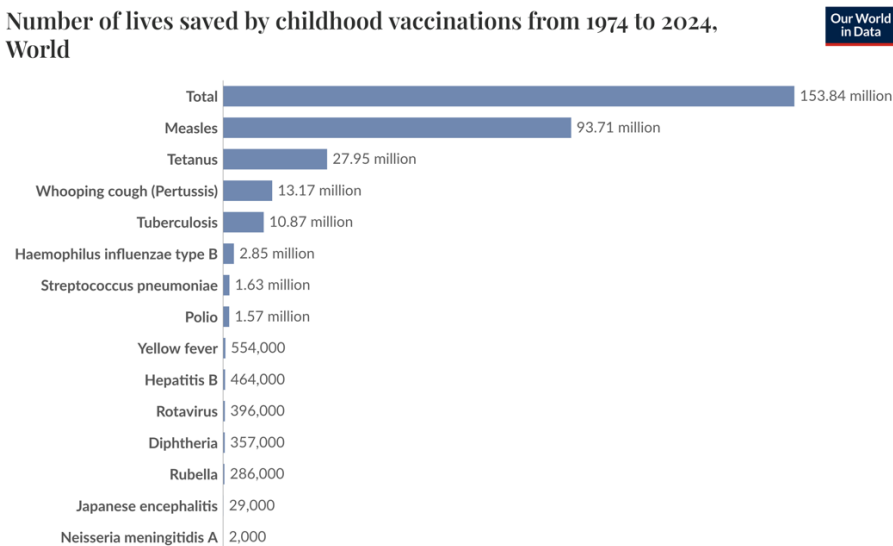

In addition, vaccines have not been evaluated for their potential to cause cancer, genetic mutations or impaired fertility in the general or immunocompromised population. Due to these limitations, it is not known whether the benefit of vaccinating an immunocompromised child outweighs the risk of vaccine injury to that child.”

Aloha Chair Takayama, Vice Chair Keohokapu-Lee Loy, and Committee Members,

The American Academy of Pediatrics, Hawai'i Chapter, which represents over 200 pediatricians in Hawai'i, thanks you for allowing us to share why we believe HB 1118 would benefit the children and families of Hawai'i.

Despite a great deal of disinformation circulating on the internet about the safety and efficacy of vaccines, advances in vaccine science and distribution of vaccines around the world have saved millions of lives, including many right here in Hawai'i. Numerous well-designed and peer-reviewed studies have shown that vaccines are safe and effective and that there is no connection between vaccines and autism. As the graphic below shows, vaccines are a public health triumph responsible for saving over 150 million children's lives across the globe in the past 50 years.

Data source: Shattock et al. (2024). Contribution of vaccination to improved survival and health: modelling 50 years of the Expanded Programme on Immunization
OurWorldinData.org/vaccination | CC BY

Every pediatrician in our organization has witnessed the devastating shock and grief experienced by parents who truly believed they were doing the best thing for their child by declining vaccines when their child is hospitalized with – or dies from – a vaccine preventable disease. One of us will never forget the previously healthy teenager, the only child of a single mother, who died of the flu despite receiving excellent care in the Pediatric ICU. Others will remember the infant with whooping cough gasping for breath and turning blue, the toddler with complications from measles, or the teenager who suffered preventable lifelong disability from H. flu meningitis that he contracted when he was in preschool.

There are legitimate medical reasons that certain children cannot receive some or all of their immunizations according to schedule. These include certain cancers, having received immune globulin as therapy for Kawasaki Disease, and many others. These children have a right to be protected, as much as possible, by herd immunity when they themselves cannot be vaccinated or do not have an immune system able to respond properly to the vaccine. However, with the alarming rise in non-medical exemptions that we have observed recently in Hawai'i, vaccine coverage no longer meets the threshold to provide herd immunity across the entire population. Furthermore, there are certain areas in Hawai'i where vaccination coverage is critically low for crucial vaccines like MMR (measles, mumps, and rubella). Measles, in particular, is exceptionally contagious and transmitted by the airborne route. Up to 90% of unvaccinated people exposed to measles will contract the disease, and 1 out of every 300 children hospitalized with measles will not survive. It is essential to repeal the non-medical exemption to vaccination requirements for school entry in order to regain herd immunity against diseases that many of today's parents have never – precisely because vaccines are so effective – seen with their own eyes.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide testimony on this important bill. We strongly urge you to support this legislation.

As an Registered Nurse working as as Infection Preventionist with a background in Pediatric Critical Care, I strongly support HB 1118, which would repeal the non-medical exemption from immunization requirements. Vaccines are one of the safest, most effective, and most economical interventions to keep children healthy. Over recent years, we have observed with dismay that increasing numbers of parents are seeking non-medical vaccine exemptions for their children. As a result, Hawai'i is now below threshold for herd immunity for several devastating diseases, including measles, which is extremely contagious and can have serious complications. Repealing the non-medical vaccine exemption would benefit all children in Hawai'i, ensuring that keiki are protected from unnecessary suffering and potentially lifelong disability or death.

Comments:

I most strongly oppose HB1118.

Parental rights, the welfare of students and faculty, and the Hawaii Department of Education's (HIDOE) ability to retain qualified teachers are all negatively impacted by this bill.

Parents are reconsidering vaccination for themselves and for their child or children as they become more aware of the risks and adverse consequences of vaccines. We must honor the parent's decision to get vaccinated or not. If this bill is enacted, who will take the responsibility when students are physically or mentally harmed by forced immunization? HIDOE administrators will probably find it more difficult to replace highly skilled instructors who have returned to work under the religious exemption as a result of this vaccination requirement.

As a retired government employee of 31 years, I am aware that adults are ultimately in charge of their family's health and care. Furthermore, the disclosure of health information is protected under the HIPA Act. The Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996(HIPAA) protects individuals from disclosing their health history. It “ ... aimed to alter the transfer of healthcare information, stipulated the guidelines by which personally identifiable information maintained by the healthcare and healthcare insurance industries should be protected from fraud and theft, and addressed some limitations on health insurance coverage generally prohibits healthcare providers and businesses called covered entities from disclosing protected information to anyone other than a patient and the patient's authorized representatives without their consent. The bill does not restrict patients from receiving information about themselves (with limited exceptions). Furthermore, it does not prohibit patients from voluntarily sharing their health information however they choose, nor does it require confidentiality where a patient discloses medical information to family members, friends or other individuals not employees of a covered entity.”

Parents' rights to safeguard their children must be respected, regardless of whether they decide to vaccinate themselves and their family.

Pushing HB1118 will affect not only the students but also faculty. Today, many schools are still experiencing difficulty to find qualified teachers and staff to fill vacancies. If the religious exemption to return to work is no longer honored, this decision will further impact many schools who are already struggling to keep the most competent faculty.

The physical and mental health of our children of this generation and the next generation depend on your decision to do the right thing.

Vote no on HB1118 and any other similar bill.

Written Testimony of Christian Science Committee on Publication for Hawaii

Concerning HB 1118 (RELATING TO NON-MEDICAL EXEMPTIONS TO IMMUNIZATION REQUIREMENTS)

Chair Takayama, Vice Chair Keohokapu-Lee Loy, and members of the House Committee on Health:

As designated representatives of Christian Science, please accept this written testimony concerning HB 1118 relating to the religious exception from vaccination requirements. I first want to express appreciation on behalf of our church’s members for the thoughtful and ongoing consideration you have given to Hawaii’s vaccination policy, including the acknowledgment of students’ religious accommodation from vaccination for the 2024-25 school year. Our members are following this issue with interest in the continuation of a religious accommodation in law, while also deeply caring about public health. We acknowledge that it can be challenging when the religious beliefs and practices of a minority may not be understood or embraced by the majority, or when these beliefs and practices must be balanced with other valued interests of society. Yet, we believe religious freedom in our society is highly important and can be accommodated without endangering public health.

Some religions, like Christian Science, have religious beliefs and practices that do not align with compulsory vaccination laws. While our church itself may not take a formal “for” or “against” policy stance on the vaccination issue because not every individual Christian Scientist approaches the issue in exactly the same way, we can speak to why a Christian Scientist generally appreciates the availability of religious accommodation from vaccination requirements and offer the following explanation for the House Committee on Health's consideration.

A Christian Scientist's use of the religious exemption

Christian Science is a religious practice, a way of life, and a system of healing that draws upon an understanding of spiritual truths illustrated throughout the Bible and the teachings of Christ Jesus. Its teachings include how one can reliably look to God and spiritual means alone to meet life's needs, including health care needs, as well as the importance of being moral and law-abiding. It is important to note that health care decisions for Christian Scientists, including those relating to contagion and vaccination, are not dictated by the Christian Science church or its theology. Rather, such decisions are motivated by each individual's experience with their practice of Christian Science, and with a deep care for public health, obedience to health laws and regard for the safety of others. When it comes to contagion, this religious practice is both preventative and curative. And while we don't claim to be perfect in our practice, many Christian Scientists have found it to be a very practical and reliable method of addressing contagious disease.

Protection and healing from contagion

To understand why a Christian Scientist would want to claim a religious exemption, one need look no further than periodicals published by the Christian Science church dating back to its inception in the late 1800s through the present day, which include accounts of protection and healing through the practice of Christian Science, many of which involve issues of contagion and have been medically verified. A common thread through these healings is the willingness to work with health authorities and take precautions to ensure they are not endangering others through their practice. The healing experiences of Hawaii citizens are well-represented in these publications, and provide just a representative glimpse of the many more unpublished accounts of prevention and healing that members have experienced in their lives.

For example, a mother testified how the overnight healing of her child from a severe case of measles through prayer alone convinced her husband, who was not a Christian Scientist, of the reliability of this method of care.

Another woman testified about a quick healing from a debilitating sore throat, fatigue, and weakness, which her school infirmary diagnosed as mononucleosis and strep throat. When the school infirmary cleared her to return to school after only a few days, rather than the weeks and possibly months that were predicted, the dean of students called her to the office and asked "How did you do that?"

A man who was diagnosed as having minimal natural bodily resistance to certain types of harmful bacteria and resultant infections, testified of his progressive deterioration of health from youth. Upon contracting meningitis, he was placed under medical care and increasing doses of antibiotic treatment. But he soon developed allergic reactions to the drug treatment and his doctors, running out of medical answers, advised his parents to "prepare for the worst." It was at that lowest moment that a friend shared how they had been healed of a severe condition of asthma through prayer in Christian Science. Willing to try anything, the man turned to Christian Science himself and was soon permanently free from all symptoms of illness and weakness.

For those relying on Christian Science for healing and prevention, the protection, healing and regeneration that comes through the practice of Christian Science has been deeply meaningful and effective. It involves a whole-hearted communion with a loving God, reaching beyond faith, positive thinking, or mind over matter.

Are there ways to prevent misuse of the religious exemption?

Yes! While many who claim a religious exemption based on sincere religious beliefs are doing so legitimately, we recognize that there are those who use the religious exemption to avoid vaccination requirements for non-religious reasons. But we've seen narrowly-tailored ways to address those concerns without completely eliminating the religious exemption, including implementation of consistent and effective procedures to verify the sincerity of one's religious belief, and even restricting availability of the exemption when a particular health threat is declared. It may take more than is currently being done to address the concerns, but there are ways to do so without unnecessarily curtailing the exercise of religious beliefs.

In sum, we hope tailored solutions will be given serious consideration in lieu of simply terminating the religious exemption as proposed in HB 1118. We would be happy to talk with you further to serve as a resource or answer any questions as the Committee considers the above-referenced legislation.

Sincerely,

Daniel Spencer

I strongly oppose HB1118!!!! This is government overreach and tyrannical!! Josh Green and the Politicians clearly have not done their research of the negative outcomes of those that have been injured for life and those that have died because of such vaccines. Leave the KEIKI of Hawaii alone and start focusing on Maui fire victims, plant more fruit trees throughout the islands, stop the purchase of foreign entities buying up the land/property, stop or minimize LOCAL FAMILIES from leaving the island because of the high cost of living, stop continuing to use the tax dollars on the longest rail project, fix the horrible roads, etc. Focus on prospering the state of Hawaii and its PEOPLE instead of attacking the youth via clinical trials of these vaccines which are NOT NECESSARY and NOT EFFECTIVE.

National Vaccine Information Center

Statement of OPPOSITION for HB 1118

Removing Religious Exemption for School Vaccine Mandates

Presented to the House Health Committee for Public Hearing on 2/7/2025 at 8:45 am

By Dawn Richardson, Director of Advocacy
The National Vaccine Information Center (NVIC.org)

The National Vaccine Information Center (NVIC) is a nonprofit charity founded in 1982 to prevent vaccine injuries and deaths through public education. NVIC advocates for protection of the human right to informed consent to medical risk taking and inclusion of flexible medical, religious and conscientious belief vaccine exemptions in U.S. public health policies and laws. We strongly oppose HB 1118 and urge your opposition as well.

HB 1118 removes the religious exemption for school vaccine mandates by phasing it out.

A religious exemption is needed for many reasons, but one of the most pressing reasons is because the state Department of Health amended HAR 11-157 to drastically expand vaccine mandates for children entering childcare or school beginning July 1, 2020. This action added additional mandates for Hepatitis A Vaccine (2 doses), Pneumococcal Conjugate Vaccine (PCV) (4 doses), Rotavirus Vaccine (3 doses), Human Papillomavirus Vaccine (HPV) (2 doses), Meningococcal Conjugate Vaccine (MCV) (2 doses) and Tdap Vaccine (Tetanus, Diphtheria and Pertussis) (1 dose). This was a mandated expansion of 14 doses of 6 vaccines!

Hawaii should not mandate one-size-fits-all federal recommendations. The Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices (ACIP) makes recommendations only. It is only a federal advisory committee, not a lawmaking body.

HB 1118 discriminates against children and families who refuse one or more vaccines based on religious beliefs by prohibiting them from attending school and removing protections in law that prevent them from being forced to take a vaccine that conflicts with their religious beliefs. This bill authorizes state-mandated vaccine status discrimination and is no different from any other form of discrimination that denies access to education or other accommodations based on race or sex. The individual's right to religious liberty is protected by the First Amendment to the United States Constitution and the Constitution of the State of Hawaii, Article I, Section 4., "No law shall be enacted respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

This bill violates the individual's right to freedom of religion and discriminate against individuals based solely on their religious beliefs. Additionally, the bill's exception to grandfather in children with existing religious exemptions would put families who choose not to vaccinate based on religious beliefs in a difficult situation where one or more of their children have the right to attend school while another child may not. The right to a religious exemption should not be dependent on a child's birthdate.

Parents should have the final say in what vaccines their children receive because all vaccines are pharmaceutical products that carry a risk of injury and even death. All individuals deserve the right to informed consent, which includes the right to refuse a vaccine without coercion, harassment, or penalty. As of December 27, 2024, there were 2,652,032 adverse events and 48,856 deaths reported to the federal Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System (VAERS). As of January 1, 2025, the United States Government has paid out approximately 5.3 billion dollars to vaccine victims through the National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program \(VICP\).

The law passed by Congress in 1986 establishing the VICP along with the 2011 Supreme Court Decision BRUESEWITZ ET AL. v. WYETH LLC, FKA WYETH, INC., ET AL shield vaccines manufacturers and the doctors who administer vaccines from liability for vaccine injuries and deaths.

The trend in the United States is to respect informed consent and religious liberty, not force medical treatment like vaccines or remove religious freedom rights. HB 1118 is dangerous and anti-American. We urge your no vote on HB 1118.

Medical reasons for refusing vaccines are exceedingly rare. Other reasons: personal belief or religion, have left a huge number of Hawaii's children unprotected - often due to 'scientific' misinformation. A look at any graveyard of old, pre-vaccines, will show the astonishing number of children who didn't survive until adulthood: this tragedy changed when routine vaccines against deadly (childhood) diseases became widespread.

Out own history, here in Hawaii, with a large number of native Hawaiians succumbing to measles as they didn't have any immunity, just emphasizes the importance of vaccinating children so as to achieve eradication of these diseases.

This bill is a companion bill to SB1347!

Very telling on how you are trying to slip this through in both sides in case we are not paying attention! I appose bc Vaccines are not about health and are causing so many adverse reactions such as, cancer, myocarditis, autoimmune diseases.. The research is ignored and BIG PHARMA is not for the health of the children!

I strongly oppose House Bill 1118. It is an attempt to infringe upon people's rights to live in accordance with strongly held religious beliefs. Additionally, with mounting recent data showing correlations between certain vaccines and adverse reactions in otherwise healthy individuals, I question why the governor wants to force these upon the people he is supposed to be serving. Why does he truly seek to do this. It seems like an overreach of power and with all due respect, I would remind the governor that he is a public servant who is in office to represent the people-- not elites with intentions that do not pay heed to the voices of the public. Taking away religious freedoms is a big deal. Mr. Governor, stop playing politics with our lives. Respect our rights to religious freedoms as they are protected in the U.S. constitution.

Thank you.

We cannot allow corporate pharmaceutical companies to dictate what we need to be healthy. There needs to be balance in perspectives, allowing choice for individuals and not allowing authoritarian laws to rule such as this one. The United States was founded on religious freedom under the First Amendment protections and people have a right to exercise these in regards to their own bodies. This law goes against fundamental rights of the people and I strongly oppose HB1118 and its companion bills.

I strongly oppose HB1118. If I was forced to go against my personal and deep seated religious beliefs during COVID I would have lost my job. As so many others had. As an American it is MY right not the governments right to dictate what I chose to put in my body. It is my right in this free country to choose for my children and family as well. It is NOT josh greens or any government body to make that choice for me. I will quote every pro-choice, pro-abortion person “my body, my choice”. It applies to any aspect in life. There is no double standard for abortion rights vs vaccine rights.

The American government was established to be “FOR the people, BY the people” not the for the government by the government. The government has no right to make my personal choices for me. Again I strongly oppose this bill. Please do not pass this bill.

I strongly oppose SB 1118 to remove religious exemptions to vaccinations. This is atrocious that the House would even consider this! Forcing people to vaccinate against their will has been a crime against society and iron fisted, misinformed and misguided from the start of COVID. The role of government is not to force citizens for violated their beliefs. The COVID vaccine did not protect people from getting sick and in fact, true science shows it has done more harm than good. This is a power move by the government to get more money, control its citizens and force us to either lose our jobs or violate our beliefs and take a vaccination that is not in line with the foundational beliefs of christianity. Why does the State need to do this if for no other reason than to profit and benefit from using us as a medical experiment. The State of Hawaii is not my GOD! Please do not pass this bill and stand up for the rights of all your citizens, not just those who will bow to your every wish. This is a free country, with respect of religious rights being a foundational belief. My doctor and I and my beliefs will guide what I put into my body, not the House or State of Hawaii. Please, I strongly oppose this tyranny!

Aloha all, I am writing to encourage you NOT to support Bill 1118 regarding removing religious exemptions from vaccine requirements. I have first hand seen many adults and children suffer with vaccine induced injuries, specifically in relation to the COVID vaccines, but others on the schedule as well. People have the right to make medical decisions for themselves and their families. We cannot go down the slippery slope of mandating vaccines for every person across the board, especially our keiki. There are always risks involved with any medical treatment, medication, vaccine etc, and we have the right to weight the benefits vs risks for ourselves and our families and make our own decisions. Mahalo for reading, and for deeply considering the rights this bill will strip from all of us. Much love to all of you, I know your job isn't easy but I pray you will do what's right. <3

Honorary members—

There are many reasons that I chose the religious exemption option for my own children, but the biggest one as far as religion goes are 2 common vaccine adjuvant ingredients that derive from aborted fetuses. I oppose this in my own body as well as choosing to not subject my children to these ingredients. My children are under my husband and I’s governance until they are 18, and this is a choice once you do more research on, you might change your mind as well.

When I filled out the religious exemption form for the State of Hawaii, there are many rules on it; including not sending my children to school if there were any communicable diseases at which they would be at risk. I stand by this agreement, and will also note there has never been an outbreak of any sorts that I have had to keep my children home from. Moreover, there are certain vaccines that actually “shed” from a person, and can infect others—still I choose to trust in God and our amazing and healthy bodies that my kids will be protected and safe. I think we can all attest and agree that school attendance has been low state-wide since COVID, and I am telling you if you take away our rights as people and caregivers there will be many students missing from schools which would result in less and less funding, layoffs and unemployment, the list goes on.

Back to the religious side of the vaccine issue, please see the attached sources, detailing the common adjuvant ingredients MRC-5 and WI-38. To briefly summarize, both of these DNA lines are required in most common vaccines adults and children receive. They originated from an aborted baby boy and girl respectively, and it uses lung tissue fibroblast cells. I strongly oppose abortion and knowing there are aborted fetal cell lines in these make me sick and something I oppose personally. My children are citizens of the United States of America and any sort of discrimination from government is actually an abomination. The fact that there are people like you all who are forcing this on parents who are just trying to keep their kids safe and healthy is disgusting. I will remember each and every one of you who vote to take this parental right away and make sure you are never voted into office again.

People who don't want to immunize their children for school entry can home school. Currently unimmunized children are not barred from school when an outbreak of a vaccine preventable disease is found in the general population as the current law provides for. It's much easier for all children to be immunized as long as there is not a medical reason prohibitive of the vaccine. It is very difficult to identify unimmunized students to bar them from school when outbreaks of vaccine preventable diseases arise.

When will the Hawaii Legislature STOP with the unlawful and unconstitutional encroachment?!? Especially with the hind sight of the state's dismal response to the whole COVID Vaccine lie! The vast amount of information now available shows that the government response to COVID was willfully oppressive and in some cases downright criminal. A line was crossed when the OPTION to receive the vaccine was removed and replaced with its REQUIREMENT.

AND, this from a government that uses the BODILY AUTOMINY argument as its excuse to allow for the murder of unborn children!

The Governor and his allies should be ashamed of themselves for pushing this nonsense. The US Constitution prohibits the government from violating Religious Freedoms and this bill flaunts those freedoms to appease the Big Pharma Corporations that Dr Green is beholden to.

Non-medical exemptions to vaccines requirements are an individual right and I urge the committee to REJECT this further example of government overreach!

Opposition of HB1118

My name is Jessica Montero, and I am a resident of Kailua. I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB1118. This bill is unnecessary and, if passed, would infringe upon the religious rights of the people of Hawai‘i. The First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution explicitly protects these rights.

I have always homeschooled my children based on our religious beliefs. However, when my eldest son reached high school age, he expressed a desire to attend school to experience a traditional high school environment. My son is exceptionally bright and aspires to attend the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the future. In support of his goals, we enrolled him at Hawai‘i Technology Academy (HTA), a public charter school. He is now a sophomore and thriving in his academic pursuits. Through HTA’s career-based learning program, he is currently in his second year of an internship with a video game development company.

If HB1118 is enacted, we would be left with no choice but to withdraw him from school, as he would no longer be allowed to continue his education there. This would be a devastating setback for his future.

CJ, my son, is not a threat to his classmates—he is rarely ever sick. He has never contracted a disease for which the CDC recommends vaccination, nor has he ever had the flu. Our family prioritizes a healthy lifestyle, which has contributed to our overall well-being. In my experience, unvaccinated children tend to be healthier and less frequently ill.

Currently, there are no widespread outbreaks of vaccine-preventable diseases in Hawai‘i. Therefore, this bill does not address an existing public health crisis but instead threatens our fundamental religious freedoms. I urge you to stand against HB1118 and protect the rights of families like mine.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,
Jessica Montero

Grace Hall	Individual	Oppose	Written Testimony Only

Comments:

Aloha Chair and Committee Members,

My name is Grace Hall and I am writing in strong opposition to HB1118. This bill is yet another attempt by the government to overstep its bounds and take away the rights of parents and students to make their own informed decisions. We are not just numbers on a page—we are families, we are a community, and we deserve the freedom to decide what is best for our keiki.

My brother suffered a serious injury from a vaccine, and now he relies on expensive monthly medication to manage the effects. That was never a choice our family made—it was something that happened to him, something we had no control over. And that experience opened my eyes to how dangerous it is when the government starts making medical decisions for people.

The reality is that no medical intervention is without risk. Vaccines, like any other medical treatment, can have serious side effects—including neurological damage, autoimmune disorders, and other long-term health complications. The risks may be rare, but they are real. And for those who suffer from these adverse reactions, there is no undoing the damage. When the government forces a medical decision on people, it is also forcing them to accept that risk—whether they are comfortable with it or not. That is wrong.

HB1118 isn't about protecting people—it's about controlling them. It strips parents of their right to assess those risks and make the best choices for their own children. It forces families into compliance with government mandates, ignoring the fact that every child is different, every medical history is unique, and no one—not lawmakers, not bureaucrats—has the right to make these deeply personal decisions for someone else's child.

If this bill passes, what comes next? How much more control will we allow the government to take from us? The line must be drawn here. Our keiki are not the property of the state. Parents—not lawmakers—should be the ones making the choices that shape their children’s futures.

I urge you to reject HB1118. Stand with the parents who are fighting to protect their children. Stand for freedom, for autonomy, and for the right of every family to make their own informed decisions without government coercion.

Mahalo for your time and consideration. Please vote NO on HB1118.

I'm strongly against HB 1118. To take away a religious exemptions is absolutely unconstitutional! Every newborn is required to receive hepatitis B vaccine, which is primarily contracted through sexual relations or intravenous drug use. Why are babies required to be vaccinated against this disease within 24 hours of birth? To force vaccinations on children that have very long lists of adverse reactions that vaccine manufacturers have zero liability for is proof of such a corrupt system! The Bible is very clear that we "ought to obey God rather than men". We cannot sit idly by as our religious beliefs are violated by our government. There are multiple levels in which vaccine mandates interfere with the free exercise of religion!

Comments:

Aloha Chair and Committee Members,

My name is Brian Wallace and I am writing in strong opposition to HB1118. This bill is government overreach, plain and simple. It threatens our fundamental rights—our right to bodily autonomy, our right to make medical decisions based on our own beliefs, and our right as parents to protect our keiki.

Hawaii is built on respect—respect for our families, our kupuna, our keiki, and our personal choices. This bill disrespects all of that. It ignores the fact that every body is different, that medical treatments come with risks, and that no one—especially the government—should have the power to force those risks on anyone.

Medical decisions are personal. Every medical treatment, including vaccines, carries a risk of adverse effects—neurological issues, autoimmune disorders, long-term health complications. Those risks may be rare, but for the families affected, they are life-changing. The government has no right to decide that some level of risk is “acceptable” for someone else’s child. That decision belongs to the parents, to the families, to the people who will actually live with the consequences.

HB1118 also tramples on religious freedom. Many in our community hold deep spiritual and religious beliefs that guide their medical choices. These beliefs should be honored, not dismissed by politicians who think they know better. No law should ever force someone to violate their faith to comply with a government mandate.

This is about more than just one bill. If we allow this level of government control over our personal health decisions, where does it stop? What else will they decide they have the right to force on us? Our keiki are not the property of the state. Parents—not lawmakers—should be the ones making these choices.

I urge you to stand with the families of Hawaii. Protect our rights, our freedom, and our keiki. Vote NO on HB1118.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Brian Wallace

Trying to repeal non-medical exemptions means you are trying to end religious exemptions. Why would you do that? Religion matters to most Hawaiians. Our motto claims the life of the land is perpetuated in righteousness. The Bible says righteousness is from Christ alone. Christ's righteousness is a free gift, to receive it we only need to repent and believe. Praying you retract this bill.

To the members of the Committee on Health,

Thank you for the opportunity to submit testimony on this bill. This bill allows religious exemptions not to be used for school aged children who have a valid point of not wanting their children to be vaccinated. While I read that children who were granted a religious exemption in the past would be exempt from this new requirement, what isn't clear is would that also cover any new vaccines that are added to the list? I opposed having my older children get the HPV vaccine as they were not sexually active. They never contracted HPV and it isn't fair to penalize families who talk with their children, have open communication and strict boundaries to protect them from any sexually transmitted disease to then force them to get a vaccination with risks associated with it and to penalize them and not allow them to have the religious exemption to not get a vaccine with known risks. My younger son will not be getting the vaccine and should not be penalized or forced to get something that has risks associated with it. Religious exemptions are not just people who do not want to get vaccinated but have strong moral and ethical objections to vaccines that have risk and are not necessary. My son did not get the COVID vaccine and NEVER got COVID. I would ask you to not allow this bill to move forward and to kill it.

Respectfully,

Rebecca McGuire

Comments:

I strongly oppose HB1118 because it removes parental rights to make an informed decision over injecting a vaccine into their child's body.

As every individual's autonomy is different, it is a government overreach to control what is mandated to put into someone's body.

The bill states, "Removal of non medical exemptions for immunizations would increase vaccination rates for Hawaii's school-age children," which is not a true statement and is implicating that those with non-medical exemptions would then choose to be vaccinated because of the requirement for schools. As we have witnessed, parents would rather give up their second income and increase the struggle in a hard economy instead of sending their child to school because of their core belief and values against vaccinations. We've also see the case studies in other states with high immunization rates. According to USA Facts, "high immunization states Massachusetts and Virginia both allow for religious exemptions."

The bill also states, that the "rate of non-medical immunization exemptions in Hawaii increased from 2.5 percent for the 2015—2016 school year to 5.3 percent for the 2023-2024 school year, more than doubling." This statistic shows the continual increase of parents wanting non-medical immunization exmemptions due to educating themselves and personal reasons, and should be considered when removing such exemptions.

There are huge concerns regarding the safeguards to adding vaccines to the immunization schedule with not enough research to see the effects of the vaccines on children. This is why we consistently see vaccine recommendations being changed (i.e. "CDC approves ACIP recommendation for lowering the age for pneumococcal vaccination from 65 to 50 years old. October 23, 2024") whether it's the age group, how many doses, etc.

There is a separation between church and state for a reason, the spring and infringes on our rights to practice our religion freely. We have the first amendment and our right to religion. This inhibit our ability to practice our religion freely by ignoring the fact that we have autonomy over our own bodies and no one other that the Lord God Jesus Christ can tell us what to do and we answer to no one but him. Remember bodily autonomy! Our tax dollars go towards school you have no right to deny us our exemptions. Leave the children alone Green.

Testimony in Opposition to HB111

I am submitting this testimony in strong opposition to HB1118, which seeks to repeal non-medical exemptions to immunization requirements in the state of Hawaii. This bill is a direct violation of fundamental human rights, international law, and religious freedom.

Reasons for Opposition:

- Violation of the Nuremberg Code and International Law:
 - The Nuremberg Code states that "the voluntary consent of the human subject is absolutely essential."
 - The Universal Declaration on Bioethics and Human Rights (UNESCO, 2005) mandates "prior, free, and informed consent" for any medical intervention.
 - Forcing individuals to receive vaccines against their religious or ethical convictions violates international legal standards.
- Religious and Ethical Concerns:
 - Some vaccines are developed or tested using cell lines derived from aborted fetal tissue, which is troubling for those with pro-life views.
 - Religious freedom is protected under the U.S. Constitution and international human rights agreements.
 - Article 18 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR) guarantees freedom of thought, conscience, and religion, including medical decision-making.
- Informed Consent and Bodily Autonomy:
 - The government lacks lawful authority to mandate irreversible medical procedures.
 - Parents have the right to make medical decisions for their children without government coercion.
 - Medical decisions should be made in consultation with healthcare providers based on individual conditions, ethics, and beliefs.
- Unnecessary and Overreaching Legislation:
 - The increase in non-medical exemptions does not equate to an increased public health risk.
 - Outbreaks of vaccine-preventable diseases are multifactorial and not solely caused by exemptions.

- Medical exemptions still protect immunocompromised children.
- The assumption that eliminating non-medical exemptions will lead to safer schools is not conclusively supported by data.

Conclusion:

- HB1118 disregards international legal principles, constitutional protections, and religious liberties.
- The repeal of non-medical exemptions contradicts the right to informed consent, bodily autonomy, and religious freedom.
- The bill sets a dangerous precedent for government overreach into personal medical decisions.
- I urge the committee to reject HB1118 and uphold the fundamental rights of the people of Hawaii.

My name is Jenn Ellenburg and I am writing to strongly oppose HB1118, which seeks to eliminate religious exemptions for immunization requirements. This bill not only undermines fundamental religious freedoms but also sets a dangerous precedent by infringing on the rights of individuals and families to make medical decisions that align with their deeply held beliefs.

The First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution guarantees the free exercise of religion, a principle that has long been upheld in matters of personal and family health decisions. Many families hold sincere religious beliefs that conflict with certain vaccines, and forcing compliance against their faith is a direct violation of their constitutional rights. Government should not have the authority to dictate religious beliefs or compel individuals to act against their conscience in medical matters.

Eliminating religious exemptions to immunization requirements is an extreme measure that disregards constitutional rights, informed medical choice, and deeply held religious convictions. I urge you to vote against HB1118 and uphold the rights of individuals and families to make medical decisions in accordance with their faith and conscience.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

The U.S. Constitution's first amendment's protection of religious liberty can't be subjugated by state law. Americans have the right to refuse any order, medicine, procedure, etc. that violates their religious beliefs, as well as anything that is immoral or unethical according to their well formed conscience. As a retired military officer, I was duty bound to disobey unlawful orders. This bill is unlawful and immoral.

Non-medical exemptions for immunizations or other invasive procedures must be authorized.

Was the legislature giving false information when it included the following statement in this year's SB1246, "The legislature finds that the people of Hawaii have a long tradition of protecting an individual's right to privacy and bodily autonomy independently of, and more broadly than, the federal constitution."

If the state cares about protecting the right to privacy, especially in medical matters, and the residents of Hawaii actually have bodily autonomy (i.e. our own body - not a separate body inside our womb), then you can't pass this bill.

Vote no on HB1118 and every other similar bill.

Do not pass HB1118.

Additionally this bill is filled with language covering all types of enviornmental issues without definition or guard rails. Religious freedom is a fundamental human right that allows individuals to freely practice, change, or express their beliefs without fear of persecution, discrimination, or coercion. As Religious exemptions are important because they allow individuals to practice their faith freely and without fear of punishment or discrimination, particularly when certain laws or policies may conflict with their religious beliefs. These exemptions serve as a way to balance individual religious rights with public policy, ensuring that people can live according to their values without being coerced into actions that go against their conscience.

Aloha Representatives,

I respectfully request that you strongly OPPOSE HB1118, Immunizations; Non-Medical Exemptions; Repeal.

Part of the First Amendment and Fourteenth Amendment provide that a state may not “burden a person’s exercise of Freedom of Religion.” This Bill impedes religious freedom. In addition, this Bill, as modified, attempts to compel and coerce students to get immunizations, even if it is against one’s sincerely held religious beliefs. The denial of religious accommodations is also contrary to the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Good afternoon,

My name is Emily Culver and I oppose HB1118. I have a son who will be attending school in Hawaii within the next few years. I made the decision not to vaccinate him based on the vaccine injuries that I have experienced.

Before giving birth to my son, I had 10 consecutive miscarriages. I've seen multiple specialist and was diagnosed with infertility related to reproductive Immunological. These issues are a result of having multiple extra rounds of vaccinations while serving in the military. I believe that my decision to protect my son from possible vaccine injury should not be a reason why I cannot send him to school.

During a time where the CDC vaccine schedule for children is under question, There's even more of a reason to allow parents to make the decision for their children. A child vaccination status does not put any other child at risk. It's a personal decision and one that should be done based on religious or medical reasons.

For that reason, I strongly oppose HB1118

Respectfully,

Emily Culver

Aloha Kakou,

This bill is an egregious overstep of government authority and violation of the first amendment of the United States constitution. The legislature must ask themselves why less keiki are vaccinated in 2023-2024 relative to the 2013-2016 time frame. If you are interested in public school enrollments declining, this is the correct way to go about it. Additionally, this does a disservice to our keiki, it puts the onus on the keiki to first get a vaccine injury an order to get an exemption. I urge you to examine data from 1980 until now on the change and growth in the vaccine schedule that our keiki are subject to.

My 4 yr old son has a vaccine injury and a facial palsy due to it. They forced me to vaccinate him at 6 weeks old due to PCSing to Hawaii during COVID. Now that he has a religious exemption, it allows him to go to school with the vaccine I deem safe, not the government. After I filed a religious exemption with our Catholic school, I also got my children a federal medical exemption but not all children are able to get them. I don't think the government should tell me what I should put in my children's body when they are not proven safe nor effective. Did you know that if I spoon fed the ingredients in a vaccine to my child, I would be arrest for child endangerment since those are toxic substances? Yet, these substances are being forced via injection, breaking the brain barrier. I stand for my body my choice. For example, certain vaccines also contain fetal tissues and as a Catholic, it goes against my beliefs.

I am writing in strong opposition to HB1118. This bill is government overreach, plain and simple. It threatens our fundamental rights—our right to bodily autonomy, our right to make medical decisions based on our own beliefs, and our right as parents to protect our keiki.

Hawaii is built on respect—respect for our families, our kupuna, our keiki, and our personal choices. This bill disrespects all of that. It ignores the fact that every body is different, that medical treatments come with risks, and that no one—especially the government—should have the power to force those risks on anyone.

Medical decisions are personal. Every medical treatment, including vaccines, carries a risk of adverse effects—neurological issues, autoimmune disorders, long-term health complications. Those risks may be rare, but for the families affected, they are life-changing. The government has no right to decide that some level of risk is “acceptable” for someone else’s child. That decision belongs to the parents, to the families, to the people who will actually live with the consequences.

HB1118 also tramples on religious freedom. Many in our community hold deep spiritual and religious beliefs that guide their medical choices. These beliefs should be honored, not dismissed by politicians who think they know better. No law should ever force someone to violate their faith to comply with a government mandate.

This is about more than just one bill. If we allow this level of government control over our personal health decisions, where does it stop? What else will they decide they have the right to force on us? Our keiki are not the property of the state. Parents—not lawmakers—should be the ones making these choices.

I urge you to stand with the families of Hawaii. Protect our rights, our freedom, and our keiki. Vote NO on HB1118.

Dear Committee/Board Members,

I am writing today in strong opposition to HB1118, which seeks to remove religious exemptions for vaccines in schools. If passed, this bill would infringe upon fundamental religious freedoms, undermine parental rights, and set a dangerous precedent for government overreach into personal medical decisions.

Preserving Religious Freedom

The right to religious freedom is one of the most fundamental liberties guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution. For many families, opposition to certain vaccines is deeply rooted in their religious beliefs, whether due to the use of fetal cell lines in vaccine development, concerns about bodily autonomy, or a belief in divine guidance over medical choices.

For generations, religious exemptions have allowed families to make informed healthcare decisions in accordance with their faith, free from government coercion. HB1118 would eliminate this freedom, forcing families to choose between their religious convictions and access to education a direct violation of constitutional rights.

The Impact of HB1118 on Families and Children

Eliminating religious exemptions would create significant burdens on families who rely on them for ethical and faith-based reasons. If passed, HB1118 would result in:

Educational Displacement Parents who cannot comply due to their religious beliefs may be forced to homeschool, relocate, or face legal consequences, creating financial and emotional hardship.

Religious Discrimination The removal of religious exemptions disproportionately affects faith-based communities, singling them out for exclusion from education and public life.

Erosion of Parental Rights Parents, not the government, are best positioned to make medical decisions for their children in consultation with their faith and trusted healthcare providers. HB1118 undermines this fundamental right.

A Dangerous Precedent for Future Generations

If HB1118 is enacted, what other medical or ethical mandates will follow? This bill opens the door for increased government control over personal health decisions, setting a precedent that could extend beyond vaccines to other medical treatments, procedures, or interventions.

Medical autonomy is a deeply personal and sacred responsibility. If exemptions are removed, future generations may face increasing mandates that disregard religious convictions, erode parental rights, and create an educational system that prioritizes coercion over choice.

Conclusion

Religious freedom is not a privilege, it is a right. HB1118 represents an unconstitutional and unethical attack on religious communities and individual liberties. Parents should never be forced to choose between their faith and their child's education.

I strongly urge you to vote against HB1118 and protect religious vaccine exemptions in schools. True inclusivity means respecting diverse beliefs, not forcing compliance through exclusion and coercion.

Sincerely,

Chevas Kunz

Resident of Mililani

We oppse this bill and should have the right to practice our religious beliefs including having religious exemptions for vaccinations. These vaccinations contain aborted fetuses and substances that we believe to be against our beliefs and should not be in our bodies. I pray in the name of Jesus that we would be able to maintain this right to continue to raise our family here in Hawaii. Please do not pass this bill.

Removing non-medical exemptions from immunization requirements is against the law, according to the United States Constitution's protection of religious freedoms. The State of Hawaii should not be trying to thwart the Constitution of the United States. Non-medical exemptions, especially religious exemptions, are the legal rights of American citizens; as well as, non-citizens who reside in this nation. The courts have ruled, in case after case regarding immunizations, in favor of religious freedom according to the US Constitution. Why is the State of Hawaii trying to oppose the United States Constitution? We should never do that! Oppose this egregious bill.

Dear Sirs & Madams,

I am a concerned citizen writing to request your thoughtful analysis of what passing this bill, which repeals non-medical exemptions, might do to the morale of the people who've chosen to forego vaccines based on religious grounds.

Individuals should have the choice to decide what they put into and onto their bodies. Religious individuals should also have that choice. This bill discriminates against religious individuals who, on the grounds of their religious values, have chosen to forego vaccines. There are also non-religious people who take care of their health, protecting their body by carefully watching what goes into it.

If there were bills to support other "preventative" care measures, such as requiring individuals to get colonoscopies, mammograms, flu shots, blood tests, etc., then I could understand why vaccines are always brought up. But, there are no other bills requiring individuals to take preventive care of their health. Why is it always that vaccines get the limelight? I've been taught to follow the money, and the money leads straight back into the pockets of certain politicians who have introduced this bill.

Government's first duty is to protect the people, not tell them how to run their lives. -Ronald Reagan

*By repealing non-medical exemptions, you are dictating to people how to run their lives. Please. You were voted in to protect people, not tell them what to do. If people begin to move from this state because of our government, where will the funding come for the positions in government?

Aloha,

He Hawai'i au mau a mau.

I am opposing bill H1118. Not only is it destructive to exercising our human rights religiously/beliefs otherwise, it is also targeting the most precious and important individuals in our community; the children. Whom are too young to fully understand and or comprehend the possible side effects/dangers of taking vaccines. Therefore their parents are held responsible to make those decisions and yet this bill is trying to take that choice of exemption away from parents, why? Vaccines are not proven to be 100% safe and effective, most have many side effects and lack research as far as taking all the vaccinations required by schools and the long term effects on children. In fact, there are many studies that show health issues/complications within children who were vaccinated vs unvaccinated. Vaccines have been around a long time and still children are getting sick. It is not a solution, rather an agenda being pushed by one of the wealthiest corporations, the pharmaceutical industry. Why are we focused on immunizations rather than nutrition in kids school foods or teaching children how to build strong immune systems naturally. This bill is not in the best interest of the children, especially when you're trying to take away the voice of their parents, whom are responsible for them. I am a mother and I do not support this bill because it is taking away the freedom of choice that is our birthright. If I do not wish my child to be injected with a substance I can't fully be sure is safe nor beneficial for my child, why would I risk their health? When we are blessed with so many natural 100% effective options. This bill is utterly disturbing and proves to cause more distrust with those chosen to be a voice for our people. This is hewa. Non medical exemptions were put in place for a reason, and personal beliefs and religion are a strong foundation of who we are as a person. It is important for us to have, it is protection, and yet someone is trying to take this away. Too much fear is placed in the media and spread amongst our community to control people and pressure them to make a decision they aren't fully knowledgeable about. Vaccines have warning labels and health risks that aren't talked about, but proven. There are many vaccine injuries happening every day. Those are not spoken about. Furthermore leads to my point that having a choice to be exempt from vaccines for our children is our right and should not be taken away.

Mahalo,

HB1118

To the members of the Committee on Health,

Thank you for the opportunity to submit testimony on this bill. This bill allows religious exemptions to not be used for school aged children whose families have a valid reasons for not wanting their children to be vaccinated. While I read that children who were granted a religious exemption in the past would be exempt from this new requirement, what isn't clear is would that also cover any new vaccines that are added to the list?

We, as a family, opposed our older children receiving the HPV vaccine as they were not sexually active. They never contracted HPV, and it isn't fair to penalize families who talk with their children, have open communication and strict boundaries to protect them from any sexually transmitted disease with a forced vaccination and the associated risks. We will be having the same boundary discussions and open communication with our youngest child. He will not be getting the vaccine and should not be penalized or forced to receive it.

Religious exemptions are not just people who do not want to get vaccinated but have strong moral and ethical objections to certain vaccines that have significant associated risks—risks which far out way the benefits. Our son did not get the COVID vaccine and NEVER got COVID. I would ask you to not allow this bill to move forward and to kill it.

Respectfully,

David McGuire

I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB 1118. In addition to my personal stance, I represent other like-minded mothers in our community who share these concerns. As a parent and resident of Hawaii, I firmly believe that individuals must have the right to choose or be granted exemptions when it comes to immunization.

The ability to opt-out based on religious or medical grounds is a fundamental right protected by the First Amendment. It is not the role of the state or government to revoke these exemptions, as doing so would be both unconstitutional and an infringement on personal freedoms.

As a dedicated health advocate, I take my family's and community's well-being seriously. Removing religious exemptions is not the solution and should not be considered as such.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Especially given recent experiences violating public trust with unproven, unsafe, ineffective transfection technology and the gaslighting, coercion, fraud, and obvious harm that was denied, though gradually admitted- if still minimized; how dare you propose to double down on this assault? This bill is an obscene insult to the public's human rights of informed consent and personal medical sovereignty. These are not indulgences, they are paramount legal protections supported in international legal precedent superceding that of any state. You are beyond your scope of practice in this attempt. Aloha,

I strongly oppose this bill (HB1118). With this testimony, I would like to ensure that lawmakers are aware of how incredibly hard it is to obtain a medical exemption for a vaccine injured children. My daughter was vaccine injured at 2 years old, after having a non-febrile seizure days after receiving three vaccines at once, during her well child visit. Please note that one of the first side effects listed on these vaccine safety labels, from the manufacturers themselves, have "seizures" listed as a known side effect.

I was shocked when I was met with a cold and defensive attitude from her pediatricians office as I followed up with them, after my daughter was admitted to the emergency room. I ended up ultimately being granted a medical exemption for Veda, which lasted for 10 years, right up until the office implemented a new policy. This policy forced patients to follow the offices' vaccine schedule or the child would not be welcome as a patient any longer. My daughter was then kicked out of the practice, and worst, they conveniently walked back and revoked the medical exemption they provided her for years, saying that they looked the case over again, and no longer felt that the vaccine has cause her seizure. All of this was done so that my daughter would no longer be a patient at this practice, since insurance companies give bonuses to practices who have a high percentages of vaccinated patients. This is horriifiing, and I was deeply hurt. This isn't the kind of treatment you would expect from people who you trust to ensure your childs health and well-being.

Vaccines have become money driven, and political. This is not a one size fits all drug, no drug is. Where there is any kind of risk, a choice is required to be afforded. This bill would empower drug companies and pediatrician offices to continue to evade any type of responsibility or protections for patients that are adversely affected by vaccines. Further more, after my daughters injury, I researched ingredients used in vaccines, also listed in the manufacturers insert. Blood fractions and other toxins are contained in many vaccines - which is against my religious beliefs. Please ensure that the people of Hawai'i have medical freedom of choice and freedom to practice their religious beliefs.

I can tell you from someone that is part of my community and who talks to many parents, this bill would not force one parent to vaccinate their vaccine injured child or their siblings, or go against their religious beliefs. This bill would force these parents to homeschool their keiki. Please do not punish our keiki or parents for their religious beliefs or the adverse effects they have experienced with vaccines. Forcing a medical procedure on to people is a direct violation of our God-given freedom to choose. Please let our keiki attend public school, be part of their community and play sports.

Mahalo for all your painstaking work day in and day out for the people of Hawai'i, and thank you for reading all of these powerful testimonies, I appreciate it immensely.

Mahalo nui,

Deja Antonio

I am strongly opposed this bill.

1. Infringement on Religious Freedom

Removing religious exemptions may violate the principle of religious liberty, a cornerstone of many democratic societies. Certain faiths oppose vaccines due to ethical concerns, such as the use of fetal cell lines in development (e.g., Catholicism, though many leaders now endorse vaccination). Forcing adherents to choose between their beliefs and compliance could marginalize religious minorities and undermine constitutional protections, such as the First Amendment in the U.S.

2. Erosion of Trust in Institutions

Mandating vaccinations without religious accommodations may breed distrust in government and public health authorities. Perceived coercion can fuel anti-vaccine sentiment, paradoxically reducing compliance. Communities might view such policies as dismissive of their values, leading to heightened resistance and reliance on misinformation.

3. Legal and Constitutional Challenges

Eliminating religious exemptions could provoke lawsuits alleging violations of religious freedom. In jurisdictions with strong protections (e.g., the U.S. under the Religious Freedom Restoration Act), courts may strike down such policies, creating legal uncertainty and diverting resources from public health efforts.

4. Social Division and Marginalization

Targeted religious groups may feel alienated, exacerbating social tensions. For example, conservative Christian or Amish communities might withdraw further from mainstream society, homeschooling children or avoiding medical systems. This polarization could hinder broader public health collaboration.

5. Unintended Public Health Consequences

Strict mandates might drive non-compliant individuals underground, falsifying exemptions or avoiding healthcare altogether. This could leave pockets of low immunity, risking outbreaks. Additionally, enforcement efforts might overshadow education and outreach, which are more effective for fostering voluntary uptake.

6. Economic and Educational Barriers

Without exemptions, families refusing vaccines for religious reasons could face exclusion from schools or employment. This disproportionately affects low-income groups, limiting access to education and economic stability, and deepening inequities.

7. Historical and Cultural Sensitivities

Some minority religions have historical trauma tied to state coercion (e.g., Indigenous or Jehovah's Witness communities). Removing exemptions may echo past persecution, intensifying distrust and resistance.

Conclusion

While removing religious exemptions aims to boost vaccination rates, it risks infringing on civil liberties, provoking legal disputes, and fostering societal discord. Policymakers must balance public health goals with respect for religious diversity, ensuring strategies prioritize dialogue and inclusivity to avoid counterproductive outcomes.

They never contracted HPV and it isn't fair to penalize families who teach their children to have values that include waiting for marriage to have sex. My husband and I have open communication and strict boundaries to protect them from any sexually transmitted disease to then force them to get a vaccination with risks associated with it and to penalize them and not allow them to have the religious exemption to not get a vaccine with known risks. My children will not be getting the vaccine and should not be penalized or forced to get something that has risks associated with it. Religious exemptions are not just people who do not want to get vaccinated but have strong moral and ethical objections to vaccines that have risks and are not necessary. in my opinion. My family did not get the COVID vaccine and NEVER got COVID. I would ask you to not allow this bill to move forward and to kill it.

Thank you for your time,

Julie Venegas

I would like to add my testimony in opposing this bill to remove all non-medical exemptions for vaccinations. Removing religious exemptions in this case is also a way of removing freedom of religion. Aloha Chair and Committee Members,

I am writing in strong opposition to HB1118.

This bill is government overreach, plain and simple. It threatens our fundamental rights-our right to bodily autonomy, our right to make medical decisions based on our own beliefs, and our right as parents to protect our keiki.

Hawaii is built on respect-respect for our families, our kupuna, our keiki, and our personal choices. This bill disrespects all of that. It ignores the fact that every body is different, that medical treatments come with risks, and that no one-especially the government-should have the power to force those risks on anyone.

Medical decisions are personal. Every medical treatment, including vaccines, carries a risk of adverse effects— neurological issues, autoimmune disorders, long-term health complications. Those risks may be rare, but for the families affected, they are life-changing. The government has no right to decide that some level of risk is "acceptable" for someone else's child. That decision belongs to the parents, to the families, to the people who will actually live with the consequences.

HB1118 also tramples on religious freedom.

Many in our community hold deep spiritual and religious beliefs that guide their medical choices. These beliefs should be honored, not dismissed by politicians who think they know better. No law should ever force someone to violate their faith to comply with a government mandate.

This is about more than just one bill. If we allow this level of government control over our personal health decisions, where does it stop? What else will they decide they have the right to force on us? Our keiki are not the property of the state. Parents-not lawmakers-should be the ones making these choices.

I urge you to stand with the families of Hawaii. Protect our rights, our freedom, and our keiki.
Vote NO on HB1118.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Comments:

This bill seeks to eliminate non-medical exemptions for vaccines, which include religious and philosophical objections, thereby mandating vaccination without medical exemptions.

This is a blatant violation of Religious Freedom - This will would infringe upon the constitutional right to freedom of religion by not recognizing religious objections - currently protected by state and federal law.

Philosophical exemptions reflect respect for individual autonomy and the right to make personal health choices based on ones own convictions. Removing this exemption strips away personal freedom.

Forcing vaccinations without exemption will further the distrust of the medical community and legislature. When so many studies and physicians opposed to the vaccine have been censored, it goes to follow that the public does not yet have access to all of the information and in implementing this bill, without all of the information is a gross failure of public health and safety.

BY disallowing non-medical exemptions, we risk further eroding public trust in health policy, without broader implications for public health beyond vaccination.

How can we tout the cultural diversity of our Hawaiian Ohana while failing to recognize cultural beliefs and practices that go against the democratic agenda? This bill does not accommodate the very differences this legislature claims to be protective of.

Rather than remove exemptions, we could enhance public health with education and engagement and allowing dissenting voices to be heard.

I am deeply concerned about the implications of HB1118 on individual rights, community cohesion and public health strategy. Eliminating non medical exemptions could have unintended consequences that outweighs the perceived benefits.

I encourage this committee to reconsider this bill and explore other methods that respect personal freedom and autonomy and the right for patients to decide personal health decisions with qualified physicians and the most up to date medical data available.

the legislature has no business in exam rooms.

Please leave the religious exemptions for our children's schools. If removed, this would be an infringement of our religious freedoms. Mandates on medical products are also oppressive and illiberal. For products with risk, there must be informed choice. Vaccines can be wonderful, but it must be the parent's choice, an individual's choice based on their unique health and freedom of religious beliefs. Please do the right thing for our children.

Aloha,

I am a mother of two boys, one in 6th grade at Honokaa elementary & the other a junior at Kamehameha, Keaau.

We are strong in our faith & do not believe in vaccinating our boys, injecting them with aborted fetus cells or MRNA properties, mercury, formaldehyde, Aluminum, & any other chemicals, which go against our religious beliefs & views. This is a constitutional right to have the ability to say my body, my choice when it comes to injecting them with chemicals of which the doctors cannot even properly take the time to go over every single ingredient & every single side effect of. I know this because I have asked before.

1 Corinthians 2:5 That your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God.

1 Corinthians 6:19 What? Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit which is in you, which is of God's and not of your own.

1 Corinthians 3:17 If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy, for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are.

Please do not move forward with this bill & allow us as parents to make the choices of our children's health which we know best.

Thank you,

This mandate has nothing to do with maintaining the health of our children. It is instead, an engrose infringement on our religious rights. As a parent, it is my responsibility to ensure my children stay safe and healthy, through diet, vitamin supplementation and excersise. It is not the governments responsibility to force their beliefs on "we, the people". I have 2, very healthy, teenage boys in highschool. Neither have ever recieved any vaccinations, and have gotten through every "sick" season of their lives better than most. They rarely ever get sick, thanks to our practices and the grace of God. If you feel removing them from school for the remainder of the duration, will help their physical and mental health, you are creating a much larger, overall, problem. I ask that you re-think this mandate and leave medical decisions in the hands of the families. I promise, if this madate goes through, you will be forcebly removing thousands of children from public schools around the state. This is not a decision to take lightly.

I strongly believe in the importance of protecting religious exemptions for school immunizations. As a parent, it's my fundamental right to make decisions about my child's health and wellbeing, including those guided by our deeply held spiritual beliefs.

Forcing parents to choose between their faith and accessing education is not only unjust, but also harmful. It's crucial we preserve the freedom to make informed, conscience-driven choices about vaccination, without fear of retribution or exclusion.

By safeguarding religious exemptions, we ensure that families from diverse backgrounds and faiths can continue to participate in our education system, fostering a more inclusive and equitable society for all.

I have lived in many places in my life and never seen a state pressure parents to vaccinate their kids from a Sexually transmitted disease to get an education. To whom it may concern,

This Bill (HB1118) that would, if passed, refuse vaccine exemption for those that are unvaccinated due to their religious beliefs and/or convictions is very concerning to me. After years of the COVID-19 Vaccine audits, there is substantial evidence that this particular vaccine has caused widespread deaths and serious adverse reactions, some of which have left the recipients paralyzed, immune system compromised (VAIDS) and left some with the condition of Myocarditis. There is also mounting evidence of the dangerous DNA altering characteristics of this vaccine. It is with the utmost respect and conviction that I suggest that this Bill would be denied at this juncture. The data that is presently continuing to be analyzed needs more time to fully evaluate the harmful ramifications ensued to those affected. We should be careful to make any decisions now about mandating any vaccine, as some experts have come forward acknowledging how it was a mistake to assume that the Covid-19 vaccine was safe and effective. It was proven to be either. The fact that the Covid-19 virus was a result of "Gain of Function" experiments should be the focus of efforts to prevent any future Pandemics. This outcome of vaccine injuries should serve as a warning to halt any further vaccine mandates or development of vaccines carelessly. Thank you for your serious consideration as my convictions about experimental vaccines are converse to any Bill that would mandate anyone to being experimented on in fear of losing their livelihood.

Sincerely,

Thomas Stoll

Aloha Chair, Vice Chair, and Members of the Committee,

I am writing to strongly oppose HB1118, which seeks to remove religious exemptions for school vaccination requirements in Hawaii. This bill infringes upon fundamental rights and parental freedoms, setting a dangerous precedent for government overreach into personal and religious decisions.

1. Religious Freedom and Constitutional Rights

Religious exemptions exist to protect the deeply held beliefs of families who conscientiously object to certain vaccinations. The First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution guarantees the free exercise of religion, and forcing parents to vaccinate their children against their religious convictions is a clear violation of this fundamental right. Hawaii has long upheld diverse cultural and religious values—this bill threatens that foundation.

2. Parental Rights and Informed Consent

Parents should have the right to make medical decisions for their children without coercion from the government. Medical interventions, including vaccines, carry risks, and each parent must have the autonomy to weigh the benefits and risks based on their unique circumstances. The removal of religious exemptions disregards parental consent and personal medical freedom.

3. Precedent for Discrimination and Exclusion

HB1118 effectively excludes children from receiving an education if their parents object to vaccinations on religious grounds. This disproportionately impacts faith-based communities and marginalized groups, forcing families to either violate their beliefs or seek alternative, often costly, education options. No child should be denied access to public education due to their family’s religious convictions.

4. Alternative Solutions Exist

Rather than eliminating religious exemptions, the state should focus on policies that ensure public health while respecting individual rights. This could include robust education on vaccines, transparency in reporting adverse reactions, and reasonable accommodations for families with sincere objections.

Conclusion:

HB1118 is a direct attack on religious freedom, parental rights, and informed medical choice. I urge the committee to reject this bill and instead work toward solutions that protect public health while upholding constitutional freedoms.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Yumi Moore

I do not agree to the removal of Religious Exemptions for Vaccinations of our Keiki. This is UnConstitutional, and it is a horrific measure that is being brought before the Hawaii legislature to consider. Vaccinations, especially the MRNA Covid and other childhood vaccinations have NOT been proven safe or effective, nor do they have any redeemable benefits. In fact, these vaccinations have shown to harm 1000's of humans! This is absolutely unacceptable that this is even being considered in the way of a bill....to kill and hurt our Children and Grand Children. I am NOT in support of this Bill. We have the right to choose our Medical Freedom, and Religious Exemption is a God Given as well as Constitutional Right. Refusing religious exemption for vaccines is unconstitutional as our first amendment rights include freedom of religion. There are plenty of recent examples from the blunders of the pandemic to reinforce this erroneous approach:

On September 24, 2021, a federal court in Kentucky acknowledged in Beckerich v. St. Elizabeth Medical Center that exemptions from a hospital's COVID-19 vaccine mandate should be granted for hospital employees who had a sincere religious objection under Title VII.

On October 7, 2021, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit in Dahl v. Board of Trustees of Western Michigan University held that student athletes were likely to succeed on their First Amendment claim that a university infringed on their right of free exercise of religion when it enforced a coronavirus vaccine mandate and ignored or denied requests for religious exemptions.

In July 2022, Liberty Counsel settled the nation's first classwide lawsuit for healthcare workers over a COVID vaccine mandate, for more than $10.3 million. The class action settlement against NorthShore University HealthSystem was on behalf of more than 500 current and former healthcare workers who were unlawfully discriminated against and denied religious exemptions from the mandate.

There are many more recent court decisions throughout the nation that conclude again and again, first amendment rights cannot be revoked. In this particular case, you will find that mama bears like me will fiercely protect our children, minors that we are responsible for, and will not let their bodies be mandated against God's will.

Extra good news: if your children are vaccinated, and those vaccines work as well as "the science" says, then an unvaccinated child cannot get them sick. God bless!

I oppose HB1118. The right and responsible of a child always belong's in hand of the parents and no one else. No government or school will be making any decison of any one's child especially of their medical health.

A lot of vaccination uses parts for aborted fetus (human baby) in their development. Abortion is clearly against my religions. In accordance with God's words (The Holy Bile), 1 Corinthians 6:19-20, commands Christians to honor Go by caring for our bodies responsibly, for it is a temples of the Holy Spirt. Receiving any vaccine will voilate God's commannd to honor Him with our bodies because of the the involvement of fetal stem cell in any vaccination development. Sruptures from The Holy Bible, teaches the value of preborn life which is created in God's imagine from the moment of fertilization. As in Psalms 139:13-16 and Jeremiah 1:5, a developing deture in the womb was created by God and is life that deserves to be protected.

Therefore being FORCE to inject any vaccination against my will or my child's will would violate my family's deeply held beliefs about, first, honoring God in caring for our bodies, and second, advocating for the protection of preborn life as it is commanded in Proverbs 31:8-9, Jeremiah 22:3, and James 1:27. Eliminating religious exemption is clearly a violate of my First Amendement of the United States Constitution which protects my right to pratice my religion without government interference.

Removing religious exemptions from vaccines is a direct violation of religious freedom, a fundamental right protected by the First Amendment. The government does not have the authority to override deeply held religious beliefs, as the people we elect to govern are not God and should not dictate matters of faith. For many, receiving certain vaccines conflicts with their religious convictions, and forcing compliance disregards their moral and spiritual autonomy. Additionally, religious exemptions have long been a recognized and respected part of medical and legal traditions, ensuring that personal beliefs are not sacrificed for government mandates. While public health is important, it should not come at the expense of religious liberty, which is a cornerstone of American democracy.

Testimonial Against Removing Religious Exemptions for Vaccination

Dear Legislators,

I am writing to urge you to oppose any bill that seeks to remove religious exemptions for vaccination. This issue is deeply personal to me, not only as a parent but as someone who has experienced firsthand the devastating effects that medical mandates can have on an individual's health and well-being.

As a child, I suffered a severe vaccine injury—an experience that altered the course of my life. While conventional medicine failed to provide solutions, I turned to my faith for healing. Through prayer, holistic care, and natural healing practices, I was able to reclaim my health. This experience solidified my unwavering trust in God's design and the body's innate ability to heal when properly supported.

Because of my experience, I made the informed decision to raise my children without vaccines. Today, I have two healthy, vibrant children—one in high school and one in second grade. Neither of them has ever required a sick visit to the doctor, and both excel academically, consistently earning straight A's. My family's story is living proof that health is not dependent on pharmaceutical interventions but rather on a holistic approach that honors the body, mind, and spirit.

Removing religious exemptions would force families like mine to choose between our deeply held beliefs and access to education. This is not only unconstitutional but also an assault on religious freedom, informed consent, and parental rights. The government has no place dictating medical decisions that should be left to families and their faith.

I urge you to stand for freedom, bodily autonomy, and religious liberty by voting against any bill that seeks to eliminate religious exemptions. No parent should be forced to violate their conscience or their faith to participate in society. Please do not allow fear and coercion to override the fundamental rights of American families.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Rene Connolly

Aloha Chair and Committee Members,

I am writing in strong opposition to HB1118. This bill is government overreach. It threatens our fundamental rights; our right to bodily autonomy, our right to make medical decisions based on our own beliefs, and our right as parents to protect our children.

This bill disrespects our personal choices. It ignores the fact that every body is different, that medical treatments come with risks, and that no one, especially the government, should have the power to force those risks on anyone.

Speaking from a medical professional standpoint, this bill completely goes against “patient rights.” It goes against informed consent. The right to give or withhold consent to treatment. The right to participate in decisions about my care and my children’s care. The right to refuse treatment.

Medical decisions are personal. Every medical treatment, including vaccines, carries a risk of adverse effects; neurological issues, autoimmune disorders, long-term health complications. Those risks may be rare, but for the families affected, they are life-changing. The government has no right to decide that some level of risk is "acceptable" for someone else's child. That decision belongs to the parents, to the families, to the people who will actually live with the consequences.

HB1118 also tramples on religious freedom. Many in our community hold deep spiritual and religious beliefs that guide their medical choices.

These beliefs should be honored, not dismissed by politicians who think they know better. No law should ever force someone to violate their faith to comply with a government mandate.

This is about more than just one bill. If we allow this level of government control over our personal health decisions, where does it stop?

What else will they decide they have the right to force on us? My children are not the property of the state. Parents, not lawmakers, should be the ones making these choices.

I urge you to stand with the families of Hawaii.

Vote NO on HB1118.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Parents should have the right to refuse these vaccines. The government should not be allowed to dictate our religious beliefs.

Furthermore this should not be a requirement we had the opportunity to refuse flu vaccines in the past without exemptions. We were allowed to choose what we would put in our bodies. Where now the government is mandating vaccines. That is unconstitutional.

The government should not have the power to allow or disallow us rights to our own bodies.

I oppose this bill. The first amendment guarantees US citizens freedom of religion. By passing this bill you are directly violating that. I have 4 children, all born in Hawaii, that this would affect. After Covid and all the mandates and challenges to religious freedoms, I would hope that legislators would recognize religious freedom stands. The people do not want this. A recent survey conducted by the Anneburg Public Policy Center showed "support for religious exemptions to school vaccine requirements also doubled, from 20% in 2019 to 39% in 2025" (The Defender, Burdick Feb 3rd, 2025 Article "Public Support for Religious Exemptions Nearly Doubled Over Past 6 Years"). People are much more aware of what goes into vaccines after the heightened awareness gained from the COVID vaccine push. That is why I believe you are seeing an uptake in religious exemptions. People do not want this stuff in their bodies. I urge you to keep the law as is and do not mess with the First Amendment of the people.

Good afternoon,

I am a constituent from Kailua, HI in opposition of HB1118.

Removing religious vaccine exemptions undermines fundamental religious liberties by setting a dangerous precedent where the government dictates which beliefs are valid and which are not. The First Amendment guarantees the free exercise of religion, including the right to make health decisions based on faith and conscience. For Christians, this often includes convictions about the sanctity of the body as a temple of God and opposition to morally objectionable vaccine ingredients. Denying these exemptions forces believers to violate their conscience or face exclusion from society, which is a direct attack on the core principle of religious freedom.

This isn't just about vaccines. It's about safeguarding the right to live according to deeply held convictions without government interference.

Thank you for your time,

Kari Howell

As a lifelong resident of Hawaii, and taxpayer, I vehemently oppose HB1118 for the following reasons:

1. It is in direct contradiction to the Civil Rights Act title 7.
2. It is a right that my family and I had already exercised during the alleged emergency pandemic of 2020-2021. This bill would remove the last vestiges of freedom for future generations.
3. it is also contrary to the first amendment, right to exercise religious freedom and self determination.
4. It places an inordinate amount of power to a few people in the department of health and state government.

Health can be a very touchy subject especially as it pertains to vaccinations. Most people are interested in preserving their own health, the health of their families and friends, and the health of the nation as a whole. Unfortunately, sometimes people take their health concerns and push that their health decisions should be applied to everyone, disregarding human rights and dignities in their benevolent pursuit. This bill is just like that.

As we look back on the lock down, there were many things we learned. The thing most relevant to this conversation was that nobody could promise us safety from Covid 19. We had cases of adverse reactions and nobody could be promised that there would be no chance of the same happening to them or their beloved. All the while, people who did get the vaccine were still getting sick with the same thing which the vaccine was meant to protect them from.

If vaccines hurt some people and weren't effective for others, why would it be okay to prescribe this "treatment" to a whole population? Especially when so many people felt uncomfortable with such a thing.

Haven't we learned that putting something into someone else without their agreement is rape?

And before anyone dares to say that it was by choice, it wasn't. People had families to feed, and bills to pay. It's not a choice if you're going to go hungry or homeless if you say no.

Religious exemption is the only way that one can avoid this medical violation. Please oppose this bill while you still have the ability to stand up for freedom.

Comments:

House Bill 1118 has sparked significant concerns regarding its potential infringement upon our constitutional rights, particularly the freedom of religion. The legislation proposes a considerable increase in government overreach by mandating vaccinations that, as of now, have not undergone exhaustive clinical testing to ensure their safety and efficacy. This raises ethical questions about the appropriateness of such mandates when the long-term effects of these vaccines remain uncertain.

Additionally, it is critical to consider the implications of Governor Green’s steadfast support for public vaccination initiatives. His unwavering commitment may prompt suspicions about the extent of influence exerted by pharmaceutical companies on governmental policy. This concern is further compounded by the possibility that the bill could lead to a repeal of religious exemptions, which would directly impact individuals who hold sincere beliefs against vaccination. Such actions could set a troubling precedent, undermining the foundational principle of religious freedom that is deeply embedded in our society.

As the debate surrounding House Bill 1118 intensifies, it is imperative to examine both the public health objectives and the fundamental rights at stake, ensuring that neither is compromised in the pursuit of the other.

I oppose this bill because United States of America was founded on the principle of freedom. By restricting people's religious freedoms is tyrannical. Amish communities have never vaccinated and have peacefully existed in America, so have those people who aren't Amish, who refuse to vaccinate. We are humans, not slaves, we can decide for ourselves if we deem it necessary to vaccinate ourselves or our children. Non-vaccinated kids and adults do not pose a risk to anyone, the only "risk" is that people like us do not submit to tyranny.

I only got couple of vaccines as a child, until my mother learned of the risks that vaccines can carry and her strenght in God got stronger. So I grew up learning that we must stand up for our health and nobody knows our health better than us, and not some doctor behind a desk. I did not vaccinate any of my 4 children and they are very smart, top of their classes and very healthy, they never get sick, nor do they have any allergies.

There are enough vaccine injured children in this country, no need to create even more. If someone wants to vaccinate their child, they have that freedom, and if not, they should also have that freedom.

Opposing this bill (HB1118) is crucial as it directly infringes upon the constitutional right to religious freedom by eliminating non-medical exemptions for vaccinations based on religious beliefs. This action not only violates our First Amendment's Free Exercise Clause but also sets a dangerous precedent for government overreach into personal and familial health decisions. Parents should retain the right to make healthcare choices for their children according to their moral, ethical, or religious convictions, and this bill strips away that autonomy. Additionally, the bill could disproportionately impact children from religious backgrounds by potentially barring them from public education, leading to educational disparities. Not every family has the means or resources for private schooling or homeschooling, which might force children out of school, affecting their educational opportunities and future prospects. Moreover, the legislation represents an overreach of government authority, advocating for a one-size-fits-all approach to public health that fails to respect the diversity of beliefs and practices within our society. This goes against the principles of a pluralistic society where individual freedoms should be balanced with public health considerations. Hence, this bill, by removing non-medical exemptions, risks undermining both personal freedoms and equitable access to education.

I am writing in strong OPPOSITION of HB1118 . . . specifically removing religious exemptions for immunizations. I am a parent of students that have a religious exemption because it is my deeply held belief that medical decisions, including immunizations, should be a matter of personal faith and parental choice.

HB1118 infringes upon my constitutional right to religious freedom and forces my family to choose between our sincerely held beliefs and my children's access to public education.

Violation of Religious Freedom

The First Amendment protects the right to exercise religion freely. By removing religious exemptions for immunizations, HB1118 directly violates this fundamental freedom. Many families, like mine, hold strong spiritual convictions regarding medical interventions, and this bill disregards those beliefs entirely.

Discriminatory and Unjust

This bill unfairly punishes religious families by restricting access to public education, which is a right for all children. Public schools are funded by all taxpayers, including those who hold religious objections to vaccines. It is unjust to force families into choosing between violating their faith or being excluded from the education system.

Parental Rights and Medical Choice

Parents are the primary decision-makers for their children's healthcare. HB1118 removes the ability for families to make informed medical choices based on their religious convictions. This overreach sets a dangerous precedent, allowing the government to override personal and religious autonomy in medical decisions.

Public Health Considerations Must Respect Individual Rights

While I understand the intent behind public health measures, any policy must respect individual rights, including religious liberty. Religious exemptions have been part of Hawaii's framework for years without causing public health crises, and there is no compelling reason to eliminate them now.

Conclusion

Forcing compliance with medical procedures against one's religious beliefs is unconstitutional and unethical. I strongly urge you to oppose HB1118 and protect religious freedoms for all families in Hawaii.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Aloha,

As a mother and a God-fearing woman, I strongly oppose this bill. Our children are the greatest gifts in our lives here on earth and it is our divine responsibility to nurture and raise them with guidance from Jesus Christ. He provides everything we need through nature, as we are made in His image. I am not against science, but I believe that injecting chemicals, human/animal DNA/cells, and metals into our children defies our faith. As Christians, we understand that others do not share our beliefs and do not discriminate against those who will vaccinate to feel protected. Yet, our children are in danger of being seen as a threat and rejected by the school system for their religious background. Religious Exemptions are our right as Christians and citizens of the United States of America. Our children's education should not be leveraged by choices made by the government. The government is not God. Please DO NOT pass this bill. Thank you for taking the time to read this testimony.

Symptoms of widespread inflammation, severe brain fog, joint pain, shooting pain in the extremities and crippling fatigue just to name a few. On diagnostic testing, we have also seen signs of myocarditis and injury to the heart.

There is no blanket solution for a pandemic as each individual of of different ethnic background, different genetics and different metabolic health which directly influences how someone reacts to a chemical being injected into their system. COVID-19 is the best example of that and VAERS has published much of their data, please keep in mind that this is REPORTED data and excludes all the incidences that weren't REPORTED.

I OPPOSE BILL 1118

I believe people should have the right to medical freedom. As we know, childhood illnesses help to build a strong immune system. In addition, there have been aborted fetus cells in some of the immunizations. This alone is a basis for religious exemption. Some of the shots havent even been tested fully. In 1986 there was a bill passed which makes the manufacturers not responsible for harmful effects of their shots. Until they have been tested fully and the manufacturers have culpability, I will oppose this bill.

This bill eliminates non-medical exemptions from immunization requirements for school entry, effectively removing the previous option for parents or guardians to opt out of required vaccinations based on religious beliefs.

I STRONGLY OPPOSE HB1118 relating to removal of non-medical exemptions to immunization requirements.

Our government is acting like a Pharma representative instead of protecting the safety of the public. Vaccines are not tested adequately as the public would demand if they were aware--vaccines do NOT undergo rigorous double blind studies with a true placebo for years like other drugs--some have been tested for only DAYS OR WEEKS. That is NOT rigorous science to protect and inform consumers.

Have you or your healthcare providers actually read the vaccine package inserts with the long lists of known adverse effects or read the licensing studies, which likely were performed by the very manufacturers themselves? Conflict of interest? They have harmed people of all ages and are liability-free for manufacturers and providers. Most vaccine providers and government officials don't bother to learn any of this and merely regurgitate the Pharma-friendly sales pitches of "safety" and "efficacy" by Pharma-captured agencies of CDC and FDA. Turn off your Pharma-funded TV programming, and view with skepticism your Pharma-funded medical journals.

The mRNA vaccine platform has introduced a new level of hazard to health and the revelations about SV40 being detected in COVID vaccines is especially alarming--we now have an explosion of "turbo cancer" among the COVID-vaccinated. Look up researcher Kevin McKernan and the scientists around the world who are corroborating his findings. Learn from the millions of vaccine-injured people around the world about how they learned the hard way to question vaccine safety and efficacy.

We need to investigate who in government and media has their fingers in the lucrative Pharma pie and hold them accountable for their roles in this travesty.

I oppose this bill as I believe in the freedom to practice my religion freely & to adhere to its teachings. As a Christian we believe that our bodies are a temple therefore we should have the right to exemptions when it comes to immunizations. I should have the freedom to choose not to put what I believe to be toxic chemicals in my body without having a liability imposed on me.

It is with strong objection to HB1118 that I implore you to vote against this. This bill takes away our rights as Americans - for freedom. Freedom, religious freedom, bodily choice, our decision over our own bodies & those we care & are responsible for. Our choice, as concerned & loving parents, to make an informed choice for our children's bodies (until they are able to make an informed decision on their own). Not all vaccines are 100% effective & without irreparable side effects. If vaccines were 100% safe & effective, we would be able to hold the pharmaceutical companies liable. However, these powerful drug companies incentivize many government officials & others to do their bidding & "force" more & more shots. When does it end? Please do a study on why autism has sky rocketed & our children are suffering. If we look back 50 years, the number of mentally challenged, behavioral problems, & unhealthy children were far & few. I'm not a scientist, but the simple fact is the number of shots "required" for children have increased by A LOT. I sincerely hope you hear the people of Hawaii's voices & concerns over this over reaching bill. Please do not take away our freedom - our choice. Thank you.

This mandate has nothing to do with maintaining the health of our children. It is instead, an engrose infringement on our religious rights and our rights as US citizens. As a parent, it is my responsibility to ensure my children stay safe and healthy, through diet, vitamin supplementation and excersise. It is not the governments responsibility to force their beliefs on "we, the people". I have 2, very healthy, teenage boys that are exemplary students at their highschool. Neither have ever recieved any vaccinations, and have gotten through every "sick" season of their lives better than most. They rarely get sick, thanks to our healthy practices and the grace of God. If you feel removing them from school for the remainder of their duration will help their physical and mental health, you are creating a much larger problem. As for the small percentage of children who have medical reasons for being unable to be vaccinated, their parents must figure out which route is best for them. If 1 person out of every 100 in a population is severely allergic to dogs, the answer is not to remove dogs from every home. Instead, that 1% will need to be weary and live accordingly. I ask that you vote down this mandate and leave medical decisions in the hands of the families. I assure you, if this madate goes through, you will be forcebly removing thousands of healthy children from public schools around the state of Hawaii. This is not a decision that should be taken lightly.

Comments: Aloha Chair and Committee Members, I am writing in strong opposition to HB1118. This bill is government overreach. It threatens our fundamental rights; our right to bodily autonomy, our right to make medical decisions based on our own beliefs, and our right as parents to protect our children. This bill disrespects our personal choices. It ignores the fact that every body is different, that medical treatments come with risks, and that no one, especially the government, should have the power to force those risks on anyone. Speaking from a medical professional standpoint, this bill completely goes against "patient rights." It goes against informed consent. The right to give or withhold consent to treatment. The right to participate in decisions about my care and my children's care. The right to refuse treatment. Medical decisions are personal. Every medical treatment, including vaccines, carries a risk of adverse effects; neurological issues, autoimmune disorders, long-term health complications. Those risks may be rare, but for the families affected, they are life-changing. The government has no right to decide that some level of risk is "acceptable" for someone else's child. That decision belongs to the parents, to the families, to the people who will actually live with the consequences. HB1118 also tramples on religious freedom. Many in our community hold deep spiritual and religious beliefs that guide their medical choices. These beliefs should be honored, not dismissed by politicians who think they know better. No law should ever force someone to violate their faith to comply with a government mandate. This is about more than just one bill. If we allow this level of government control over our personal health decisions, where does it stop? What else will they decide they have the right to force on us? My children are not the property of the state. Parents, not lawmakers, should be the ones making these choices. I urge you to stand with the families of Hawaii. Protect our rights, our freedom, and our children. Vote NO on HB1118. Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Rep Gregg Takayama and the Committee on Health,

I am OPPOSED to HB1118. Parents have the right and responsibility to make medical and health decisions for their own children. No government or private institution should control or take away that right. The due process clause of the 14th Amendment of the Constitution protects the fundamental right of PARENTS to direct the care, upbringing and education of their children. Parents, NOT the government! God has entrusted the care, stewardship and well being of children to their parents. They are not property of the government and the government does not have the right to impose any law that takes authority away from parents should they choose not to immunize or inject their children's bodies with certain vaccines. HB1118 takes away that fundamental parental right, religious or otherwise, to opt out. That is evil and tyrannical.

Please abide by the Consitution of the United States and do what is right and pono for our children and vote NO on HB1118! Thank you.

Summary of HB1118 (Companion to SB1437, but I still urge you to read it yourself)

Hearing Date: Friday at 8:45 AM

Testimony Deadline: Tomorrow at 8:45 AM

What This Bill Does

- Removes religious exemptions for school immunizations, meaning only medical exemptions will be allowed. (Section 302A-1156)
- Students who already have a religious exemption for the 2024-2025 school year can keep it, but no new religious exemptions will be granted after that. (Section 302A-1156b)

Why This Bill Is Being Proposed

- Hawai‘i’s immunization rates have been declining.
 - In the 2015-2016 school year, 2.5% of students had non-medical exemptions.
 - By 2023-2024, that number had doubled to 5.3% (Page 2).
 - Some schools now have exemption rates over 10% (Page 2).
- Lawmakers argue that high vaccination rates help protect kids who can’t get vaccinated for medical reasons by creating herd immunity (Page 1).

Potential Concerns

- Parental Rights: Some believe parents should have the right to choose whether to vaccinate their children.
- Religious Freedom: Removing religious exemptions could limit personal freedoms.
- Precedent: Some worry this could set a precedent for more medical mandates.
- Public Health: Supporters argue this will help reduce the spread of disease and protect medically vulnerable students.

Key Questions to Consider

- Should the government remove religious vaccine exemptions for school kids?
- Should parents have the right to choose, or should public health take priority?
- Does this bill strike the right balance between individual rights and community safety?

◆ This bill will be heard on Friday at 8:45 AM. Testimony must be submitted by tomorrow at 8:45 AM.

My testimony

Aloha Chair(s), Vice Chair(s), and Members of the Committee,

I am writing to oppose HB1118, which would remove religious exemptions for school vaccinations in Hawai‘i. While I understand that vaccinations help prevent diseases, I believe this bill takes away important rights from parents and families.

1. Parents Should Have a Choice

Parents should have the right to decide what is best for their children. Some families have strong religious or personal beliefs about medical decisions, and they should not be forced to choose between following their beliefs or sending their child to school.

2. Protecting Religious Freedom

In America, we have the right to practice our religion freely. Some families choose not to vaccinate because of their religious beliefs. This bill takes away that choice and does not respect personal faith and values. If the state removes this religious exemption, what other rights could be taken away next?

3. Every Child is Different

Not every child's body reacts the same way to vaccines. While medical exemptions exist, they are very hard to get, even when there are real concerns. Families should not have to fight for basic medical rights when it comes to their children's health.

4. What's Next?

If this bill passes, it sets a dangerous precedent. Today, the government says religious beliefs don't matter when it comes to vaccines. What will they take away next? People should always have the right to make informed decisions for their families.

5. The Impact on Schools & Families

Hawai'i already struggles with school attendance and a high cost of living. If children are not allowed to attend school because their families have religious beliefs against vaccines, more families may be forced to leave Hawai'i. This bill could make things harder for local families who are already struggling.

I believe in keeping people healthy, but we cannot ignore parental rights and religious freedom. Families should not be punished for making medical decisions that align with their beliefs. I strongly urge you to reject HB1118 and protect the rights of Hawai'i families.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Respectfully,

Alika Randazzo

Comments:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB1118, which seeks to repeal non-medical exemptions for school immunization requirements in Hawaii. While I recognize the importance of public health and immunization programs, I believe that eliminating these exemptions would infringe upon fundamental rights and personal freedoms that many families in Hawaii hold dear.

This bill unfairly restricts the ability of parents and guardians to make informed medical decisions for their children. Vaccination decisions should be made based on individual circumstances, religious beliefs, and personal convictions rather than being mandated by the state. The right to bodily autonomy and informed consent is a cornerstone of medical ethics, and this bill undermines those principles by coercing families into compliance under the threat of exclusion from educational institutions.

Additionally, the proposed law does not account for potential adverse reactions to vaccinations, which vary from child to child. Some families choose non-medical exemptions not out of negligence but due to deeply held concerns about the risks associated with certain vaccines. The current system allows for a balanced approach that respects both public health goals and personal choice. Removing non-medical exemptions will likely result in unintended consequences, such as families being forced to homeschool or leave the state to maintain their rights.

Furthermore, data presented in support of this bill does not necessarily indicate a public health crisis requiring such an extreme measure. While immunization rates may have fluctuated, there has not been evidence of widespread outbreaks in Hawaii that would justify eliminating a long-standing exemption. Instead of taking a one-size-fits-all approach, the legislature should consider policies that encourage voluntary immunization through education and outreach rather than coercion.

I urge you to oppose HB1118 and to uphold the rights of Hawaii's families to make personal medical decisions for their children. Thank you for your time and consideration of this critical issue. I respectfully request a response outlining your position on this bill.

Sincerely,

Wayne Asam

Do not remove any religious rights and freedoms for any reason. Specifically in this case, you are forcing families to decide between going against their religious beliefs and getting an unwanted, unneeded and oftentimes unproven vaccine in order to attend a school that their (and my) tax dollars are helping to fund or educate their child in another way. It is up to each parent to decide based on their religious beliefs whether or not to get a certain vaccine for their children.

This bill is taking away our right to choose. My body my choice?? Or does that only pertain to abortions. This bill would be forcing parents to vaccinate their children just to get a education. When California passed this in their state many families moved or homeschooled. Vaccines are not safe for everybody, its not a one size fit all, and when there is a risk there must be a right to choose. Every single vaccine has side effects listed in the vaccine inserts and people do have bad reactions to them. We cant wait until a child gets injured by a vaccine until getting a medical exemption. I am sickened by the fact that our State would want to pass this bill when there is literally no benefits out of this. The only purpose of a vaccine is to weaken the virus to show little to no symptoms. Vaccines do not stop transmission! So the theory of herd immunity is exactly that, 'a theory'. If the state could not guarentee my childs well being after getting a vaccine then they should not be forcing this ultimatum onto the public. Religious exemptions are so important to protect our constitutional rights in this country. The right to choose what we put into our childrens body will be compromised if this bill passes.

I oppose the bill requiring vaccinations for school-aged children, as it undermines both religious freedom and parental choice. Parents should have the right to make medical decisions for their children based on personal beliefs and values. This bill disregards the importance of these freedoms and imposes a one-size-fits-all approach to healthcare, limiting the ability of families to make choices that align with their convictions. I find it very important to safeguard our rights as individuals and parents if we want to preserve a society that values and respects religion and freedom of choice.

As a homegrown Christian educator who has served the families and students of our community for 15 years, to be rejected to have the opportunity to send my child to the very place I have served and poured into because of personal conviction is heartbreaking. I've served through the COVID-19 pandemic, denying vaccinations which did not come without a cost, including relationships, weekly testing, and threats of potential job loss. If I would risk so much for myself, how much more would I risk as a mother?

While I hear the rationale behind protecting medically fragile children, many who I have also served and worked with, my hope is that we would be to find another alternative without stripping religious freedom and personal choice. Advocates of this bill and those who are opposing the bill are not against each, we are two sides of the same coin - both with the desire to protect our children. Let's find another way.

This letter is intened to challenge any and all vaccine requirements based on claims of Religious Exemption for Immunization Requirements as well as religious liberty as set forth in the state and federal laws.

On this basis,immunization requirements violate the right to freely excercise religion as guarenteed by the First Amendment of the Constitution of the United States. I assert that any discrimination will be interpreted as a civil rights violation as protected and guarenteed to U.S citizens and residnets by legislation and by the Constitution.

Please note this submission as my opposition for this bill HB1118. Religious exemptions for vaccines should be allowed for all. This restriction would conflict with the first amendment in our constitution for the right to religious freedom. By no longer allowing religious exemptions for vaccines, this is essentially telling someone they no longer have their right to religious freedom. My name is Lisa Kaulukou and I am a parent and concerned citizen. I STRONGLY OPPOSE HB1118, which seeks to eliminate non-medical exemptions for vaccines in Hawaii. While public health is important, this bill infringes upon individual rights, parental choice, and inform consent-- fundamental principles that should be protected in any democratic society. Removing non-medical exemptions would force families to comply with vaccine mandates, regardless of their deeply, held religious, philosophical, or personal beliefs.

Additionally, Hawaii has historically upheld, bodily autonomy and medical freedom, and removing these exemptions may set a precedent for more government outreach in personal healthcare decisions. It is essential to respect diverse perspectives and ensure that individuals and families can make informed decisions without coercion.

A' ole!!!

I do not support this bill! Just More Gov't control and Overreach! Gov't is NEVER looking out for the peoples best interest and safety!!!

Gov't motto over the past 4 years: Do as I say not as I do.

Example: Covid Vax and Mask Wearing: mandated or else you could not shop, eat at a restaurant, visit loved ones, isolation, 6 feet apart, stop the spread of the virus, there would be no side affects, told the unvaccinated were bad and the problem.

All of which were proven FALSE!!!! Mental health declined and it was proven there were many life threatening adverse effects from the shot and boosters!!! Answer this question...How many kids and adults that didn't take the covid vaccine (unvaccinated) die from covid? And compare that to how many kids and adults that took the vaccine, died or got some side effect from it or a life long side effect.

1/36 children now have autism. Why? Could be the 70+ scheduled vaccines now, could be the food system is being poisoned (artificial and highly processed foods), could be climate change, could be the water, could be anything, but we as people should be able to question everything!!!

So what happened to "my body my choice."? You shouldn't even need an exemption or anything to say I don't need to take a shot. Backwards system. Who are you as a government to say what we as the people, who you work for, should be doing and not doing with our own life and free will?

Make vaccines available but NEVER mandated or forced!!! And if you want to make a bill, make a bill that requires every doctor that administers a vaccine to sign a liability form for every parent and child saying that they the doctor are responsible and will pay for all damages, side effects, and even death of a patient that was administered a vaccine.

I FULLY DO NOT SUPPORT THIS BILL!!! No one should. Freedom of Choice! That is real Democracy!

Thank you!

Aloha

It is appalling to see and hear that our Govenor is forcing people to Vaccinate! What is even more appalling is that parents no longer have the right to choose and decide for their own biological children what is their best interest but government is forcing themselves to decide for us and our children. What is saddest to see is local people leaving their generational home because they no longer trust the system nor trust the government. I thought I belived in a state with good values and ethics, a state with Aloha, too bad its changing. We lost some of that Aloha when it was removed from the airport tower and replaced with a name and it is rare to find Aloha in government leaders. We need to bring back the Law of the Aloha Spirit, Chapter 5 HRS!!! Please do not pass this bill.

Dear Committees Involved,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB1118, which seeks to repeal the non-medical exemption from immunization requirements. While I understand the importance of ensuring public health and safety, I believe this bill undermines the fundamental right of parents to make informed and voluntary decisions regarding the health and well-being of their children.

Vaccination is an important issue, but it is equally important to preserve the personal freedoms of parents to decide what is best for their children. Repealing the non-medical exemption would severely limit parental choice, disregarding individual circumstances, values, and beliefs, whether based on religious, philosophical, or personal grounds.

Parents should have the freedom to make informed decisions about whether to vaccinate their children, considering factors such as family history, potential risks, and their own moral or religious beliefs. Mandating vaccines without the option for non-medical exemptions infringes upon parental rights and individual freedoms, especially when there is no one-size-fits-all solution for health care. Every child’s needs, medical history, and potential risks differ, and the decision should remain in the hands of parents.

Furthermore, the proposed legislation overlooks the fact that many vaccines have risks and side effects, and not all children are able to tolerate them equally. There are parents who have deeply held religious or philosophical objections to certain vaccinations, and repealing this exemption would force them into a position where they are required to make a decision that goes against their beliefs.

While we all agree on the importance of public health, we must strike a balance that also respects personal autonomy and parental rights. Instead of eliminating the non-medical exemption, I encourage the committee to explore alternative approaches, such as improving access to education on vaccination and addressing misinformation, which would allow individuals to make informed decisions based on facts, rather than mandating a blanket policy.

I urge you to reject HB1118 and preserve the right of parents to make choices that they believe are in the best interest of their children. Parents should not be forced to choose between adhering to their values and ensuring that their children can attend school.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I trust you will take these points into account as you move forward in deliberating on this bill.

Sincerely,

Leycia Tabajunda

I OPPOSE bill HB1118. The Governor is out of his mind if he thinks forcing parents to vaccinate their child/children just to attend school. Whatever happened to having a choice? Sorry this is a NO for me!!!

My testimony 02/05/2025

Aloha Chair(s), Vice Chair(s), and Members of the Committee,

I am writing to oppose HB1118, which would remove religious exemptions for school vaccinations in Hawai'i. While I understand that vaccinations help prevent diseases, I believe this bill takes away important rights from parents and families. Besides the fact that the Covid 19 vaccine in particular has many studies proving it's ineffectiveness and it has injured or killed many people is it pure poison and it keeps being pushed which is beyond evil? I'm not against vaccines if they have been studied and proven, I'm against vaccines that are an experiment at the expense of innocent people!

1. Parents Should Have a Choice

Parents should have the right to decide what is best for their children. Some families have strong religious or personal beliefs about medical decisions, and they should not be forced to choose between following their beliefs or sending their child to school.

2. Protecting Religious Freedom

In America, we have the right to practice our religion freely. Some families choose not to vaccinate because of their religious beliefs. This bill takes away that choice and does not respect personal faith and values. If the state removes this religious exemption, what other rights could be taken away next?

3. Every Child is Different

Not every child's body reacts the same way to vaccines. While medical exemptions exist, they are very hard to get, even when there are real concerns. Families should not have to fight for basic medical rights when it comes to their children's health.

4. What's Next?

If this bill passes, it sets a dangerous precedent. Today, the government says religious beliefs don't matter when it comes to vaccines. What will they take away next? People should always have the right to make informed decisions for their families.

5. The Impact on Schools & Families

Hawai'i already struggles with school attendance and a high cost of living. If children are not allowed to attend school because their families have religious beliefs against vaccines, more families may be forced to leave Hawai'i. This bill could make things harder for local families who are already struggling.

I believe in keeping people healthy, but we cannot ignore parental rights and religious freedom. Families should not be punished for making medical decisions that align with their beliefs. I strongly urge you to reject HB1118 and protect the rights of Hawai'i families.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Respectfully,

Jennifer Neumann

Families must have an option to attend school with a religious exemption. Many families will not vaccinate children for many reasons, but one being their faith. We believe that altering our children's micro biome and gut health is directly against our belief that we are made in the image of God, perfectly and according to his will. We also completely oppose abortion, and many vaccines contain aborted feral cells. Both reasons keep us from vaccinating our very healthy children whose immune system we keep healthy by other means, such as solid nutrition void of processed foods. My children deserve to go to school with other children and learn alongside peers.

Comments:

I strongly oppose this bill that seeks to ban religious exemptions for vaccines, as it directly violates fundamental freedoms protected by the Constitution. The principle of conscience, my choice should not be selectively applied. If individuals have the right to make personal medical decisions in other areas of healthcare, they should also have the right to decide whether to receive a vaccine, especially when it conflicts with their deeply held religious beliefs. The government should not have the authority to mandate medical procedures for individuals who, based on their faith, have moral or ethical objections to certain vaccines.

Furthermore, this bill blatantly disregards the separation of church and state. The First Amendment guarantees the free exercise of religion, meaning the government cannot force individuals to act in ways that contradict their faith. By removing religious exemptions, the state is effectively compelling people to violate their sincerely held religious convictions, a direct infringement on their constitutional rights. Many religious groups object to certain vaccines due to their development, testing, or ingredients, and forcing them to comply under threat of penalty is an unjust overreach of governmental power. This bill sets a dangerous precedent, allowing the government to dictate which religious beliefs are acceptable and which are not, undermining the very freedoms that define our nation.

I strongly oppose this bill. This bill takes away rights from parents who are trying to protect their children from unnecessary vaccines, the toxins within them, and any adverse effects they cause. As a nurse, I was forced to be vaccinated with the COVID 19 vaccine in order to remain in nursing school and become an RN, nonetheless, I still got covid twice and am now worried about the adverse effects that may affect me in the future from that vaccine that was forced on me.

Every one of my patients are allowed to decline any medical treatment a Healthcare provider suggests. That is the right of the patient. Why are vaccines treated differently? We should get to make the personal choice on what medical treatments and/or services we receive and should most definitely be able to say no to things we don't want in our body. Every single person is affected differently from treatments and should have a say in their own health. If vaccines are truly effective, why would someone who is vaccinated care or even be affected by someone who is not? The vaccinated person should be protected right? What we learned from the covid vaccine and flu vaccine is that they don't prevent you from getting the flu or covid so why should we be forced to put these in our children's bodies, along with everyone other vaccine and toxic ingredients they are made with? Everyone should have the right to choose, not be forced, and most definitely not judged for whatever they choose to do.

Religious Exemption Testimony

To whom it may concern,

I am writing this letter to formally request opposition from the vaccine/medical treatment/mandate/etc BILL HB1118 due to my sincerely held religious beliefs.

As a devout follower of God, my faith guides every aspect of my life, including my decisions regarding health and medical treatments. My religious beliefs affirm that my body is a temple, and I am called to honor it in accordance with sacred teachings. Specifically,

- Genesis 1:27 “So God created human beings in his own image. In the image of God he created them; male and female he created them.”

Genesis 1:27 NLT

<https://bible.com/bible/116/gen.1.27.NLT>

- John 14:15 “If you love me, obey my commandments.”

John 14:15 NLT

<https://bible.com/bible/116/jhn.14.15.NLT>

- 1 Corinthians 3:16-17 “Don’t you realize that all of you together are the temple of God and that the Spirit of God lives in you?”

1 Corinthians 3:16 NLT

<https://bible.com/bible/116/1co.3.16.NLT>

“God will destroy anyone who destroys this temple. For God’s temple is holy, and you are that temple.”

1 Corinthians 3:17 NLT

<https://bible.com/bible/116/1co.3.17.NLT>

- Philippians 4:6 “Don’t worry about anything; instead, pray about everything. Tell God what you need, and thank him for all he has done.”

Philippians 4:6 NLT

<https://bible.com/bible/116/php.4.6.NLT>

emphasizes the importance of respecting the sanctity of life and bodily integrity. For this reason, I feel spiritually compelled to avoid any interventions that conflict with these principles.

I believe that my relationship with God is deeply personal, and I am guided by divine wisdom to make decisions that align with His will. Any decision that compromises my faith or religious convictions would not only burden my conscience but also contradict my spiritual duty.

I have prayed and reflected earnestly on this matter, seeking guidance from God, and I have come to the clear conviction that by removing the right to choose & receiving the vaccine/treatment/etc. would violate my and my families faith. Therefore, I respectfully request that my sincerely held religious beliefs be honored, and that this bill does not go through.

Thank you for your understanding and for respecting my right to practice my religion freely.

Sincerely,

Xena Santos

Aloha,

I am a pediatric hospitalist here in Hawai‘i, and I am in strong support of this bill. Vaccinations are an extremely necessary part of preventative health for children, and have helped to eliminate some of the deadliest diseases like polio that used to plague our population. Non-medical exemptions have been on the rise, and have been putting the herd immunity of the community at risk as vaccine rates have begun to fall. This puts all children at risk, including those who are unable to be vaccinated due to their ongoing medical conditions. Please consider voting in favor to remove non-religious exemptions.

Mahalo,

Dr. Mari Grief

To the Chairs of the Health Committee-

I am a pediatric and adult ICU physician here in Hawaii. I care for patients when they become critically ill, for any reason. In addition, I have a PhD studying the immunology of infectious diseases, making me uniquely well-qualified to speak on the importance of immunizations. My interest in this is purely medical and scientific; I simply want what's best for the people of Hawaii.

At a fundamental level, non-medical exemptions to immunizations put the keiki of Hawaii at risk. As the number of people immunized for vaccine-preventable illnesses decreases, so too does the number of people who contract those infections increase. Our keiki are the most vulnerable... many are too young for immunizations. While an adult can argue "measles isn't so bad. I had chicken pox when I was younger and I turned out fine," our infants cannot make that argument. So if the number of people immunized against measles or chicken pox decreases, the number of people that contract these infections will increase; while they may recover, what happens when they visit their 9 month old niece and inadvertently infect her? Suddenly, she ends up in my ICU with an illness that could have been prevented if only her family members had elected to be immunized. These are patients I have cared for; it breaks the hearts of healthcare workers (doctors, nurses, pharmacists, respiratory therapists, dieticians, etc) to care for people who are sick with vaccine-preventable illnesses because we know that their illness was, in all likelihood, preventable.

The state should strive to limit barriers to immunizations that are not supported by medical and scientific research, in order to assure that as many people as possible receive immunizations. Doing so reflects a commitment to protecting our population (and especially our keiki) from unnecessary suffering.

Sincerely,

Philip A. Verhoef, MD, PhD, FAAP, FACP, ATSF

Re: HB1118

Report Title: Immunizations; Non-Medical Exemptions; Repeal

Description: Repeals the non-medical exemption from immunization requirements.

Please note that I stand in strong opposition to the passing of this bill. I see this bill was requested by the governor, the purpose appears to override the rights of those parents, guardians etc. who choose not to have their children subjected to unwanted vaccines.

I am sorry, however the governor being an MD, does not mean he has all the answers. There are and have been physicians, research teams and projects who have had opposing views on many of these vaccines, many of whom have been censored! Why?

We the people have the right to all information provided by these resources and then we have the right to make the decision for ourselves and our children.

This bill reflects that whole section protecting those right have been eliminated.

line 21 (b) Any child attending school who had an approved 22 religious exemption from required immunizations for the 2024-

line 1 2025 school year shall be permitted to remain exempt while 2 continuing to attend school in Hawaii.

Again, what happens going forward? Will this religious exemption no longer be an option?

Pg 9 lines 6-15 ... appears that exemption (non-medical) will not long be an option, no longer allowed!

Based on this, I strongly ask that you not move this bill forward

Respectfully,
Rita Kama-Kimura

Strongly oppose this bill. People should have autonomy over their own bodies and health as well as parents over their minor children's body and health. Parents are solely held responsible for providing necessary care for the whole well being of their children, therefore anything health related should be left to the discretion of the parent. Eliminating religious exemptions is disregarding and discriminating against some religions, walks of faith, and their practices. Students should NOT be forced to take vaccinations to attend PUBLIC school or ANY school. Public education should not deny any student from their education for their vaccination choices and status, and parents who pay for their child's private education should not be held to medical requirements in order for their student to receive education.

Aloha

i appreciate you all taking the time to hear my testimony. As a Native Hawaiian it is important for everyone who is a government official to remember where you are and the honor the space in which you inhabit. The land is our ancestors and embedded in the land is knowledge and wisdom contained in plant form and used as medicine. For many Hawaiians prior to missionaries inhabiting Hawaii, our religion consisted of connection to many Gods not just one and was deeply spiritual. The focus was on ola pono which was balance and harmony with self, others and land and spirit. With this balance the health and well-being of the people was healthy and balanced. For many of us Hawaiians the trauma that we have endured due to colonization and western settlers continues to perpetuate the imbalance in our health and bodies. Taking away our religious exemptions would affect the health and well being of many native Hawaiians and others who believe that well being is also connected to a spiritual aspect as well. I ask that you please remember where you are and know that the mana and spirit realm that is embedded in these islands should be a large focus of discussion for why taking away this exemption is not Pono and does not represent aloha for all why are deeply connected spiritually and believe in practices that don't include vaccinations. It should be a choice given just like how religion is a choice in Hawaii. So I highly oppose this bill and mahalo for your time.

Currently, there are many adults and teen deaths associated with the injections, even though many of them are young and healthy. These injections have not proven that they are safe as they are still experimental.

On February 5, 2022. Dr. Reiner Fuellmich from Germany heads a team of 1100 attorneys and over and over 10,000 medical experts from around the world in a legal proceedings against WHO world representatives for crimes against humanity. These experts will also bring up evidences that these representatives are violating the Nuremberg Code.

We know many doctors and other experts are attempting to express their extreme concerns through many alternate social media of the dangers, the severe side effects and deaths of many people around the world. These experts are taking the information through those medias because they have faced that the controlled mainstream media will not report the truth to the general public.

I am against any injections that are being considered for these young children who don't have a voice and parents who are facing the governmental mandates (not laws). Parents are the final say in their child(ren)'s rights for health and their religious belief should be recognized under the Constitution.

The First Amendment of the United States Constitution protects the freedom of religion through the Establishment Clause and the Free Exercise Clause. These clauses prohibit the government from establishing a national religion or interfering with a person's right to practice their religious beliefs.

I opposed the passing of HB1118.

I STRONGLY OPPOSE, HB1118. It is NOT up to the government, society, or even my peers to choose for me and my children what they simply believe is right for us. This bill, HB1118 is without consent and it takes away liberties.

Religion is not just something we believe in half heartedly and/or part time participation. Our faith is not so easy to relinquish nor is it dismissive. I believe there are ways to keep strong and healthy and natural ways to boost your immune system by feeding yourself the right foods. God created food and saw that it was good. He is the only one who truly has a say over my life as he is the one who gave me life. This bill, HB1118, is a direct attack on my religion and the right to healthy boundaries. However, I will not allow any boundaries to be crossed, especially not this bill HB1118.

In conclusion, I will not entrust the medical decisions of my life and the lives of my children to the decision and authority of one man, Josh Green. Nor can one say that their way is the only way. Jesus is the way, the truth and the life.

The Honorable Committee Chair

Dear Representative Takayama,

I humbly ask that you oppose HB1118.

Though it may seem to put the public's best interests at heart, in fact, it could prove to be highly detrimental, dangerous, and discriminatory for the individual residents of our great state.

Detrimental because a blanket law such as this leaves no alternative for those patients whose care requires an alleviation from vaccines.

Dangerous because the governor appears to marginalize those who seek to maintain religious, spiritual or faith practice. Is this not part of the freedom for which we seek to honor? The freedom to choose medical practices for one's own body?

Finally, one can only wonder at the possible and probably discriminatory charges to be brought against the state, wasting taxpayer money and losing the trust of a large portion of the responsible citizens of our land.

I humbly ask you and the committee to consider carefully these ramifications. Please protect the right of those who have placed you in office and vote no on HB1118.

Mahalo nui,

Melissa Scott

VERY STRONGLY OPPOSE!!!

RE: HB1118 & SB1437

I'm appalled at the idea that govt yet again wants to take away individual rights and freedoms having to do with our own bodies and those of our children's bodies and health.

There is mounting evidence that the covid and numerous other vaxes and medical interventions have caused immense harm or death to children. The information is out there if you choose to find it.

The vaccine schedule has ballooned over the years, pushed along by big pharmaceutical companies and their bottom line.

Our elected officials are representative employees of the people - NOT big pharma or corporations! Pharmaceutical companies were previously given liability protection. Are Gov. Green and any of our Hawaii govt. members ready to take on personal liability for any child that is harmed in any way after being pressured into getting vaccines they or their parents may not want. I'm guessing NOT! This harm may show up years down the road, due to the products in the vaccines. I understand that Dr.'s are given VERY little vaccine education in medical school, so obviously there is a lot more to learn about them, especially from parents of the thousands of injured or deceased children.

If individuals and parents, after having a FULL informed consent of the product, decide they do not want immunizations given for whatever reason, religious included, then that should be their decision. Govt should NOT dictate a medical decision for them.

PLEASE DO NOT REMOVE PARENT'S OR PEOPLE'S RIGHTS TO OPT OUT OF ANY OF THEIR CHILDREN'S or THEIR OWN VACCINES TO ATTEND SCHOOL ETC.

Thank you

I do not support this bill.

Dear House Representatives Gregg Takayama and Sue L. Keohokapu-Lee Loy,

I am writing to express my strong support for HB1118, a bill that seeks to remove the non-medical exemption for school entry immunization requirements in Hawai'i. This bill is a crucial step towards safeguarding the health and well-being of our children and the broader community.

Removing non-medical exemptions for school immunizations will help ensure high vaccination rates, which are essential for maintaining herd immunity and protecting those who cannot be vaccinated for medical reasons. The ongoing opposition to this bill underscores the need for informed dialogue and policy decisions based on scientific evidence and public health principles.

The recent outbreaks of vaccine-preventable diseases in various parts of the country serve as a stark reminder of the importance of vaccination. By eliminating non-medical exemptions, we can help prevent such outbreaks and protect vulnerable populations, including infants, the elderly, and those with compromised immune systems.

I believe that HB1118 is a vital measure to uphold the health and safety of our school communities. I urge you to support this bill and help ensure that all children in Hawai'i have the best possible protection against preventable diseases.

As a community pediatric doctor who is dedicated to the well-being of children, I believe that HB1118 is a vital measure to uphold the health and safety of our school communities. I urge you to support this bill and help ensure that all children in Hawai'i have the best possible protection against preventable diseases.

Thank you for your attention to this important matter.

Sincerely,

Arlene Parubrur Kiyohara, MD

Aloha,

I oppose this bill because it takes away our rights as parents and human beings to decide what is right for our children and ourselves. There is NOT enough data from Vaccines to say they are effective and safe enough for everyone. You guys take no responsibility if something bad was to happen due to vaccine effects. There is a lot of mercury and aluminum in vaccines and shouldn't be required for everyone to take and you have no right to take away our rights as parents and religious and non medical exemptions. If something happens to our child due to vaccinations then you guys and the pharmaceutical company should take full 100% responsibility but that is not the case. Stop forcing parents to take poison that there is barely any research on for effectiveness! Just Because you think it's right. You have no business forcing vaccinations! You have no right to take away our choices as parents and people. If I don't want me or my child to get vaccinated then me and my child shouldn't have to get vaccinated just because the government says so! Unbelievable vaccines aren't all effective and not all vaccines are safe for every person! Do more research and don't take parents rights away and our right to make choices for our children and ourselves. Look at what happen to covid vaccine day it's safe then switch up and say it's not effective and haven't done that much research on it. I strongly OPPOSE DO NOT TAKE AWAY OUR RIGHTS TO BE FREE FROM VACCINATION MANDATES AND FORCING THE PEOPLE AGAINST THEIR WILL! It's not right!

Aloha,

Today I write in strong opposition to HB 1118. The removal of religious exemptions for vaccination is an abuse of power and a gross over reach that denies individuals the right to religious freedom. Individuals who believe the processes in which some medical procedures are researched, developed and implemented as immoral (due to the use of aborted fetal cells, animal testing, etc.) should continue to have the right to decline such procedures for themselves and their underage children. To force people to undergo such procedures against their beliefs will compromise thier mind, body, spirit connection and could likely lead to poorer health outcomes. These poor health outcomes could significantly cost our state, further decreasing productivity and economic activity.

Religious beliefs should be respected as is stated in the US constitution. The state should not coerce individuals to vaccinate themselves or their children nor impose punitive measures on those that choose not to.

Samantha Gomes

Religious exemptions allow families to make decisions about what is going into their children's bodies, and all taking them away is going to do is push people away from public schools. It's not going to make schools safer. If anything, it will likely increase incidents of vaccine injury, for which pharmaceutical companies are not liable. This is simply unfair to force one particular belief as a requirement for enrollment in schools, which are funded by all our taxpayer money. It feels persecution.

Aloha Chair(s), Vice Chair(s), and Members of the Committee,

I am writing to oppose HB1118, which seeks to remove religious exemptions for school vaccinations in Hawai'i. While I recognize the role vaccinations play in disease prevention, this bill undermines fundamental parental rights and religious freedoms.

1. Parental Choice Matters

Parents should have the right to make informed medical decisions for their children. For families with deeply held religious or personal beliefs, this bill forces them into an unfair choice: compromising their faith or accessing education.

2. Protecting Religious Freedom

Religious freedom is a cornerstone of American values. For families who decline vaccinations based on their faith, removing this exemption infringes on their constitutional rights. If this exemption is eliminated, what other freedoms might be at risk next?

3. Recognizing Individual Health Needs

Every child's medical situation is unique. While medical exemptions exist, they are extremely difficult to obtain, even for children with legitimate health concerns. Families should not have to fight for the right to make personalized medical decisions for their children.

4. Setting a Concerning Precedent

If this bill passes, it sets a dangerous precedent by allowing the government to override religious and parental rights. Today, it's vaccines—what restrictions might follow in the future? The right to make informed health choices should always be preserved.

5. Impact on Schools & Families

Hawai'i already faces challenges with school attendance and affordability. If children are excluded from school due to their families' religious beliefs, more families may feel compelled to leave the state, further straining local communities.

While public health is important, it should not come at the cost of parental rights and religious liberty. Families should not be penalized for making medical decisions that align with their faith and values. I strongly urge you to reject HB1118 and uphold the rights of Hawai'i families.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Respectfully,
Alyssa

Dear Legislators,

I am writing in opposition of HB1118 to repeal religious exemptions of vaccinations.

The US Supreme Court held in *Frazee V. Aloha Chair(s), Vice Chair(s), and Members of the Committee,

I am writing to oppose HB1118, which would remove religious exemptions for school vaccinations in Hawai‘i. While I understand that vaccinations help prevent diseases, I believe this bill takes away important rights from parents and families.

1. Parents Should Have a Choice

Parents should have the right to decide what is best for their children. Some families have strong religious or personal beliefs about medical decisions, and they should not be forced to choose between following their beliefs or sending their child to school.

2. Protecting Religious Freedom

In America, we have the right to practice our religion freely. Some families choose not to vaccinate because of their religious beliefs. This bill takes away that choice and does not respect personal faith and values.

3. Every Child is Different

Not every child’s body reacts the same way to vaccines. For example, there are genetic mutations that go undetected which make metabolizing adjuvants etc more slowly, if at all. While medical exemptions exist, they are very hard to get, even when there are real concerns such as these genetic mutations, which are only available out of pocket at significant expense to detect in a child's particular genome. Families should not have to fight for basic medical rights when it comes to their children’s health.

6. The Impact on Schools & Families

Hawai‘i already struggles with school attendance and a high cost of living. If children are not allowed to attend school because their families have religious beliefs against vaccines, more families will leave Hawai‘i. This bill could make things harder for local families who are already struggling.

I believe in keeping people healthy, but we cannot ignore parental rights and religious freedom. Families should not be punished for making medical decisions that align with their beliefs. I strongly urge you to reject HB1118 and protect the rights of Hawai'i families. There are only six other states that have eliminated the right to religious exemption, one of which has overturned this in the past year in court. If aiming to educate parents on vaccines, the state could choose to offer the existing religious exemptions with mandatory educational class or videos, which is the case in other states. Let's remember as well that the recent measles outbreak in Hawaii occurred amongst fully vaccinated individuals which calls in to question both the efficacy as well as the aforementioned safety concerns, in addition to the egregious disregard of personal and religious freedoms.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Respectfully,

Kate

To Whom It May Concern,

I respectfully submit this statement of faith for a Constitutionally recognized and protected religious exemption against any mandatory injection/vaccine. Based on my understanding of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act and the First Amendment to the United States Constitution, and other federal and state laws, we choose to exercise our right to demand our right to a religious exemption for our children against any requirements regarding vaccinations. This demand for an exemption is based on my deeply held religious beliefs pursuant to my reliance on teachings in the Holy Bible.

The Bible very clearly states that the body is the Temple of the Holy Spirit. We are commanded to take good care of it, not to defile it, and certainly not introduce something into it that could potentially harm it (1 Corinthians 3:16-17, 1 Corinthians 6:19-20, 2 Corinthians 5:10, and 2 Corinthians 7:1). These vaccines (by the very disclosure of the vaccine manufacturers) contain carcinogens, neurotoxins, animal viruses, animal blood, allergens, and heavy metals. I do not believe it would be right for me to introduce these substances into my body or the body of my children because they have not sufficiently been proven to me to be safe and effective. Rather, I believe they may be harmful to my body.

Additionally, the Constitution grants and protects every American citizen the God-given right to make our own medical decisions. The Declaration of Independence recognizes rights are God-given. God commands me to glorify Him with my body — and not give it to the government. First, the Ninth Amendment states, “The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.” The Constitution does not grant the power or authority to the federal government to compel private citizens take medical treatments — especially not as a category. Therefore, I reserve this right.

Second, federal laws protects my choosing to disclose private medical decisions (Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act). Numerous legal and financial penalties exist for entities violating this law. Mandating vaccination as a condition of employment and or school acceptance implies I disclose medical information and is a violation of federal law for discrimination.

Taking away our right to a religious exemption is, to me, contrary to Biblical teachings, my faith in Jesus Christ, the specific powers granted the federal government, and existing federal law. It is unlawful to segregate people according to their skin color. It is unlawful to compel Jews to eat pork. It is also unlawful to compel personal medical decisions of citizens. My religious beliefs are sincere. Legally, I cannot be required to prove that a church or religious leader agrees with my sincere religious beliefs, or my interpretation of Scripture, or my instruction from the Holy Spirit. My beliefs are my own, and they are sincerely and deeply held.

Therefore I strongly OPPOSE HB1118

It is often taken for granted that our bodies have an incredible ability to protect and heal itself from diseases, sicknesses, injuries, etc... Thanks to the introduction of sanitation and clean water, our immune systems have been given the ultimate opportunity to thrive with the support of eating healthy food. Our immune systems are so complex that not even the surface has been scratched at understanding it as a whole.

In my religion as a Christian, I believe that God has designed our bodies perfectly. I also believe that we are not supposed to know everything about how it all works. That is called faith. Based on my faith in God and the body He has given me, I believe vaccinations are a defiance against God and his design. I see vaccinations as hedging bets against our immune systems that can do the job of protecting our bodies as God designed it. What I am NOT against is therapeutics and pain relievers that provide relief while the immune system heals a body.

I am a law abiding citizen and faithfully pay my taxes to the city and state on time. My children should not be denied an education because our religious faith does not align with the views of politicians or doctors. While our current government is so proudly pushing diversity in all other life aspects, religious discrimination is the most egregious. While other religious individuals may believe in vaccines, my faith and beliefs are specific to me and my family, not a decision of a religion or church. Our nation was built on a foundation of religion and should always be remembered and respected as such. Diversity has always been engrained in Hawaii's culture but If we are pushing diversity as an ideology it must include all aspects of life, not cherry picked. Especially in the case of vaccines where they are proven to NOT be 100% safe and effective.

My children do not have any allergies, auto-immune dysfunctions, or behavioral issues. They get sick but recover very quickly because we feed them a quality, healthy diet.

Please allow the religious exemptions to remain in place.

Thank you

I oppose this bill because we should have the RIGHT to make our own decisions for our selves and family. This is a violation of our rights. Why are you trying to control our lives and our bodies. This is wrong to humanity and those who are trying to support this bill KNOWS THAT. You are all in it for monetary profit and not for the benefit of the people of Hawaii that you are supposed to represent. If you are for the people then LISTEN to the people. THIS IS WRONG. Side effects to immunizations are HARMFUL and often times non reversible. This is not the way that God made us. He made us perfect in his image. I will not support this bill. I OPPOSE BILL HB1118!

Comments:

I know my voice doesn't matter. I testified with over 700 other people in opposition to HAR 11-157 in 2018 and saw the rule changed despite only 12 testimonies in support. You will do what you want as our betters - I am under no illusion otherwise.

Just know that when you make rules forcing people to choose ALL vaccines or NO vaccines (like Hawaii religious exemptions currently do) you will radicalize the people that only opposed one or two.

When you remove people's voices by changing a rule to bypass the legislature every time you want to add a vaccine to the schedule (like you did in 2018 with HAR 11-157) you radicalize those of us who thought you were our representatives, who thought if we spent enough time explaining our concerns you could see the issue without bias.

When you ban people from travel and entering certain public spaces when they refuse to be vaccinated with an experimental product that does not create sterilizing immunity - they begin to question why you are making the decisions you do.

When you decide that only one type of "immunity" is acceptable and recovering from an illness or showing a titer test no longer qualifies as sufficient, it starts to feel like your basing your decisions on factors that are more ideological than scientific.

Your decision to pass this bill would not change a single mind in regard to vaccines, it would only isolate and radicalize a growing number of your constituents who are tired of being coerced, gaslit, and ultimately steamrolled.

It will only force more parents to opt out of public education.

It will undoubtedly add immense pressure to doctors from desperate parents (mostly the poorest) seeking medical exemptions because their feelings on basic bodily autonomy / conscience objection no longer matters - but cannot afford alternative education. This will of course lead to the persecution of doctors who are too "loose" with the amount of medical exemptions they give out (always wanting to follow in California's footsteps unfortunately).

It will only feed the growing discontent of the many of us who felt abandoned long ago to look at all of the other (even otherwise potentially valuable to us) work you do with suspicion and disdain.

That will be the cost.

Don't be ignorant to this reality.

I oppose this Bill HB1118. As a parent we should have the right to choose whether to vaccinate my child or not. We have the right / freedom to practice our Constitution. Also, removing religious exemptions could limit personal freedoms. This bill does not respect religious beliefs. Don't we live in America? The land of the free?!

Parents who choose not to have their children vaccinated are supported through verses in the Bible. It is up to parents to care for their children's welfare, according to 1 Timothy 5:8. Parents have every right legally and by religious beliefs to make decisions on behalf of their children, and not the state.

I humbly ask and pray please remove this bill.

If i fed my children the ingredients that are in these vaccines you would say i am poisoning my child, so what gives you the right to force me to inject my children with such poisons?!

Aloha,

I wanted to submit testimony in favor of HB1118. As a mother of school aged children I would like to know my children are as safe as possible, especially after seeing the devastation of what happened in Samoa with a small drop in vaccine rates. On social media mom groups the topic of finding doctors who do not vaccinate and schools that accept "religious exemptions" and how to go about getting "religious" exception are posted about almost daily, leading to what feels like a lot of people are forgoing vaccination and seemingly falsely claiming religious reasons.

With the possible selection of RFK Jr. the federal government doesn't seem to be trying to protect our keiki. I appreciate the state of Hawaii still looking out for the best of its citizens.

Mahalo for your time and consideration,

Christine Jaworski

Comments:

I oppose this bill for multiple reasons/

1. Religious Freedom: The bill infringes on the constitutional right to religious freedom by forcing families to choose between their deeply held beliefs and public education. Religious exemptions have historically protected diverse beliefs, and removing them sets a concerning precedent.

2. Public Funding and Parental Rights: Public schools are funded by taxpayers, including those who oppose mandatory vaccinations on religious or philosophical grounds. It is unjust to exclude their children from education based on compliance with policies that conflict with their beliefs.

3. Lack of Evidence for Increased Risk: While the bill cites rising exemption rates from 2015 to 2024, it does not provide evidence of corresponding outbreaks or heightened public health risks during this period. This suggests that the increase in exemptions has not significantly compromised herd immunity or increased disease prevalence.

4. National Trends: Other states like West Virginia and Mississippi have recently reinstated religious exemptions, reflecting growing public support for such policies. Hawaii's proposal would make it an outlier, disregarding this broader cultural shift.

5. Potential Conflict of Interest: It is worth noting that Governor Josh Green, a key proponent of this legislation, has received campaign donations from pharmaceutical companies, including vaccine manufacturers such as Pfizer. This raises concerns about potential conflicts of interest and whether the bill prioritizes public health or aligns with corporate interests. Transparency and impartiality are essential when crafting policies that impact constitutional rights and public trust.

Thank you.

I oppose HB1118 which seeks to remove my Constitutional Rights and Religious Freedoms as an American citizen to decline vaccinations I do not wish to put in my body! I am not against vaccinations that have been proven effective over many years; however, people should have a right to invoke their religious freedom and be able to decline the vaccination for their children and themselves should they see fit!! Our United States Constitutional Rights alone gives us the right to decline putting anything in our bodies we don't agree with or just plain don't want, especially vaccines that have not been studied, tested, etc., and have not been proven effective with no or very low risk of adverse reactions. I will decide what goes in my body not the Government!

We, Seth and Autumn Parker, as the parents of Liam, Emma and Zoey, are asking you to vote NO to House Bill 1118 and protect our rights under the US constitution to receive Religious Exemption from vaccination due to our genuine and sincere beliefs which are contrary to the practices which are herein required.

The US Supreme Court held in Frazee V. Illinois Dept. of Security, 489 US 829, that a religious belief is subject to protection even though no religious group espouses such beliefs or the fact that the religious group to which the individual professes to belong may not advocate or require such belief. This ruling is also reflected in Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 as amended Nov. 1, 1980; Part 1605.1- Guidelines on Discrimination Because of Religion.

The following are ways in which these violations manifest themselves in the vaccinations recommended by the Center for Disease Control.

The use of cells, cellular debris, protein, and DNA from willfully aborted human children found in Adenovirus, Polio, DTaP/Polio/HiB Combo, Hep A, Hep A/Hep B Combo, MMR, MMRV Pro Quad, Rabies, Varicella, and the Shingles vaccines violate the very basic commands found in Exodus 20:13 and Deuteronomy 5:15 which instructs us to not murder. The following ingredients were derived from no fewer than 107 human souls who were sacrificed for social reasons and then used in past and ongoing vaccine research: PER C6, HEK293, WI-38 (RA 27/3), WI-1, WI-2, WI-3, WI-4, WI-5, WI-6, WI-7, WI-8, WI-9, WI-10, WI-11, WI-12, WI-13, WI-14, WI-15, WI-16, WI-17, WI-18, WI-19, WI-20, WI-21, WI-22, WI-23, WI-24, WI-25, WI-26, WI-27, WI-38, WI-44, and MCR-5 plus many other ingredients obtained from human children not required to be listed by FDA guidelines. Supporting vaccinations and vaccination developments is an endorsement of the sacrifice of those and the continuing sacrifice of other human souls.

Genesis 4:1, 17 and Jeremiah 1:5 demonstrate that the deceased children used in the aforementioned vaccinations were recognized by God as human souls from the point of conception in the same way that we, as parents, recognized our child as a human from the moment we were aware of his/her presence in his/her mother's wombs.

Genesis 1:27 - 28, 4:1, 2 Kings 17:17-18, Psalm 22:10-11, 106: 35, 37-38, 113:7-9, 127:3, 139:13-16, Amos 1:13, Matthew 18:1-4, and Matthew 19:13-15 are just a few verses that illustrate the aforementioned children as blessings from God that are valued and loved by him, their Creator, in whose image they were created and that their killing is condemned and causes God's destructive anger to burn against their murderers and those complicit in those murders.

Exodus 20:13, Leviticus 18:21 & 20:2-5, Deuteronomy 5:13, 12:30-32, 18:10, 2 Kings 16:3, and Psalm 106:38 illustrate that all child sacrifice is condemned with no exception clauses allowing for the greater good or public exception clauses found anywhere in the sacred scriptures.

1 Corinthians 6:19-20 and 10:31 remind us that we are to regard our bodies as temples of God's Holy Spirit and that we are to honor God, our Creator and possessor of our very bodies by not defiling them. Notwithstanding the presence of socially sacrificed human cells and debris in vaccinations, we firmly believe that the presence of neurotoxins, hazardous substances, attenuated viruses, animal cells, foreign DNA, albumin from human blood, carcinogens, and chemical wastes is in strict violation of our imperative to treat our bodies as holy temples of the very Spirit of God.

Genesis 9:4, Leviticus 17:10-11, 17:14, Deuteronomy 12:23, Acts 15:20 and 29 informs us that blood represents the life force of human and animal species and that human blood was to be kept pure under all circumstances and free from contaminants such as animal cells, parts, and blood.

We thank you that you will continue to respectfully adhere to our first amendment rights guaranteed as citizens of the United States of America by her great Constitution and reinforced on a state level by the fourteenth amendment without prejudice. Please we urge you to vote NO on House Bill 1118 and any other bill targeted at stripping away our religious freedom and our God given right as parents to choose what gets injected into their perfect bodies.

Thank you for your time,

Seth & Autumn Parker

I oppose House Bill 1118. It is a clear violation of Title 7 of the US Constitution. And the Governor is pursuing this as a part of his own personal agenda. It is clear that Green is in support of vaccines, especially the ones he makes a profit from. There are public records and proof of his monetary profit from pharmaceutical companies. I think it is in the best interest of the House and Senate to take that into account when looking to pass this legislature that Green has introduced. If he really cared for the people of Hawaii, he would allow us the free will to make our own decisions. Especially as a Doctor whom swore an oath, to care for people and not let his personal bias get in the way of ANY decisions that patients make.

Again, I oppose HB1118. And if this legislature does make it pass the house you all will have a plethora of lawsuits in violation of the Constitution's Title 7. We are ready to take legal action if and when you chose to make that violation.

As a resident of Hawaii, I am writing to oppose HB1118, a bill looking to get rid of religious exemptions to vaccines.

The Fourth Amendment, which protects against unreasonable searches and seizures, has been applied to bodily integrity, meaning that non-consensual medical procedures can be seen as unconstitutional intrusions. Additionally, the Fourteenth Amendment's Due Process Clause protects personal liberty and privacy, which courts have interpreted to include the right to make decisions about one's own body and medical care.

Key Supreme Court cases have clarified these constitutional protections. For example, in Rochin v. California (1952), the Court ruled that forcibly pumping a suspect's stomach to obtain evidence violated the Due Process Clause. In Cruzan v. Director, Missouri Department of Health (1990), the Court recognized a competent person's constitutional right to refuse medical treatment.

Additionally, the idea that the state of Hawaii would trample the religious and individual freedom of parents and children to make medical decisions, like vaccines, is appalling. Vaccine manufactures have immunity from the US government for their vaccine products. Therefore, mandating these products when they have a shield from lawsuits places no restrictions on the pharmaceutical companies. When the Covid-19 vaccine was mandated there was a major uptick in adverse events. VAERS receives around 30,000 to 50,000 reports per year for all vaccines combined. However, with the rollout of COVID-19 vaccines, the system experienced an unprecedented surge, with over 1.7 million reports related to COVID-19 vaccines by mid-2021. Who is responsible for the injuries these people have received? With the Pharmaceutical companies immune, it has become the role of the Federal government to discern who is really injured. If the government mandates vaccines, tracks vaccines and then does the payouts for injuries it doesn't protect individual liberty regarding medical decisions. The government is then not in the role of protecting vulnerable people (those who become injured) but in silencing those who speak out against possible harm.

One of the adjuvants used in vaccines is aluminum. Aluminum is a heavy metal that when injected can be expelled from the body. However, when injected has the potential to accumulate in the body. When a child is given over 75 vaccines before the age of 5 years old, thats a lot of aluminum that can have detrimental health effects that need to be studied more extensively.

Finally, vaccine science has relied heavily on the use of fetal tissue cells from aborted fetuses. The fetal fibroblast cells used to grow vaccine viruses were first obtained from elective termination of two pregnancies in the early 1960s. These same fetal cells obtained from the early 1960s have continued to grow in the laboratory and are used to make vaccines today. Even if fetal cells aren't in the final vaccines given today, they have been used to develop vaccines past and present. Many pro-life Americans do not support this practice and should not be forced to use a medical product that has used aborted material for development. This goes against the consciences of Hawaii residents.

I hope the legislature will sincerely rethink this bill and vote NO on HB1118 to ensure the residents of Hawaii keep their bodily autonomy and freedom intact. Mahalo for your time.

Aloha, I'm a family Nurse Practitioner with medical opinions on immunizations, however as a practitioner it is also equally important to provide cultural and religious sensitive care. If certain belief systems oppose medical interventions it should not be a decision the state denies. We honor various medical religious exemptions such as no blood transfusions for Jehovah Witness, regardless if medically benefiting the patient. It is our duty to provide informed care, but we should never force patients or shame families to treat against their beliefs. Schools are not in more danger by denying this exemption. If the current students are already vaccinated, then the idea is they are considered safe and immune. I understand there are immunocompromised individuals, however we also screen for sick kids frequently in school and have isolation precautions in place. If this is a decision a family wants to take based on their belief that should be left up to them.

To the esteemed members of the committee,

I write this before you today to express my firm opposition to the bill currently under consideration. As a parent, I hold a profound belief in the fundamental rights of mothers and fathers to make informed decisions regarding what enters the bodies of our children. This responsibility is not merely a privilege; it is an essential aspect of our roles as guardians and nurturers.

The autonomy of parents to choose the best path for their children is rooted in both our ethical and cultural values. Each family possesses unique beliefs, traditions, and practices that shape our understanding of health and well-being. It is imperative that we honor this diversity by allowing parents the freedom to decide what is best for their children without undue interference from the state.

Moreover, I urge you to consider the importance of religious exemptions. For many, these beliefs are not just personal convictions; they are deeply held principles that guide our lives and decisions. To deny parents the ability to opt out based on their religious beliefs is to infringe upon our constitutional rights. It is essential that we protect the sanctity of these beliefs, allowing families to raise their children in accordance with their values and faith.

In conclusion, I implore you to recognize the vital role that parental rights play in the upbringing of our children. I strongly oppose being forced to do something that is in direct opposition of my value system. Let us not support a bill that undermines these freedoms, but rather, let us affirm our commitment to empowering families to make choices that reflect their values, beliefs, and aspirations for the future. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely

Leanna Pareja

I strongly oppose House Bill 1118 which seeks to eliminate religious exemptions for vaccinations. This bill is an attack on our constitutional rights, violating religious freedom, bodily autonomy, and informed consent.

The First Amendment guarantees religious freedom. Removing exemptions forces individuals to choose between their faith and government mandates—an unconstitutional overreach. Medical decisions should be voluntary and based on informed consent, as supported by international human rights agreements.

Is there a profit to be made from this mandate? Hidden agendas often lurk behind policies presented as being for the public good. Pharmaceutical companies stand to gain billions from forced compliance, and lobbying efforts have long influenced legislative decisions. If this bill is truly about health and safety, why are religious freedoms—rather than corporate interests—being sacrificed?

If this bill passes, what freedoms will be next? It sets a precedent for the government to dictate personal health choices under the guise of public safety, eroding individual rights. Are we prepared to accept a future where the government determines what is injected into our bodies, regardless of personal beliefs?

Many faith-based communities oppose certain vaccine ingredients. Denying religious exemptions disregards their beliefs and discriminates against people of faith. For centuries, religious freedom has been a cornerstone of American identity—this bill threatens to unravel that foundation.

History has shown us that government overreach rarely stops at one restriction. If we allow religious exemptions to be removed now, what other fundamental rights will be eroded in the name of public interest? Consider past instances where freedoms have been stripped away with dangerous consequences:

- The Patriot Act (2001) – Initially intended to combat terrorism, it expanded government surveillance, infringing on personal privacy rights.
- Forced Sterilization Programs – In the 20th century, some governments mandated sterilization of certain populations under the pretense of public welfare, violating bodily autonomy. Notable examples include:

- China – Reports indicate forced sterilization has been used as part of population control policies, particularly affecting ethnic minorities like the Uyghurs.
- India (1975-1977) – During Prime Minister Indira Gandhi’s Emergency rule, a mass sterilization campaign targeted mostly poor and lower-caste individuals, often through coercion.
- Religious Persecution in Totalitarian Regimes – History has shown that when religious freedoms are restricted, broader human rights violations often follow, as seen in oppressive regimes that have suppressed religious practices and dissent.

By ignoring religious exemptions today, we risk normalizing government control over deeply personal decisions, opening the door for further erosions of liberty.

Lawmakers must reject this bill and uphold religious freedom. The right to make faith-based medical decisions is fundamental. Stand against this attack on our rights and protect the freedoms that define our nation. If we allow this infringement today, what liberties will be stripped from us tomorrow?

I am writing to OPPOSE HB1118 repealing the religious exemption for school vaccination requirements. I am a mom of two school-aged children, one currently attending a charter school and one currently homeschooled. We've also attended our local public school previously. I love that we have various educational options here in Hawaii, whether public, private, charter, or homeschool. However, if this bill is passed, we will no longer have access to all educational options due to our religious convictions against vaccination. This bill is in opposition to our US Constitution-protected first amendment right to free exercise of religion and would be a travesty of religious oppression in what is supposed to be a free nation. While I understand the desire to increase vaccination rates among school children, removing a constitutionally protected right to religious freedom is not the way to do it.

To whom it may concern,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to House Bill 1118. This proposed legislation raises significant concerns regarding individual rights and freedoms, particularly in relation to vaccination mandates and the elimination of religious exemptions.

Forcing individuals to receive a vaccine against their will is not only unconstitutional but also undermines personal autonomy. Additionally, making vaccinations mandatory for students to attend public schools constitutes discrimination against those who hold differing beliefs.

The people of Hawaii value their rights and freedoms, and we do not support measures that infringe upon them. I urge you to reconsider this bill and uphold the principles of choice and respect for individual beliefs.

Thank you for your attention to this important matter.

Sincerely,

James Nakamura

Dear Hawaii State Legislature,

Thank you in advance for reviewing my testimony. In May 2022, our private school partnered with Hawaii Pacific Health to bring a "vaccination bus" onto campus. Most of our son's friends received the first booster, mandated by the school for all athletes. The children were never shown the ingredients contained in the injections or explained the risks associated with taking these experimental shots.

After that booster in May, one of our son's classmates suffered a sudden major brain aneurysm - he was a healthy kid with no prior medical issues. Luckily, he survived.

That same week, after receiving the booster, another classmate experienced debilitating medical issues, so much so that he missed the last month of the school year and was confined to his bed at home. He was also a very healthy kid who spent most of his childhood playing baseball, he worked so hard that he actually made the competitive high school team, which is very difficult to accomplish.

Sadly, one month after the booster, his parents found him dead one morning in June 2022. After all the dedication to baseball, years and years of practice, this poor kid died before ever wearing his new baseball jersey.

This concerned mom has 3 questions: 1) Why do Hawaii's politicians want to continue maiming and murdering children? 2) When will Hawaii schools be held accountable for their actions? 3) When will Pacific Health be accountable for their actions?

Thank you again for taking the time to consider my testimony.

Protecting Personal Religious Convictions

We believe it's essential to preserve the freedom to follow our personal religious convictions, guided by our faith and values. We should have the right to practice our faith without government interference, including mandates that contradict our deeply held beliefs.

Specifically, we believe that we have the right to follow our religious conviction that God created a perfect immune system.

Any alteration to our bodies, including immunization, should not be forced upon us if it goes against our trust in God's creation.

Testimony in Opposition to House Bill 1118 (HB1118) Relating to Non-Medical Exemptions to Immunization Requirements

Aloha,

I am writing to express my opposition to House Bill 1118, which seeks to eliminate non-medical exemptions for immunizations in Hawaii. My objection is based on several fundamental concerns:

1. Violation of Personal Freedom:
 - o This bill infringes upon the individual's right to make personal health decisions, a cornerstone of our liberty. By removing non-medical exemptions, we are compelling individuals to undergo medical procedures against their will or beliefs.
2. Religious Liberty:
 - o Many in our community hold religious beliefs that are incompatible with vaccinations due to the use of certain ingredients or philosophical teachings. Eliminating religious exemptions undermines the First Amendment rights of these individuals.
3. Philosophical and Ethical Considerations:
 - o There are valid philosophical objections to mandatory vaccinations, such as concerns over informed consent, bodily autonomy, and the long-term effects of vaccines. These should be respected, not dismissed.
4. Parental Rights:
 - o Parents should have the authority to make health decisions for their children, especially when it involves non-medical considerations. This bill overrides parental rights in a manner that I find deeply troubling.
5. Informed Consent:
 - o Medical ethics dictate that individuals should give informed consent to any medical procedure. By removing non-medical exemptions, we're essentially negating this right for those with genuine concerns or objections.
6. Government Overreach:
 - o This legislation represents an overreach by the government into personal health decisions. The role of the state should not extend to dictating medical choices without compelling public health necessity.

7. Risk of Public Distrust:
 - Forcing vaccinations without exemptions could lead to a significant backlash, increasing distrust in health officials and government, potentially lowering overall vaccination rates as people resist or avoid compliance.
8. Individual Health Diversity:
 - A one-size-fits-all approach does not account for the diverse health needs and conditions of our population. While medical exemptions remain, the removal of non-medical ones suggests a lack of nuanced understanding of individual health.
9. Potential Legal Challenges:
 - This bill is likely to face constitutional challenges based on freedom of religion, equal protection, and privacy rights, leading to legal uncertainty and costs.
10. Cultural Insensitivity:
 - Hawaii's cultural mosaic includes practices that might not align with mandatory vaccinations. Respecting these cultural differences is crucial for community harmony.
11. Educational Impact:
 - The removal of exemptions could lead to an increase in homeschooling, affecting public education funding and the social development of children.
12. Ethical Coercion:
 - Mandating vaccinations without offering a choice raises ethical questions about coercion versus persuasion in public health policy.

In conclusion, while I understand the intent behind ensuring public health, HB1118 does so at the cost of personal freedoms, religious convictions, and ethical considerations. I urge the committee to reconsider this bill or at least amend it to maintain non-medical exemptions, thereby balancing public health goals with individual rights and community values.

Mahalo for your consideration,

Larry Duclayan

Comments:

I am writing to express my opposition to House Bill 1118, which seeks to repeal non-medical exemptions from immunization requirements for school-aged children in Hawaii. While I understand the importance of public health and the role of vaccinations in preventing disease outbreaks, I have concerns regarding the removal of non-medical exemptions as this infringes upon we, the peoples, fundamental religious freedoms and parental rights.

1. Infringement on Personal and Religious Beliefs

The repeal of non-medical exemptions may infringe upon individual rights, particularly for those whose personal or religious beliefs conflict with immunization practices. It is essential to respect and uphold the diverse beliefs of Hawaii’s residents, ensuring that policies do not force individuals to act against their deeply held convictions.

2. Violation of Religious Freedom

The First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution guarantees the right to freely exercise one’s religion. For many individuals and families, vaccine requirements conflict with deeply held religious beliefs. By removing religious exemptions, this bill forces individuals to choose between their faith and compliance with government mandates, setting a dangerous precedent for religious liberty in Hawaii.

3. Importance of Informed Consent

Medical decisions, including immunizations, should be made with informed consent. Parents and guardians have the right to make healthcare decisions for their children based on comprehensive information and personal circumstances. Removing non-medical exemptions may undermine this principle by mandating medical interventions without accommodating individual choice.

3. Government Overreach in Personal Medical Decisions

Medical decisions should be made by individuals and families in consultation with their healthcare providers—not dictated by the state. The removal of religious exemptions represents an overreach of government authority, stripping parents of their right to make informed medical choices for their children based on their values and beliefs.

4. Discrimination Against Religious Minorities

Religious exemptions exist to protect individuals whose beliefs differ from mainstream medical practices. Removing these exemptions disproportionately impacts religious minorities, effectively discriminating against them by denying them access to education and public services unless they violate their convictions.

5. No Justification for Removing Religious Rights

There is no compelling evidence that removing religious exemptions significantly improves public health. Vaccination rates in Hawaii remain high, and outbreaks of vaccine-preventable diseases are rare. Instead of coercive policies, the state should focus on education and outreach to encourage voluntary vaccination rather than infringing on constitutional rights.

While the intent of HB1118 to protect public health is commendable, it is crucial to balance this objective with respect for individual rights and freedoms. I urge the legislature to consider alternative approaches that promote immunization through education and outreach, rather than by eliminating non-medical exemptions.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

Shannon Queen

As Christians with religious objections to vaccines, we share the goals of promoting good health for our children and families, spiritually, emotionally, and physically. With these goals in mind, in good conscience we cannot agree to have the state mandate vaccinating our children. We are united against religious discrimination which goes against our sincerely held beliefs and constitutional right of our first amendment of freedom of religion.

I oppose Bill HB1118.

Aloha Chair Takayama, Vice Chair Keohokapu-Lee Loy, and Members of the Committee,

My name is Joshua Duhaylonsod, and I am submitting testimony in strong opposition to HB1118, which seeks to remove religious exemptions for school immunization requirements in Hawaii.

1. HB1118 Violates the First Amendment's Protection of Religious Freedom

The First Amendment of the United States Constitution explicitly protects the free exercise of religion. The Supreme Court has repeatedly affirmed that individuals cannot be forced to violate their religious beliefs, especially when it comes to deeply held convictions about medical interventions, including vaccinations.

By eliminating religious exemptions for immunization, HB1118 directly infringes upon this fundamental right. If a parent or guardian's religious beliefs prohibit vaccinations, the State cannot override this belief without a compelling government interest that cannot be achieved by less restrictive means.

2. HB1118 Discriminates Against Religious Beliefs

HB1118 would grandfather in existing religious exemptions from the 2024-2025 school year, yet deny the same right to future families with identical religious convictions. This is blatant religious discrimination—treating individuals differently based solely on when they exercised their religious rights. The Fourteenth Amendment's Equal Protection Clause prohibits the government from enforcing laws that unfairly discriminate against certain groups.

If religious exemptions were valid before, they must remain valid for all who hold these beliefs—not just those who applied before an arbitrary cutoff date.

3. HB1118 Sets a Dangerous Precedent for Government Overreach

If the State can strip away religious exemptions for vaccinations, what stops it from overriding other religious practices in the future? This bill is a slippery slope toward broader government interference in how individuals practice their faith.

Hawaii has long been a place of diverse cultures and religious freedoms. Passing HB1118 sends a dangerous message that the government has the power to override religious convictions whenever it deems convenient.

Conclusion

I strongly urge the committee to reject HB1118 as it is a clear violation of religious freedom and constitutional rights. The State of Hawaii must not set a precedent that disrespects religious convictions and undermines fundamental civil liberties.

I respectfully request that this committee uphold religious freedom by preserving religious exemptions for immunization requirements.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

I strongly oppose HB1118. Religious beliefs should be kept separate from the government. The government should not be able to force vaccinations and impose their beliefs and erase the beliefs of others to promote their agenda. We're going down a slippery slope with this bill and allowing a dictatorship. Have we not learned anything from the Nazi regime and other countries that do not give their citizens a choice. I should not have to allow my government to make medical decisions on my children's health. Other scientific evidence proves herd immunity can be attained without using vaccines. Also, parents who decide that they must vaccinate their children should already be "protected" from other children who aren't vaccinated. This bill does not hold the manufacturers of these vaccines liable, which is concerning and alarming. There is also a possibility that parents may be unaware of medical conditions that their children may have and forcing vaccinations which may cause injury without being able to hold anyone accountable is outrageous. Nothing is free in this world and the fact that you are forcing insurance companies to pay for this program is ridiculous. We the people will be forced to pay higher premiums. Most folks are unable to pay for these high prices every month already. This bill also doesn't have a cap on how much the insurance companies are forced to contribute which means our premiums will keep going higher and higher with no end in sight and no one regulating or auditing where all the money will go to. All vaccines come with a pamphlet stating that there are risks. With any risk, we should be given a choice to decide if that choice is worth taking when no one can be held accountable for any injuries that may come with the vaccines. This bill is being pushed through by the governor and we have to remember that not all doctors make the correct decisions all the time for their patients. When we feel that our doctors are not giving the best medical advice what do we do, we go get a second opinion which we have a right to do so. If this bill passes, soon enough, we won't have any choices at all regarding our health or our children's health. Please do not pass this bill and do the right thing by honoring the 1st amendment and respecting the free exercise of religious beliefs and the freedom to allow all citizens to make vaccination decisions on their own.

Do not sit on our elected council and claim to represent the marginalized when the opportunity to further exile us is up for discussion. The democrats are supposed to be the party of the underdogs, the voice for the voiceless. But all this is is a push for money and control by a bunch of spineless minions to the almighty Green Goblin of Oz. You pass this bill and I expect you to come to my children's school and tell them to their face why they can't be somewhere they love anymore. Where they are healthy and thriving and working toward making this state a better place in the future generations. Because we are being religiously persecuted and that is not their cross to bear. Make HAWAII HAWAII again and show us that you're worthy of representing our wonderful island state. And PLEASE, Never forget, you work for US.

We are living in a fastly evolving culture as traditional values and ideologies are being re-defined. Many people, for quite a long time, have been expressing deep and valid concerns about vaccines and the increase of new vaccines introduced into the new generations' vaccine schedule. Childhood illnesses are on the uptick and many have suffered tragically at the hands of insufficient medical studies. Many, such as myself, adhere to religious beliefs that affect what we choose for our family's health. Although we may represent a small percentage of the population, we still matter and deserve respect and our constitutional freedoms should remain in-tact. We pay taxes, we are good citizens, we elected you to represent the public and you would be doing a severe injustice to the Constitution of our founding fathers should you decide to take away our right to exercise our religious freedoms. It is time that all of the elected officials, that the people have chosen, do what is right and protect us from a dictatorship government and forced ideals that are far from the America our founding fathers fought hard to create; a free nation in which people, all people, are able to choose what goes into our bodies and our children's bodies. I am in opposition to this unconstitutional bill (HB 1118) and ask that it is revoked.

I oppose this bill due to the simple fact that it is unconstitutional. I think the efforts and energy of the state are better spent tackling other more pressing issues such as homelessness and quality education for our keiki rather than trying to take away our individual bodily autonomy and ability to practice our sincerely held religious beliefs in the way we see fit. I think this bill will do more harm than good and it would surely cost the state more money fighting lawsuits and push back. I am writing to express my opposition to Hawaii HB1118, which seeks to remove religious exemptions as a means to refuse vaccination among our youth in public schools. While I understand the importance of vaccinations in maintaining public health, I believe this bill infringes upon fundamental religious freedoms.

Religious exemptions are a critical aspect of respecting individual beliefs and values. For many families, these exemptions are a reflection of deeply held convictions that should not be dismissed or undermined. Public schools serve a diverse population, and it is essential to honor and accommodate the varied beliefs that make up our community.

Removing religious exemptions may also create distrust and resentment towards public health initiatives. It is important to build trust and encourage voluntary compliance rather than dictating actions that conflict with personal beliefs. A collaborative approach that includes education and dialogue is more effective in promoting vaccination while respecting individual rights.

I urge you to consider the importance of religious freedoms and the potential negative impact of this bill on our community. Don't be a Dictator. Please vote against Hawaii HB1118.

Subject: Opposition to Bill HB1118 on Mandatory Vaccination Requirements for Public School Attendance

To Whom it May Concern,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to Bill HB1118, which seeks to require all children in Hawai'i to be vaccinated in order to attend any public school, effectively eliminating religious exemptions and repealing non-medical exemptions for vaccination requirements.

While I understand and respect the importance of protecting public health, I firmly believe that parents should have the right to make informed decisions about their children's health care, including the choice to refuse vaccinations based on religious beliefs or personal convictions. Requiring all children to be vaccinated, with no consideration for individual or family circumstances, infringes on fundamental parental rights. It is essential that parents, not the state, maintain control over decisions about their children's health and bodies, especially when it comes to something as personal as vaccination.

By removing the ability to opt-out of vaccinations for religious or personal reasons, this bill would limit the freedom of families to make choices that align with their beliefs. The government's role should be to support families, not to impose policies that infringe upon their constitutional rights. For many, vaccines can be a deeply personal issue intertwined with religious beliefs, and those beliefs must be respected, just as any other form of religious expression is respected under the law.

Furthermore, non-medical exemptions allow for flexibility in cases where parents may have valid concerns or beliefs that don't align with the prevailing medical or public health stance. Repealing these exemptions could create an environment of division and fear, as families are forced to choose between complying with a policy they morally object to or facing the potential of exclusion from education.

I urge you to reconsider the passage of this bill and to respect the rights of parents to make decisions about their children's health. If the goal is to protect public health, it can be done through education and dialogue, rather than mandating a one-size-fits-all approach that disregards personal and religious freedoms.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,
Anastacia Thomas

Aloha mai kākou, it's very unfortunate to even have to write this, as this bill HB1118 shouldn't even have a chance to be heard or discussed, as it's in complete violation of the 1st amendment and what would be known as dictatorship, going against a person religious rights and freedoms. The audacity of this bill just shows that we've got public officials like Gov.Green working hand in hand with big pharma like Pfizer to push their agenda. Why is that? Because bug pharma is big business and the medical industry don't want you to have a natural immune system, they want you dependent on western medicines and be a part of their statistics that put money in their pockets. I'm in full opposition to HB1118 and any political representative should do the same, as our rights are being stripped illegally for unjust reasons. To the esteemed members of the committee,

I write this to express my firm opposition to the bill currently under consideration. As a parent, I hold a solid belief in the fundamental rights of mothers and fathers to make informed decisions regarding what enters the bodies of our children. This responsibility is not merely a privilege; it is an essential aspect of our roles as guardians and nurturers.

The autonomy of parents to choose the best path for their children is rooted in both our ethical and cultural values. Each family possesses unique beliefs, traditions, and practices that shape our understanding of health and well-being. It is imperative that we honor this diversity by allowing parents the freedom to decide what is best for their children without undue interference from the state.

Moreover, I urge you to consider the importance of religious exemptions. For many, these beliefs are not just personal convictions; they are deeply held principles that guide our lives and decisions. To deny parents the ability to opt out based on their religious beliefs is to infringe upon our constitutional rights of religious freedom. As Americans, it is essential that we protect the sanctity of these beliefs, allowing families to raise their children in accordance with their own chosen values and faith.

In conclusion, I implore you to recognize the absolute vital role that parental rights play in the upbringing of our children. I strongly oppose being forced to do something that is in direct opposition of my value system, while being coerced to do so by a few in powerful and highly influenced positions. Let us not support a bill that undermines these freedoms, but rather, let us affirm our commitment to empowering families to make choices that reflect their values, beliefs, and aspirations for the next generation. Thank you for your consideration.

Daniel Moe

Aloha,

Please strongly OPPOSE HB1118. Protect our rights to religious freedom.

If this bill passes, this State will be wasting our tax dollars on the multitude of lawsuits brought upon the State for violating religious beliefs and human rights.

Mahalo for your time.

Subject: Opposition to HB1118 – Protection of Religious Exemptions to Immunization Requirements

Dear Chairperson and Members of the House Committee on Health,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to House Bill 1118, which seeks to repeal the non-medical exemption from immunization requirements in Hawaii. As a resident of Hawaii and a parent who holds sincere religious beliefs, I believe that the proposed legislation infringes upon fundamental religious freedoms and could compel my family to relocate to another state where our rights are protected.

Religious Freedom and Constitutional Rights

The First Amendment of the United States Constitution guarantees the free exercise of religion. By eliminating the non-medical exemption, HB1118 would force individuals and families who conscientiously object to immunizations on religious grounds to choose between violating their deeply held beliefs or leaving the state. This is an undue burden on religious freedom and personal autonomy.

Impact on Families and Communities

My family has deep roots in Hawaii—we are not simply residents by choice, but lifelong members of this community. The repeal of the non-medical exemption would force us, along with many other local families who share similar convictions, to make an impossible decision: violate our deeply held religious beliefs or leave the place we have always called home. This would not only disrupt our lives, but it could also lead to an exodus of residents, affecting our local communities, economies, and the cultural fabric of Hawaii.

Public Health Considerations

While the intent behind HB1118 is to enhance public health by increasing vaccination rates, it is important to recognize that the vast majority of residents comply with immunization requirements. The current system, which allows for medical and religious exemptions, balances public health needs with individual rights. There is no compelling evidence to suggest that the repeal of non-medical exemptions would significantly improve public health outcomes.

Alternative Measures

Instead of repealing the non-medical exemption, I urge the committee to consider alternative measures that encourage vaccination through education and outreach, rather than coercion. Providing comprehensive information about the benefits and risks of immunization can empower individuals to make informed decisions without infringing upon their religious freedoms.

Conclusion

In conclusion, I respectfully request that the committee vote against HB1118 to preserve the non-medical exemption to immunization requirements. Protecting religious freedoms is essential to maintaining the diverse and inclusive nature of our society. I appreciate your consideration of my testimony and trust that you will make a decision that upholds the constitutional rights of all residents.

Sincerely,

Natasha Noble

Comments:

Good morning, esteemed members of the committee. My name is Dr. Gerard Dericks and I am an aspiring parent, community member, and long-time advocate for religious freedom in our state. I appreciate the opportunity to speak today in opposition to the proposed bill that would ban religious exemptions for children attending public schools without receiving recommended vaccines.

I stand before you today because I believe that our nation’s foundational principles of religious liberty and individual conscience are at stake. The freedom to practice one’s faith—free from governmental intrusion—is a right enshrined in the First Amendment of our Constitution. For many families, including my own, sincerely held religious beliefs shape how we view health and personal responsibility. Forcing families to choose between their religious convictions and their children’s right to a public education is an invidious infringement on everyone’s fundamental liberties.

I understand that the intent behind this bill is to bolster public health and protect our communities. However, it is my belief that protecting public health should not come at the expense of our cherished religious and bodily freedoms. Rather than imposing a one-size-fits-all mandate that disregards the diversity of deeply held beliefs, we should explore approaches that foster dialogue, education, and community partnership. Many families with religious concerns are open to learning about vaccine safety when approached with respect and understanding; coercion only serves to alienate and create distrust between citizens and public institutions.

Moreover, eliminating religious exemptions may set a dangerous precedent. Today, it is about vaccines and public education; tomorrow, the erosion of religious rights could extend to other areas where the state oversteps its bounds into personal and spiritual matters. Our society is built on a respect for pluralism and the belief that individuals should have the freedom to make choices that align with their personal convictions—especially when those choices are made within the context of one’s own family.

I also worry about the unintended consequences this bill may have. By eliminating religious exemptions, we risk marginalizing and stigmatizing families who have long adhered to their faith traditions and practices. Instead of fostering a spirit of inclusion and mutual respect, such measures can drive vulnerable communities into isolation, undermining the trust and cooperation that are essential in effectively addressing public health challenges.

In lieu of a blanket ban on religious exemptions, I urge the committee to consider alternative strategies. We can and should invest in educational initiatives that respectfully address vaccine concerns, work with community and faith leaders to disseminate accurate, science-based information, and create forums for open discussion. Such measures honor the delicate balance between protecting public health while respecting the constitutional rights to religious freedom and bodily autonomy that form the backbone of all humane and just societies.

In conclusion, while I recognize the important goal of maintaining a healthy community, I respectfully request that the committee vote against this bill. Let us instead pursue alternative strategies of protecting public health, while simultaneously upholding our core freedoms and the mutual respect for everyone within our diverse community. Thank you for your time and consideration.

I strongly OPPOSE this bill, the entirety of the Governor's package, and members of Congress who've sworn an oath to support the constitution and, by default the unalienable rights endowed to us by our Creator (not you all), but choose lobby funds over the people's superceding political power, rooted in common law, the supreme law of the land (US V. Williams 1992 verdict by SCOTUS judge Antonin Scalia).

This is a gross violation of the religious freedoms within that very Constitution you're beholden to uphold. The very origin of law, comes from the very Bible SB1437 is attempting to separate these current laws from! American law within, juris prudence, corpus juris secundum, montesque, etc is rooted in the law of Moses and his 10 commandments, within Torah in the synagogues where they debated perspectives, as you all do today. Don't forget where the root of your very existence in that seat comes from.

Furthermore, the last vaccination this body attempted to enforce over us, increased cancer, heart problems, strokes, and a plethora of other diseases around the world. Thousands of independent, published studies proving they didn't work and in some countries, the vaccines have been recalled. Your sponsor money and lobbyist funds give you zero right to encroach on my, or anyone else's religious freedoms and rights endowed by our Creator. With righteousness in government the lands will prosper. Do the right thing for once, cuz we're beyond sick of you guys we never voted for telling us what you think is best.

Frustration aside, I pray Jesus sweep the evil out the halls of that Capitol and leave no corner unswept and no table unturned to clear the Hewa you commit in those rooms. I'm an imperfect child of God, but you are the princes of darkness, the worldly governor's of ephesians 6:12 and you all bow your knee to evil deeds, so I leave you with this crack in your foundation, a scripture to remind you where this entire world came from and I encourage you to start " In the beginning...

John 1:15-17

15 (John testified concerning him. He cried out, saying, "This is the one I spoke about when I said, 'He who comes after me has surpassed me because he was before me.'") 16 Out of his fullness we have all received grace in place of grace already given. 17 For the law was given through Moses; grace and truth came through Jesus Christ.

P.s. if this still has no effect to your decision-making, luckily we have case law on our side and do not have to entertain governor Greens ego

Marbury Vs. Madison, 5 US (2 Cranch) 137, 174, 176 (1803) states, "All laws which are repugnant to the Constution are null and void."

God bless my enemies with eyes to see and ears to hear .

I strongly oppose this bill. It is not right to disregard anyone's deeply held religious beliefs about what they will and will not allow into their bodies.

Further, we have now seen the damage caused by vaccines that were pushed on society and no one should be forced to take anything into their's or their children's bodies that they do not believe are safe.

The recent vaccines were rushed, inadequately tested, and modified repeatedly with no long-term studies, resulting in many injuries so should not be forced on anyone.

You all want to say "my body my choice" when it comes to killing babies, but not when it comes to injecting substances into our bodies that may have unintended consequences.

Again, I oppose this bill and ask that you respect people's choices when it comes to their bodies and their religious beliefs.

Thank you.

Aloha, my name is Jasmine Jenkins, I am a mother and I strongly oppose HB1118. It is extremely unsettling to hear that a family's ability to make decisions about their children's health in relation to their religious beliefs and values, would be taken away. Additionally, their constitutional rights are being challenged.

The first clause of the First Amendment states: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof..." . It forbids Congress from both promoting one religion over others and also restricting an individual's religious practices. HB1118 violates religious rights under the Free Exercise Clause of the First Amendment to the United States Constitution to require the State to recognize religious exemptions in the same manner that it recognizes secular exceptions. The "free exercise" component of the First Amendment applies to states through the Fourteenth Amendment, rendering "the legislatures of the states as incompetent as Congress to enact such laws."

As in the similar case in Mississippi, Bosarge vs Edney in 2023, where they upheld religious exemptions. They had to determine whether the law to repeal religious exemptions from schools was neutral or generally applicable, "[a] law is not generally applicable if it invites the government to consider the particular reasons for a person's conduct by providing a mechanism for individualized exemptions." Fulton, 141 S. Ct. at 1877 (quotation omitted). A law also fails to be generally applicable "if it prohibits religious conduct while permitting secular conduct that undermines the government's asserted interests in a similar way." Id. A policy is not neutral if it is "specifically directed at religious practice," meaning that it either "discriminates on its face" or "religious exercise is otherwise its object." Kennedy, 142 S. Ct. at 2422 (quotations omitted)." This bill fails the neutrality or general applicability to suffice as proceeding.

The relevant question however, it seems, is not whether the government has a compelling interest in enforcing this bill as a general interest, but whether it has such a general interest in denying religious freedom to a people.

The constitution of our state, states in Section 1: "All political power of this State is inherent in the people and the responsibility for the exercise thereof rests with the people. All government is founded on this authority." Section 8 states: No citizen shall be disfranchised, or deprived of any of the rights or privileges secured to other citizens, unless by the law of the land.

It's deeply troubling to hear that our state government founded on these authorities and state constitutional rights, would force diverse communities of religion into choosing between their own religion, their children's health, their education while simultaneously upholding constitutional rights for some, and marginalizing theirs.

A family's right to exercise such decisions for their children's health based on their religious convictions, should be left in their hands and not the governments to decide. My body, my choice, my religion, my health, my child, my rights, my decision. I respectfully submit that our public health needs should be weighed in balance with families' right to their religion.

I would like oppose HB-1118 as it goes against the Constitution of the United States of America which guarantees all citizens the right to practice their religion freely. This bill unfairly alienates families whose children have a right to a public education while also being allowed to stay within their faith and religious practices. I believe their needs to be some pockets checked on who is getting paid off to submit this bill, which is clearly in the interest of well-bribed politicians taking payouts from pharmaceutical representatives, as opposed to the interest of the citizens whom you have been employed to represent.

To: Hawaii State Legislature,

I, Deborah Umiamaka, hereby testify in opposition to HB1118 Relating to Non-Medical Exemptions to Immunization Requirements.

Religious exemptions from school attendance and childhood scheduled immunizations are fundamental choices and decisions that belong to legal guardians of underage children and adults who have God-given rights to their own bodies and health choices. No government or institution can be held accountable for vaccine damages, including resulting deaths or disabilities. Therefore, I respectfully submit my opposition to the removal of religious vaccine exemptions for Hawaii's residents.

Our children, our bodies, our choice - these are God-given rights we must exercise. Evidence shows that religious exemptions have been a longstanding practice in many states, respecting diverse beliefs and personal autonomy. In Hawaii, religious exemptions have been granted to students whose parents certify that their religious beliefs prohibit immunization practices.

Removing this option infringes upon religious freedom and parental rights. The decision to vaccinate should remain a personal one, especially given that individuals bear the risks of potential adverse effects.

I urge you to preserve religious exemptions and protect the rights of Hawaii's residents to make informed decisions about their health and the health of their children.

Sincerely,

Deborah Umiamaka

As a mother of 2 school-aged children, I oppose this bill. Parents should have absolute rights when it comes to our children, especially what we deem to be acceptable to their health & well being. This bill interferes with our religious liberties and as such is unconstitutional.

A BILL FOR AN ACT

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF HAWAII:

1 SECTION 1. The legislature finds that school entry
2 immunization requirements have been shown to be effective in 3 improving immunization coverage rates. Based on decades of 4 strong evidence of effectiveness, the United States Department
5 of Health and Human Services Task Force on Community Preventive
6 Services recommended the continued implementation of school
7 immunization requirements as a means of increasing immunization
8 coverage, thereby reducing disease incidence. When ninety-five 9 per cent of individuals in a community are immunized, those 10 persons serve as a protective barrier against the likelihood of 11 transmission of vaccine-preventable diseases in the community.
12 This occurrence is referred to as "herd immunity."

13 High immunization rates at schools are especially important
14 for medically fragile children. Some children have conditions
15 that affect their immunity, such as illnesses that require 16 chemotherapy. These children cannot be safely immunized, and,
17 at the same time, they are less able to fight off illness when 18 they are infected. They depend on herd immunity for their

1 health and their lives. In Hawaii for the 2023-2024 school
2 year, 296 students had a medical exemption from immunization;
3 they were unable to get immunized due to a medical condition and
4 relied on herd immunity to attend school safely.

5 The legislature further finds that decreasing immunization
6 coverage due to non-medical exemptions increases the risk for 7 vaccine-preventable disease outbreaks that can be fatal to 8 children. In Hawaii for the 2015-2016 school year, the rate of 9 non-medical immunization exemption was 2.5 per cent. The rate
10 of non-medical immunization exemption more than doubled to 5.3
11 per cent for the 2023-2024 school year. The rate of non-medical 12 exemptions varied by school with fifty-five of the 382 schools
13 that reported for school year 2023-2024 having a non-medical 14 immunization exemption rate greater than ten per cent.

15 The legislature finds that since the health and safety of 16 Hawaii's keiki are paramount, the State has a compelling
17 interest in protecting the public against deadly diseases
18 considering an increasing trend in non-medical immunization
19 exemptions, while honoring certain non-medical exemptions that 20 previously have been approved.

H.B. NO. 1118

1 Accordingly, the purpose of this Act is to improve the
2 health and safety of school-aged children by minimizing
3 exemptions from school immunization requirements.

4 SECTION 2. Section 302A-1156, Hawaii Revised Statutes, is
5 amended to read as follows:

6 "§302A-1156 Exemptions. (a) A child ~~may~~ shall be 7 exempted from the required immunizations[+

8 ~~(1) If]~~ if a licensed physician, physician assistant, or 9 advanced practice registered nurse certifies that the 10 physical condition of the child is such that 11 immunizations would endanger the child's life or 12 health[~~, or~~

13 ~~(2) If any parent, custodian, guardian, or any other~~ 14 ~~person in loco parentis to a child objects to~~ 15 ~~immunization in writing on the grounds that the~~ 16 ~~immunization conflicts with that person's bona fide~~
17 ~~religious tenets and practices. Upon showing the~~ 18 ~~appropriate school official satisfactory evidence of~~ 19 ~~the exemption, no certificate or other evidence of~~ 20 ~~immunization shall be required for entry into school].~~

21 (b) Any child attending school who had an approved
22 religious exemption from required immunizations for the 2024-

H.B. NO. 1118

1 2025 school year shall be permitted to remain exempt while
2 continuing to attend school in Hawaii.

3 (c) This section does not prohibit a pupil who qualifies,
4 for an individualized education action program pursuant to 5 federal and state law, from accessing any special education and 6 related services required by their individualized education
7 program."

8 SECTION 3. Section 321-11, Hawaii Revised Statutes, is
9 amended to read as follows:

10 "§321-11 Subjects of health rules, generally. The 11 department of health pursuant to chapter 91 may adopt rules that 12 it deems necessary for the public health and safety respecting:

13 (1) Nuisances, foul or noxious odors, gases, vapors,
14 waters in which mosquitoes breed or may breed, sources
15 of filth, and causes of sickness or disease, within 16 the respective districts of the State, and on board
17 any vessel;

18 (2) Adulteration and misbranding of food or drugs;

19 (3) Location, air space, ventilation, sanitation,
20 drainage, sewage disposal, and other health conditions
21 of buildings, courts, construction projects,
22 excavations, pools, watercourses, areas, and

1 alleys. For purposes of this paragraph, "pool" means
2 a watertight artificial structure containing a body of
3 water that does not exchange water with any other body
4 of water, either naturally or mechanically, and is 5 used for swimming, diving, recreational bathing, or 6 therapy by humans;

7 (4) Privy vaults and cesspools;

8 (5) Fish and fishing;

9 (6) Interments and dead bodies;

10 (7) Disinterments of dead human bodies, including the 11 exposing, disturbing, or removing of these bodies from 12 their place of burial, or the opening, removing, or 13 disturbing after due interment of any receptacle,
14 coffin, or container holding human remains or a dead
15 human body or a part thereof and the issuance and 16 terms of permits for the aforesaid disinterments of 17 dead human bodies;

18 (8) Cemeteries and burying grounds;

19 (9) Laundries, and the laundering, sanitation, and 20 sterilization of articles including linen and uniforms
21 used by or in the following businesses and 22 professions: barber shops, manicure shops, beauty

1 parlors, electrology shops, restaurants, soda
2 fountains, hotels, rooming and boarding houses,
3 bakeries, butcher shops, public bathhouses, midwives,
4 masseurs, and others in similar calling, public or
5 private hospitals, and canneries and bottling works
6 where foods or beverages are canned or bottled for 7 public consumption or sale; provided that nothing in 8 this chapter shall be construed as authorizing the 9 prohibiting of laundering, sanitation, and 10 sterilization by those conducting any of these 11 businesses or professions where the laundering or 12 sterilization is done in an efficient and sanitary 13 manner;

14 (10) Hospitals, freestanding surgical outpatient
15 facilities, skilled nursing facilities, intermediate 16 care facilities, adult residential care homes, adult
17 foster homes, assisted living facilities, special
18 treatment facilities and programs, home health
19 agencies, home care agencies, hospices, freestanding
20 birthing facilities, adult day health centers,
21 independent group residences, and therapeutic living
22 programs, but excluding youth shelter facilities

1 unless clinical treatment of mental, emotional, or
2 physical disease or handicap is a part of the routine
3 program or constitutes the main purpose of the 4 facility, as defined in section 346-16 under "child
5 caring institution". For the purpose of this 6 paragraph, "adult foster home" has the same meaning as 7 provided in section 321-11.2;

8 (11) Hotels, rooming houses, lodging houses, apartment
9 houses, tenements, and residences for persons with 10 developmental disabilities including those built under 11 federal funding;

12 (12) Laboratories;

13 (13) Any place or building where noisome or noxious trades
14 or manufacturing is carried on, or intended to be 15 carried on;

16 (14) Milk;

17 (15) Poisons and hazardous substances, the latter term
18 including any substance or mixture of substances that:

19 (A) Is corrosive;

20 (B) Is an irritant;

21 (C) Is a strong sensitizer;

22 (D) Is inflammable; or

- 1 (E) Generates pressure through decomposition, heat,
2 or other means,
3 if the substance or mixture of substances may cause
4 substantial personal injury or substantial illness
5 during or as a proximate result of any customary or 6 reasonably foreseeable handling or use, including 7 reasonably foreseeable ingestion by children;
- 8 (16) Pig and duck ranches;
- 9 (17) Places of business, industry, employment, and 10 commerce, and the processes, materials, tools,
11 machinery, and methods of work done therein; and 12 places of public gathering, recreation, or 13 entertainment;
- 14 (18) Any restaurant, theater, market, stand, shop, store,
15 factory, building, wagon, vehicle, or place where any 16 food, drug, or cosmetic is manufactured, compounded,
17 processed, extracted, prepared, stored, distributed,
18 sold, offered for sale, or offered for human 19 consumption or use;
- 20 (19) Foods, drugs, and cosmetics, and the manufacture, 21 compounding, processing, extracting, preparing,

- 1 storing, selling, and offering for sale, consumption,
2 or use of any food, drug, or cosmetic;
- 3 (20) Device as defined in section 328-1;
- 4 (21) Sources of ionizing radiation;
- 5 (22) Medical examination, vaccination, revaccination, and 6 immunization of school children[. ~~No child shall be 7 subjected to medical examination, vaccination,
8 revaccination, or immunization, whose parent or 9 guardian objects in writing thereto on grounds that 10 the requirements are not in accordance with the 11 religious tenets of an established church of which the 12 parent or guardian is a member or adherent, but no
13 objection shall be recognized when, in the opinion of 14 the department, there is danger of an epidemic from 15 any communicable disease];~~
- 16 (23) Disinsectization of aircraft entering or within the 17 State as may be necessary to prevent the introduction,
18 transmission, or spread of disease or the introduction
19 or spread of any insect or other vector of 20 significance to health;
- 21 (24) Fumigation, including the process by which substances
22 emit or liberate gases, fumes, or vapors that may be

1 used for the destruction or control of insects,
2 vermin, rodents, or other pests, which, in the opinion
3 of the department, may be lethal, poisonous, noxious,
4 or dangerous to human life;

5 (25) Ambulances and ambulance equipment;

6 (26) Development, review, approval, or disapproval of 7 management plans submitted pursuant to the Asbestos
8 Hazard Emergency Response Act of 1986, Public Law 99-9 519; and

10 (27) Development, review, approval, or disapproval of an 11 accreditation program for specially trained persons
12 pursuant to the Residential Lead-Based Paint Hazard
13 Reduction Act of 1992, Public Law 102-550.

14 The department of health may require any certificates,
15 permits, or licenses that it may deem necessary to adequately
16 regulate the conditions or businesses referred to in this 17 section."

18 SECTION 4. Section 325-34, Hawaii Revised Statutes, is
19 amended to read as follows:

20 "§325-34 Exemptions. Section 325-32 shall be construed
21 not to require the vaccination or immunization of any person for 22 three months after a duly licensed physician, physician

1 assistant, advanced practice registered nurse, or an authorized
2 representative of the department of health has signed two copies
3 of a certificate stating the name and address of the person and 4 that because of a stated cause the health of the person would be
5 endangered by the vaccination or immunization, and has forwarded
6 the original copy of the certificate to the person or, if the 7 person is a minor or under guardianship, to the person's parent
8 or guardian, and has forwarded the duplicate copy of the 9 certificate to the department for its files.

10 ~~[No]~~ Except as required under section 302A-1154, no person
11 shall be subjected to vaccination, revaccination, or 12 immunization, who shall in writing object thereto on the grounds
13 that the requirements are not in accordance with the religious 14 tenets of an established church of which the person is a member
15 or adherent, or, if the person is a minor or under guardianship, 16 whose parent or guardian shall in writing object thereto on such 17 grounds, but no objection shall be recognized when, in the 18 opinion of the director of health, there is danger of an 19 epidemic from any communicable disease."

20 SECTION 5. Statutory material to be repealed is bracketed
21 and stricken. New statutory material is underscored.

TITLE: A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO NON-MEDICAL EXEMPTIONS TO IMMUNIZATION REQUIREMENTS.

PURPOSE: To repeal statutory authorization for non-medical exemptions to immunization requirements, and preserve exemptions already approved.

MEANS: Amend sections 302A-1156, 321-11, and 325-34, Hawaii Revised Statutes.

JUSTIFICATION: Routine childhood immunizations help protect the health of children and create safer environments for childcare and learning. When ninety-five per cent of individuals in a community are immunized, enough people have immunity to the most infectious vaccine-preventable diseases to prevent an outbreak, which protects those who, for medical reasons, are unable to get vaccinated or develop an immune response to vaccination.

The rate of non-medical immunization exemptions in Hawaii increased from 2.5 percent for the 2015-2016 school year to 5.3 percent for the 2023-2024 school year, more than doubling. The rate of non-medical exemptions varied by school with fifty-five of the 382 schools that reported for 2023-2024 school year having a non-medical immunization exemption rate exceeding ten percent.

This bill is needed to respond to the rising trend of non-medical exemptions from school immunization requirements that is increasing the risk of an outbreak. Due to the morbidity and mortality of vaccine-preventable diseases among children, the State has a compelling interest in repealing exemptions for which there are no objective medical bases and thereby increasing protective factors for individual children and the community at large. Maintaining high immunization rates among children is crucial for protecting the safety and health of the children, their families, and the community.

Impact on the public: Removal of non-medical exemptions for immunizations would increase vaccination rates for Hawaii's school-age children.

Elimination of the non-medical immunization exemption will reduce the risk of infections, secondary infections in the families of students, and the spread of communicable diseases in the wider social and occupational community at large, including in care facilities and other congregate centers where close contact can increase the spread of communicable diseases.

Impact on the department and other agencies: Elimination of non-medical exemptions will streamline immunization screening and reporting processes to the Department and improve public health.

The Department of Education will likely experience diminished administrative burden, and campuses will be safer from vaccine-preventable diseases.

GENERAL FUND: None.

OTHER FUNDS: None.

PPBS PROGRAM DESIGNATION: HTH 131.

OTHER AFFECTED AGENCIES: Department of Education.

EFFECTIVE DATE: Upon approval.

Aloha Chair, Vice Chair, and Members of the Committee,

I am writing in strong opposition to HB1118, which seeks to remove religious exemptions for school vaccinations. This bill is an infringement on fundamental rights, disregarding both religious freedom and parental authority over medical decisions for their children.

Religious exemptions exist to protect individuals whose deeply held beliefs guide their medical choices. By eliminating this right, HB1118 forces families to choose between their faith and accessing education—an unconstitutional and unethical mandate. The First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution guarantees the free exercise of religion, and no government entity should have the power to override this sacred right.

Furthermore, every individual has the God-given right to make informed decisions regarding their own body and their children's health. Mandating medical procedures without allowing exemptions violates the principle of bodily autonomy and informed consent. Parents, not the government, should determine what is best for their children's health based on personal convictions, medical history, and religious beliefs.

Additionally, this bill ignores the fact that religious exemptions have coexisted with public health policies for decades without catastrophic consequences. Families who utilize these exemptions do so thoughtfully, weighing risks and benefits in accordance with their faith. Stripping them of this right is an unnecessary overreach that undermines trust in both the government and the healthcare system.

I urge you to reject HB1118 and uphold the freedoms that our Constitution protects. Government should not dictate personal medical decisions, especially when they intersect with matters of faith. Please stand for religious liberty, parental rights, and bodily autonomy by opposing this bill.

Honorable chair and committee members,

I am in the strongest opposition to HB1118. This bill infringes on the rights of individual and families to make medical decisions that are best for them. Government mandated vaccines is inherently dangerous as it does not allow people to opt out themselves or their child if they feel that they or their child may be harmed. It also tramples on the constitutional religious liberties of those who have chosen not to participate with vaccines due their beliefs. The children of Hawaii do not belong to the government of Hawaii but to their parents and families. No government should be telling a parent that they must put their child at risk of being harmed physically, mentally or spiritually. The role of our government should never be blurred with the role of a parent. What other doors of freedom to raise our children and make decisions for them as we see fit will be shut if this bill passes? For these reason, and as a mother and grandmother, I urge you to please oppose HB1118.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Suzanne Mexia (Kaneohe)

Aloha Committee Members,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB1118, which seeks to eliminate religious exemptions for vaccines. This bill is a direct assault on religious freedom, parental rights, and bodily autonomy - core principles that must be protected.

Forcing individuals to choose between their deeply held religious beliefs and government mandates is unconstitutional and sets a dangerous precedent. The First Amendment guarantees the right to religious liberty, and removing vaccine exemptions disregards this fundamental protection.

HB1118 also ignores the fact that religious exemptions have long been recognized as a legitimate right, balancing public health interests with personal freedoms. Eliminating these exemptions would:

1. Violate the First Amendment by punishing individuals for adhering to their religious convictions.
2. Erode parental rights by stripping families of the ability to make medical decisions for their children in accordance with their faith.
3. Create a slippery slope where government power expands to override religious beliefs in other areas.

Religious freedom is not a privilege granted by the state - it is a God-given right enshrined in our Constitution. I urge you to oppose HB1118 and stand firm in protecting the religious liberties of all of Hawaii.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I look forward to your response on this critical issue.

Mahalo,

Dear committee members,

I am writing to strongly oppose Bill HB1118, which seeks to eliminate exemptions to immunization requirements. This bill represents a direct infringement on personal, parental, and religious rights, and it disregards valid medical, ethical, and scientific concerns surrounding mandatory vaccinations.

1. Parental Rights and Bodily Autonomy

Parents have the fundamental right to make medical decisions for their children. Removing exemptions forces families into a one-size-fits-all medical model that does not account for individual health needs or deeply held beliefs. Medical choices should remain a personal decision between a patient (or their guardian) and their healthcare provider, not mandated by the government.

2. Religious Freedom Violations

For many, immunization decisions are guided by sincere religious beliefs. The U.S. Constitution guarantees the right to practice one's faith without undue government interference. Forcing vaccinations upon individuals who object on religious grounds is a clear violation of their First Amendment rights.

3. Medical Risks and Individual Health Considerations

No medical procedure is risk-free, and vaccines are no exception. Some individuals have adverse reactions, and not all medical exemptions are easily granted, leaving those with genuine concerns vulnerable. The current exemption system allows families and individuals to make informed decisions based on their unique health circumstances. Removing these exemptions ignores the reality of vaccine-related injuries and conditions that contraindicate certain immunizations.

4. Public Health Without Coercion

While public health is important, coercive policies often backfire by eroding public trust in the medical system. Education, transparency, and informed consent should be the foundation of any public health initiative, rather than forced compliance. Many communities with strong vaccine education programs maintain high immunization rates without resorting to government mandates.

Conclusion

For these reasons, I urge you to oppose [Bill HB1118]. Preserving exemptions ensures that individual rights, medical freedom, and informed consent remain protected in our society. I ask that you reject this bill and uphold the principles of personal choice and parental authority in medical decision-making.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Kitiona Kolone

Comments:

I STRONGLY OPPOSE this Bill that violates bodily autonomy and rights to religious freedom. I urge all members of the Committee to VOTE NO on this Bill.

Here are some potential problems or criticisms associated with the bill as described:

Reduction of Exemption Options:

Elimination of Non-Medical Exemptions: The bill removes the option for religious exemptions from school immunization requirements for new students, which could be seen as an infringement on religious freedom or personal beliefs. This might alienate or burden families who hold specific religious convictions against vaccinations.

Potential Constitutional Challenges:

Religious Freedom: The removal of religious exemptions could be legally contested on grounds of violating the First Amendment rights to free exercise of religion, although there's a provision for those with pre-existing exemptions to continue.

Public Backlash:

Community Opposition: There might be significant opposition from communities or groups that value personal choice in health decisions, potentially leading to decreased trust in public health policies or increased resistance to vaccination in general.

Equity and Access Issues:

Inequity for Certain Groups: While aimed at protecting public health, this could disproportionately affect families who might not have access to a physician to provide medical exemptions, particularly if they face socioeconomic barriers.

Impact on Vaccination Rates:

Unintended Consequences: While the goal is to increase vaccination rates, the removal of exemptions might lead some parents to choose alternative education options like homeschooling, which could paradoxically lower the number of vaccinated children in public or private schools.

Medical Exemption Concerns:

Burden of Proof: The bill still allows for medical exemptions, but the criteria might be too stringent or subjectively interpreted by healthcare providers, potentially excluding children who genuinely cannot be vaccinated due to health risks.

Implementation and Enforcement:

Enforcement Challenges: Schools will have to navigate new policies, potentially leading to administrative burdens or confusion over how to handle students without vaccinations. There might also be issues with consistent enforcement across different schools.

Potential for Discrimination:

Stigmatization: Children with medical exemptions might face stigmatization or be treated differently in school settings, which could affect their social and educational experiences.

Legal Ambiguity:

Grandfathering Clause: The provision allowing students with existing religious exemptions to continue might lead to a two-tiered system where newer students must comply with stricter rules, creating confusion or perceived unfairness.

Public Health vs. Individual Rights Debate:

Balancing Act: The bill highlights the ongoing debate between public health measures and individual rights. Critics might argue that it tips the balance too far towards mandatory compliance without adequately addressing individual or family beliefs.

Educational Impact:

Educational Disruption: If parents decide to remove their children from schools due to these policies, this could disrupt educational continuity for those children.

While this bill aims to enhance public health by reducing the risk of disease outbreaks through higher vaccination rates, these potential issues suggest a need for careful consideration of legal, social, and ethical implications. This bill should be immediately abandoned and not passed through this committee.

I am writing my strong opposition against bill HB1118 regarding non medical religious exemptions to immunizations. This is not about health, but about money! It's completely unconstitutional as a law abiding citizen, and native of the State of Hawaii to force someone to inject something in their children's bodies, that deeply goes against one's beliefs and practices. As a Christian, I value and believe in human life at the moment of conception. The ingredients in these vaccines are known to have aborted fetus cells, and toxic heavy metals that can cause irreversible damage. The government is not my God, and they should not have the power to force immunizations. I urge you to vote against bill HB1118. Thank you for your time.

Re: Opposition to HB1118 – RELATING TO NON-MEDICAL EXEMPTIONS TO IMMUNIZATION REQUIREMENTS

Dear Chair, Vice Chair, and Members of the Committee,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB1118, which seeks to restrict non-medical exemptions to immunization requirements. This bill undermines informed consent, parental rights, and medical freedom, which are foundational principles of a free society.

HB1118 disregards vaccines inherent risks by attempting to eliminate the ability of individuals and parents to make personal medical decisions. Each person’s health needs and risk factors are unique, and blanket mandates fail to account for the complex and deeply personal nature of healthcare choices. By removing non-medical exemptions, this bill would coerce individuals into accepting medical interventions that may not align with their religious beliefs.

Furthermore, as a person of faith, I firmly believe that my body is a temple, as stated in 1 Corinthians 6:19-20: "Do you not know that your bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit, who is in you, whom you have received from God? You are not your own; you were bought at a price. Therefore, honor God with your bodies." Vaccination defies God's perfect design of the human immune system, which was created to fight illness naturally. Psalm 139:14 affirms, "I praise you because I am fearfully and wonderfully made; your works are wonderful, I know that full well." It is my deeply held religious belief that artificially altering my immune system through vaccination goes against God's divine plan for human health and well-being.

Additionally, every child has the right to attend public school without being forced to compromise their religious beliefs. The First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution guarantees the free exercise of religion, which includes making medical decisions in accordance with one's faith. Public education should be inclusive and respect the diverse beliefs of all students, rather than forcing them to choose between their faith and their education.

The principle of informed consent dictates that individuals must have the right to decline medical procedures without coercion or penalty. By restricting exemptions, HB1118 sets a dangerous precedent that could lead to further erosion of medical choice, religious freedom, and bodily autonomy.

I urge you to oppose HB1118 and instead prioritize policies that respect medical freedom, informed consent, and individual rights. The government should not dictate medical decisions, especially because the National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program (NVICP) has paid out nearly $4.6 billion to individuals and families who have suffered vaccine-related injuries and deaths. This staggering amount, documented in the Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System (VAERS), underscores the fact that vaccines, like any medical intervention, are not without risk.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I respectfully request that you vote against HB1118.

Sincerely,
Misty Cluett

I am writing to formally and respectfully address parental rights for religious exemption to the Department of Health in the State of Hawai'i's school health requirements. Hawai'i State Law for childcare facility and school attendance requires all students to meet physical examination, immunizations, and tuberculosis clearance requirements before they may attend a childcare facility, preschool, or public/private school in the State. Parents should be able to base exemption requests on religious grounds. Many people hold sincere and genuine beliefs that forbid them from accepting any and all vaccinations.

Under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act, an employer must not discriminate against an employee on the basis of that employee's sincerely held religious beliefs. Religious discrimination involves treating a person, in this case a student, unfavorably because of his or her religious beliefs. As you may know, the law protects not only people who belong to traditional, organized religions, such as Buddhism, Christianity, Hinduism, Islam, and Judaism, but also others who have sincerely held religious beliefs.

According to the State of Hawai'i's Department of Health school health requirements, children may be exempt from immunization requirements for medical or religious reasons, if the appropriate documentation is presented to the childcare facility or school.

Haw. Rev. Stat. § 302A-1154, 1156. Hawaii schools should allow for religious exemptions because they must allow for employees under Title VII.

This request for religious exemptions are the thoughts and sentiments not shared in casual conversation and deeply personal to many with their unique understanding of the language of God. The only reason that this is being shared with you is because the law dictates that we do.

“God created us in his own image.” (Genesis 1:27)

The Book of Genesis states that God created man in His image. It is many people's belief that God knew what He was doing and the body of many needs no “fixing” by mankind. Many people see vaccines as “fixing.” No one cannot improve on God's creation. Numerous religious scriptures tell us we need to trust in God and His creation.

“Honor the Lord with your bodies.” (1 Corinthians 6:20)

Blood is usually the first problem for vaccines for all faiths. We are created in the image of God - in God's image: Human blood is sacred and must remain pure. The issue with blood that poses vaccination to be a sin is that it is injected into one's bloodstream and that vaccines alter our sacred human blood.

“If you diligently heed the voice of the Lord your God and do what is right in His sight, give ear to His Commandments and keep all His statutes, I will remove none of the diseases on you which I brought on the Egyptians. For I am the Lord who heals you.” (Exodus 15:26)

Unfortunately, many people have been previously vaccinated of all childhood immunization but the decision to be vaccinated was not theirs, but their parents. Now as adults, we make our own medical decisions. However, some of their children may have received a few of the childhood vaccinations because they didn't hold the personal understanding of God's message to them back then, as they do now.

“Do you not know that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit, who is in you, whom you have received from God? You are not your own. That God is in you. That he is our healer.” (Corinthians 6:19)

I do recognize a clear difference between helping a body in crisis and addressing a healthy body with medical help or intervention. Generally speaking, if my body were in a state of emergency, I would consider all the options and discuss what to do with my trusted physician. I would also consult with the Bible, pray to my God for help and guidance and rely on the healing power of God to aid me.

“So that your faith might not rest on human wisdom but on the power of God.” (1 Corinthians, 2:5)

Whatever God sends my way, I will seek His help for solutions and guidance and my decisions will adhere to my personal belief in God.

“No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. (Luke 16:13)

Understand that I do not turn my back on all “modern” medicine and its practices and philosophies. There is a significant difference between a body in crisis needing help and a body that is healthy accepting a medical procedure. Many people, like myself, believe God would accept the former, He would not accept the latter.

Jesus said: “Those who are well do not need a physician, but the sick do.” (Matthew 9:12)

Jesus again repeated the same: “When Jesus heard it, he saith unto them, They that are whole have no need of the physician...” (Mark 2:17)

The medical establishment as well as most family and friends apply pressure and guilt to others in society to participate in the vaccination process. Modern society tells us that we can hurt ourselves and other people if we do not accept vaccines into our bodies. Society tells us we jeopardize babies, elderly people and everyone in between, if we do not vaccinate. Without a medical background or specific scientific knowledge, it is difficult to comment on the truth to that assertion. But the point is controversial because I am certain of this; God has communicated to me that to address my immaculate, healthy, God-given body with the procedure of vaccinations would be a sin against my conscience.

Please take into consideration of my justification of my sincerely held personal religious beliefs, as there are many people like me. I hope I have defined them sufficiently. Again, these thoughts are the Holy message I receive from my God. I don't ask that you, or anyone else, agree with these thoughts and personal translations. But under the law, I respectfully request that they be honored as truthful and legally permissible. Based on what I have shared, I ask this religious exemption be allowed.

Parents should be allowed to opt out of school vaccines for personal reasons. This bill would be taking away parental choice and religious freedom. The government shouldn't decide if kids must be vaccinated, even if it goes against a family's beliefs.

Vaccine mandates infringe upon constitutionally protected religious freedoms.

The First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution states, "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

In the unanimous 1939 ruling for Cantwell v. Connecticut, the US Supreme Court held that state and local governments' infringement upon religious freedom is also unconstitutional.

Several religions oppose vaccines and mandatory vaccinations. Some Christian Scientists consider vaccinations against their religion because founder Mary Baker Eddy stated that the "calm, Christian state of mind is a better preventative of contagion than a drug, or than any other possible sanative method... the 'perfect Love' that 'casteth out fear' is a sure defense."

Amish communities do not view all vaccinations as "necessary" and some believe that vaccinations weaken the immune system.

The Church of Illumination states that "the teachings of the Church unequivocally affirm that injections of vaccines and inoculations are a violation of these biblical teachings... Immunizations and vaccinations are a form of blood pollution because they have devastating effects on the regeneration of the soul that each Church member seeks to attain."

The Universal Family Church believes that parents should decide whether their children should be vaccinated and that "God intends the health decisions of individuals should... be honored by all authorities."

The government shouldn't intervene in personal medical choices.

Medical decisions for children should be left to parents or caregivers. Barbara Loe Fisher, Co-founder of National Vaccine Information Center, stated, “If the State can tag, track down and force citizens against their will to be injected with biological products... there will be no limit on which individual freedoms the State can take away in the name of the greater good tomorrow.”

Ron Paul, former US Representative (R-TX), stated, “intimately personal medical decisions should not be made by government.... Freedom over one’s physical person is the most basic freedom of all, and people in a free society should be sovereign over their own bodies. When we give government the power to make medical decisions for us, we in essence accept that the state owns our bodies.”

Further, some vaccines contain ingredients some parents consider immoral or otherwise objectionable; mandates infringe on those sincerely held beliefs. For example, some DTaP/IPV/Hib combination, Hep A/Hep B combination, HepA, MMR, and chickenpox vaccines are cultivated in cells from two fetuses aborted in the 1960s (listed as MRC-5 and WI-38 on package inserts). The Catholic Church, in a report about using vaccines made using cells from aborted fetuses, indicated that “there is a grave responsibility to use alternative vaccines” to avoid the “evil” of actively or passively participating in anything that involves abortion.

And some vaccines for DTaP, Hep A, RV, Hib, HPV, IPV, flu, MMR, and chickenpox are made using animal products like chicken eggs, bovine casein, insect cells, Cocker Spaniel cells, pig gelatin, and cells from African Green monkeys, making those vaccines conflict with some vegetarian and vegan philosophies. Others consider it problematic that some vaccines are produced using human albumin, a blood plasma protein.

The passage of this bill would prevent me from practicing my sincerely held religious beliefs as guaranteed by the First Amendment of the United States Constitution. There are other ways to keep Hawai'i's keiki safe. One example to promote public health in this area is to not allow people seeking to immigrate to Hawai'i or the United States, who have vaccine-preventable illnesses, entry to our state and country. Governor Green, with all respect, you were wrong about the COVID vaccine, its efficacy and safety. This bill is misguided and hubristic in nature. Do not pass this bill that will take away my right as a U.S. citizen. Mahalo.

Aloha Chair Takayama:

The Governor of Hawai‘i may govern intangible items in Hawai‘i as to protecting their citizens. The Governor has no right demanding me to take a vaccine that is irrelevant to my health and a demetrimnt to my grandchildren, nephews and nieces. He is infringing and violating on my rights and the rights of my grandchildren and of my nephews and nieces who are minors and I am their voice, under the first amendment of the US constitution to oppose HB1118. I have taken over my ownership to manage my own ability of my grandchildren, nephews and nieces and over myself and our canoe. What is is.

Subject: Strong Opposition to HB1118 – Protect Medical Freedom in Hawai'i

To Whom this May Concern,

I am writing to express my unequivocal opposition to House Bill 1118, which seeks to eliminate non-medical exemptions from immunization requirements for school entry in Hawai'i. This bill is a blatant violation of personal freedoms, parental rights, and religious liberty, and I urge you to reject it in its entirety.

Government Overreach and Violation of Personal Rights

HB1118 is a dangerous overreach of government power, stripping parents of their right to make informed medical decisions for their children. The government does not own our bodies, and it certainly does not have the right to coerce medical procedures upon individuals against their will. Forcing vaccination without any allowance for personal, religious, or philosophical beliefs is an authoritarian move that disregards bodily autonomy and fundamental human rights.

Religious and Philosophical Freedoms Under Attack

The elimination of non-medical exemptions directly targets families with deeply held religious or philosophical objections to vaccination. The First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution guarantees the right to religious freedom, and this bill tramples on that protection. No government entity should be allowed to dictate what medical procedures a child must undergo, especially when such procedures conflict with a family's moral or spiritual beliefs.

Ignoring the Risks and Individual Health Considerations

Not all children react to vaccinations the same way, and some may be at risk for adverse effects even if they do not qualify for a narrowly defined medical exemption. Medical professionals themselves acknowledge that vaccines, like all medical interventions, carry risks—including documented side effects and injuries. Parents, not the state, should have the final say in what medical interventions their children receive.

Erosion of Trust and Dangerous Precedents

HB1118 will not foster public confidence in the healthcare system—it will destroy it. Removing informed consent breeds distrust and resistance. History has shown that when governments impose medical mandates, the public pushes back. The result? More families will leave the public school system, seek alternatives, or even move out of state. Instead of promoting public health, this bill will deepen division and erode trust in health authorities.

A Smarter Approach: Education, Not Coercion

If the goal is to increase vaccination rates, the government should focus on education rather than force. Respecting individual rights while providing transparent information allows families to make informed choices. A free society does not operate on mandates; it operates on informed consent and voluntary decision-making.

Conclusion: HB1118 Must Be Rejected

This bill is an egregious overstep that undermines personal liberty, medical freedom, and constitutional rights. I urge you to reject HB1118 in its entirety and stand for the principles of choice, informed consent, and parental rights.

The people of Hawai'i deserve the right to decide what is best for themselves and their families —not government bureaucrats.

Vote NO on HB1118.

Sincerely,

Brittini Paiva

I vehemently Oppose HB1118.

It is absolutely and completely absurd that we would get rid of Religious exemptions when people value and hold dear their deeply held religious beliefs. Religious choice especially around something so personal as vaccination is something that cannot be questioned for a human right to be given. Why are we taking away choice? It is simply unconstitutional. People at the base of all living rights should have the right to choose and that pertains through religious reasons.

Please know that this bill does not serve the people of Hawaii- it is not the way of Hawaii as it stands on its own as the islands that are at their core very spiritually centered Or as America which stands for having a choice and freedom, that always should apply to bodily autonomy. Please reconsider this dangerous and shameful bill, do not be on the wrong side of history here.

This poses a serious moral dilemma for those who oppose abortion. Religious exemptions should be allowed due to the nature of these vaccines and our basic religious rights as Americans as stated in the first amendment of the bill of rights.

also, if kids are getting vaccinated against diseases, to make them immune to them, what difference does it make if another child does NOT have it?

Dr. Casandra Simonson MD FAAP

Testimony for HB1118

In Support

My name is Dr. Casandra Simonson. I'm a pediatrician in Maui, where I have worked with the underserved and Native Hawaiian keiki for over 10 years. I'm speaking today on my own behalf and not representing anyone else, in strong support of HB1118. I love babies, I love their first smiles. I love helping parents find those little moments of joy in between the stress and the worry about whether or not their baby is doing well. As a parent to 3 keiki myself, I know parents never want their babies to feel pain or suffer. Your worst fear is that they could die.

I want to take this opportunity to do something that I should have already done, but was too afraid to do it. I want to apologize to my patients and families who are hesitant to immunize. I have often avoided talking much about immunizations with you out of fear. I didn't want to push you away. I didn't want you to reject me. Recently, I heard from a mother who had lost her daughter to meningitis. She said outright "my pediatrician never told me this could happen. If they would've warned me, I would've given my daughter the immunization that would have saved her life." It dawned on me that in my attempt to be friendly and approachable, that I was doing your child and you a disservice by not clearly telling you what it is like to watch a child to die from meningitis. Every time a family signs a refusal form, I see her. My memory flashes back to that hospital room and to the moans and wails of her mother and her father screaming her name. He screams and chokes out the words "I am so sorry I missed your birthday party." I see her pupils, fixed and staring, from the pressure of pus in her brain. My hand holding my stethoscope to her chest, hearing her heartbeats come further and further apart until they stop. I look up, still with my hand to her chest, and nod an acknowledgement to the family and nurse that she is gone. "Time of death." May you never hear those words. May I never speak them again. Every time you sign a immunization refusal, I relive this. And yet I haven't told you that story. I am a coward and I am sorry. I am here today to promise I will do better. I owe you an apology for the brief conversations about immunizations and for not better helping you process your feelings, your fears, the rumors that you've heard. I should've given you my time, my energy, my patience because each of your keiki are worth it. Every keiki deserves protection. This bill will help protect us all.

Thank you to the Chair, Vice Chair, and Committee for your time.

Dear Honorable Chair, Vice Chair, and Members of the Committee,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to H.B. NO. 1118, which seeks to repeal non-medical exemptions to school immunization requirements in the State of Hawaii. This bill infringes on fundamental constitutional rights, disregards important legal precedents, and violates the principles of bodily autonomy and informed consent.

1. Violation of Constitutional Rights

This bill contradicts the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, which protects religious freedom. The removal of religious exemptions effectively forces individuals with deeply held religious beliefs to violate their conscience, an act which the U.S. Supreme Court has repeatedly ruled unconstitutional in cases involving religious liberty (Wisconsin v. Yoder, 406 U.S. 205 (1972), Sherbert v. Verner, 374 U.S. 398 (1963)).

- Wisconsin v. Yoder, 406 U.S. 205 (1972). Retrieved from <https://www.oyez.org/cases/1971/70-110>
- Sherbert v. Verner, 374 U.S. 398 (1963). Retrieved from <https://www.oyez.org/cases/1962/526>

Furthermore, the bill disregards the Fourteenth Amendment's Due Process Clause, which protects individuals from state-imposed medical procedures without consent. The Supreme Court in Washington v. Harper, 494 U.S. 210 (1990) ruled that "forcible injection of medication into a nonconsenting person's body represents a substantial interference with that person's liberty."

- Washington v. Harper, 494 U.S. 210 (1990). Retrieved from <https://www.oyez.org/cases/1989/88-599>

Additionally, the Ninth Amendment ensures that rights not explicitly listed in the Constitution are still retained by the people, which includes medical autonomy.

2. Precedents Against Mandatory Vaccination Policies

While the government has a legitimate interest in public health, its powers are not absolute. In Cruzan v. Director, Missouri Department of Health, 497 U.S. 261 (1990), the Court affirmed that individuals have a fundamental right to refuse medical treatment. This ruling sets an important precedent, reinforcing the right of parents to make medical decisions for their children, including the refusal of vaccines based on religious or philosophical beliefs.

- Cruzan v. Director, Missouri Department of Health, 497 U.S. 261 (1990). Retrieved from <https://www.oyez.org/cases/1989/88-1503>

Additionally, in Prince v. Massachusetts, 321 U.S. 158 (1944), the Supreme Court ruled that while the state has an interest in public welfare, it cannot override parental rights when it comes to personal religious beliefs and medical decisions, unless there is a direct and immediate threat.

- Prince v. Massachusetts, 321 U.S. 158 (1944). Retrieved from <https://www.oyez.org/cases/1943/98>

3. President Trump's Position on Medical Freedom

Former President Donald J. Trump has clearly stated his opposition to mandatory vaccinations. In 2019, he declared that vaccinations should be a personal choice, and in September 2020, his administration emphasized that no vaccine should be forced on any American citizen.

“I do not support forcing Americans to take vaccines. It should be a personal decision,” Trump stated.

His administration implemented the Executive Order on Preventing Mandatory Vaccination Policies, reinforcing that medical decisions must remain voluntary.

4. Ethical and Medical Considerations

Mandating vaccines without exemptions creates a dangerous precedent for medical coercion. Historically, forced medical procedures have been ruled unconstitutional and unethical.

- Nuremberg Code (1947) – Established ethical guidelines for human medical experimentation, emphasizing informed consent and voluntary participation in medical procedures.
 - Nuremberg Code (1947). Retrieved from <https://www.nejm.org/doi/full/10.1056/nejm199711133372006>
- World Medical Association (WMA) – Declaration of Helsinki – Reinforces ethical medical treatment, ensuring that patients cannot be coerced into medical interventions.

<https://www.wma.net/policies-post/wma-declaration-of-helsinki-ethical-principles-for-medical-research-involving-human-subjects/>

5. Impact on Individual Rights and Public Trust

Eliminating non-medical exemptions will erode public trust, leading to further resistance to public health initiatives. The Supreme Court rulings and global medical ethics guidelines reinforce that medical decisions must be based on informed consent and personal choice.

Conclusion

I urge the Hawaii State Legislature to reject H.B. NO. 1118 in defense of religious freedom, parental rights, and bodily autonomy. The Constitution, Supreme Court rulings, and statements by national leaders all reinforce the principle that medical decisions must remain a matter of informed consent and personal choice.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB 1118, which seeks to eliminate personal and religious exemptions for vaccinations in Hawaii. This bill is an alarming overreach that disregards fundamental constitutional rights, stripping parents and individuals of their ability to make medical decisions in alignment with their deeply held beliefs.

Religious freedom is a cornerstone of our Constitution, and forcing individuals to choose between their faith and education is unacceptable. Many families have sincere religious objections to vaccines, and removing this exemption would violate their rights. The government should not interfere with these deeply personal decisions.

Furthermore, medical freedom is essential. Parents, not the state, should decide what is best for their children’s health. HB 1118 assumes a one-size-fits-all approach to medicine, ignoring the reality that medical decisions must consider individual risks, prior adverse reactions, and unique health conditions.

Additionally, this bill fails to acknowledge those who have already been granted religious or personal exemptions. While it allows some exemptions to be grandfathered in, this unfairly creates two classes of students—those who are allowed to exercise their religious rights and those who are not. This is discriminatory and unjust.

I urge you to oppose HB 1118 and stand for medical freedom, religious liberty, and parental rights. Hawaii should respect its citizens’ ability to make informed health choices rather than mandating medical procedures against their will.

Thank you for your time and for representing the people of Hawaii. I respectfully ask you to vote NO on HB 1118.

I strongly oppose HB1118, which seeks to remove religious exemptions for vaccinations in Hawaii. This bill violates our constitutional right to religious freedom, undermines parental authority, and disregards medical autonomy.

The First Amendment protects religious beliefs, including the right to decline medical procedures that conflict with faith. Forcing vaccination against religious convictions is unconstitutional and sets a dangerous precedent.

Parental rights are also at stake. Medical decisions should be made by families, not the government. Children have unique health needs, and one-size-fits-all mandates ignore personal and medical risks. The National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program has paid billions to families affected by vaccine injuries - proof that risks exist. No family should be forced to take on that risk against their will. Children shouldn't be penalized by schools, programs or doctors offices who are not vaccinated either.

Medical freedom is essential. Bodily autonomy means individuals must have the right to informed consent, free from coercion. Removing religious exemptions forces compliance at the expense of personal choice, which is an overreach of government power.

I urge you to NOT PASS HB1118 and protect the rights of Hawaii's families to make personal, faith-based medical decisions.

Thank you for taking the time to consider my testimony. I was born and raised in Hawaii and love our community and island home. I strongly OPPOSE this bill.

“My body, my choice” has long been a core value of Democrats. The right to choose what happens to your body is a sacred, fundamental and inalienable right. Citizens should have the right to a religious or conscientious exemption to vaccines for themselves and their children.

Also how are the unvaccinated putting the vaccinated at risk? The point of the vaccine is that if you get it, you won't get the disease. After I got the Yellow Fever vaccine, I didn't then wait till everyone in Southeast Asia got the Yellow Fever vaccine before going there. I was safe around the unvaccinated because I had gotten the vaccine. The logic of vaccinated being at risk around unvaccinated does not hold. Unless the vaccines don't stop transmission. In which case, the vaccinated are at risk around the unvaccinated AND the vaccinated. The logic of mandating a vaccine that doesn't stop transmission is also faulty.

Violating someone's right to choose what happens to their body is incredibly serious. To even consider taking it away should require rock solid logic coupled with a very dire, deadly public health emergency the vaccine would undoubtedly solve. We are not remotely in that scenario.

Please please please respect our right to choose what injections/medications do and don't go into our bodies. Mahalo for your consideration.

Dear Chair, Vice Chair, and Members of the Committee,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB1118, which seeks to restrict non-medical exemptions to immunization requirements. This bill undermines informed consent, parental rights, and medical freedom, which are foundational principles of a free society.

HB1118 disregards vaccines inherent risks by attempting to eliminate the ability of individuals and parents to make personal medical decisions. Each person’s health needs and risk factors are unique, and blanket mandates fail to account for the complex and deeply personal nature of healthcare choices. By removing non-medical exemptions, this bill would coerce individuals into accepting medical interventions that may not align with their religious beliefs.

Every child has the right to attend public school without being forced to compromise their religious beliefs. The First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution guarantees the free exercise of religion, which includes making medical decisions in accordance with one's faith. Public education should be inclusive and respect the diverse beliefs of all students, rather than forcing them to choose between their faith and their education.

The principle of informed consent dictates that individuals must have the right to decline medical procedures without coercion or penalty. By restricting exemptions, HB1118 sets a dangerous precedent that could lead to further erosion of medical choice, religious freedom, and bodily autonomy.

I urge you to oppose HB1118 and instead prioritize policies that respect medical freedom, informed consent, and individual rights. The government should not dictate medical decisions, especially because the National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program (NVICP) has paid out nearly $4.6 billion to individuals and families who have suffered vaccine-related injuries and deaths. This staggering amount, documented in the Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System (VAERS), underscores the fact that vaccines, like any medical intervention, are not without risk.

If you believe in “My body, my choice” then this belief should be protected even if you personally make a different choice with yours.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I respectfully request that you vote against HB1118.

Sincerely,

Laura Haug

Aloha Committee Members,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to any bill that seeks to remove religious exemptions, as it directly violates the First Amendment and is fundamentally unconstitutional.

The First Amendment of the United States Constitution guarantees the right to freedom of religion, including the right to practice one’s faith without government interference. Forcing individuals to act against their deeply held religious beliefs strips them of their constitutional protections and sets a dangerous precedent for government overreach.

Furthermore, removing religious exemptions for children in schools is discriminatory and unjust. Every child, regardless of their religious beliefs, has the right to a free and equal education. By eliminating these exemptions, the government is effectively barring children from attending school simply because of their faith. This not only violates their constitutional rights but also denies them access to education, which is a fundamental right in our society. No child should be excluded from learning and growing alongside their peers due to their family’s religious convictions.

Religious exemptions have long been recognized as a critical safeguard in a diverse society where people hold different beliefs. Removing these exemptions not only infringes on personal liberties but also creates educational discrimination against children whose families hold sincere religious convictions. The Constitution was designed to protect the rights of the people—not to empower the government to dictate personal religious practices.

No government should have the authority to compel individuals to act against their conscience or religious convictions. To remove religious exemptions is to deny Americans their fundamental right to religious freedom, a right that has been protected since the founding of our nation.

I urge you to uphold the Constitution and protect the religious liberties that define our democracy by rejecting this bill.

Sincerely,
Lacey C

I oppose the fundamental premise of this bill (HB1118). This bill is an outright infringement of our first amendment rights. It is shameful that our elected officials would even entertain the idea of denying a citizen of the United States (who chooses to reside in the State of Hawai'i) the right to their freedom of religious expression. The government was not intended to have a say on how one can or cannot practice their religion when it comes to a parent's decision on why they chose to abstain from vaccinations. It is the parent's job to make sovereign decisions for thier children, not the role of an elected official.

I am here to express my concerns about passing HB1118 requiring children to be vaccinated in order to attend school in Hawaii with no exemptions. While I understand the importance of public health, I believe this policy violates both religious freedoms and parental rights.

Religious Freedom

The U.S. Constitution guarantees our right to practice our religion freely. Many families, including mine, have religious beliefs that guide our healthcare decisions. Mandating vaccinations without allowing exemptions for religious reasons interferes with our right to make these decisions based on our faith. This is a direct violation of our religious freedom.

Parental Rights

Parents have the right to make decisions about their children’s health and education. Requiring vaccinations to attend school takes away that right and forces parents to choose between their child’s education and their personal beliefs. Parents should be able to make informed decisions about what is best for their child’s health.

Health and Medical Autonomy

Parents should be in control of their child’s medical decisions. Vaccines, like all medical treatments, can have risks, and not all children respond the same way. Some children may have adverse reactions to vaccines, and parents should not be forced into a decision that could harm their child. We need to trust parents to make the best choice for their child's health with the guidance of healthcare providers.

Conclusion

Mandating vaccinations for school attendance is an overreach of government power. It violates religious freedoms, parental rights, and medical autonomy. Instead of imposing forced mandates, we should focus on providing parents with the information they need to make informed decisions.

I respectfully urge you to reject this law and protect the rights of families in Hawaii. Thank you for your time and consideration.

I oppose Bill HB 1118. I believe this is a pro-choice decision and my body my choice decision. We shouldn't be able to determine which vaccines if any for our child. I have two family members and two close friends who suffered strokes just a few days after the Covid vaccine. I do not feel comfortable with Josh Green's choice as he told me personally that he was never for mandates but here he is pushing mandates. The money put forward by the drug companies to push this agenda is in plain sight on public record.

The United States of America was founded upon religious freedom amongst other things. This bill is an abomination to democracy. Mandating vaccination for children, including the Covid MRNA vaccine (which isn't even a vaccine but rather expired gene therapy) is completely irresponsible and gross government overreach. My body, my choice does not just apply to abortion, it applies to any medical decision. Which vaccines we choose to give our children is between our family and our doctor. State legislature has no business here. Hawai'i must oppose this big Pharma funded bill for the sake of our keiki and our freedoms of choice over our own bodies.

I oppose this bill as it strips Parents of their rights to determine the best course of medical care for their children. It is an essential right for individuals to determine when and what medical care is needed for themselves and their dependents. The state has no business legislating medical mandates and must maintain the constitutional separation between church and state.

Subject: STRONG OPPOSITION to HB1118 – Protect Parental Rights & Medical Freedom

To Whom this May Concern,

I strongly oppose HB1118, a dangerous and unconstitutional attack on parental rights, religious freedom, and medical choice. No government has the authority to force medical procedures on children or strip parents of their fundamental right to make informed healthcare decisions.

This bill is nothing short of medical tyranny. Eliminating non-medical exemptions will coerce families into compliance, forcing them to choose between their deeply held beliefs and their children's education. It will not build trust in public health—it will fuel resistance and drive families out of the school system or even out of Hawai'i entirely.

HB1118 must be defeated. Medical decisions belong to families, not the government. Vote NO and protect the rights and freedoms of Hawai'i's people.

Sincerely,

LeAnn Takayama-Paiva

I OPPOSE BILL 1118

I believe people should have the right to medical freedom. As we know, childhood illnesses help to build a strong immune system. In addition, there have been aborted fetus cells in some of the immunizations. This alone is a basis for religious exemption. In 1986 there was a bill passed which makes the manufacturers not responsible for harmful effects of their shots. Until they have been tested fully and the manufacturers have accountability, I will oppose this bill.

Aloha Committee Members/Legislators,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to any bill that seeks to remove religious exemptions, as it directly violates my constitutional rights and the rights of countless other families.

As a parent, I firmly believe that I should have the right to make decisions based on my religious beliefs without government interference. The First Amendment guarantees freedom of religion, and taking away religious exemptions forces families like mine to choose between following our faith or complying with laws that go against our deeply held beliefs. That is not freedom—that is government overreach.

More importantly, removing religious exemptions for schoolchildren is discrimination. Every child deserves access to a free education, regardless of their family’s religious beliefs. By eliminating these exemptions, you are excluding children from school simply because of their faith, which is both unconstitutional and morally wrong. No parent should have to choose between honoring their religious convictions and ensuring their child gets an education.

This bill does not protect public health—it punishes families for their faith. Religious exemptions have existed for a reason, and removing them takes away a fundamental right that has been protected in this country since its founding. I urge you to stand for religious freedom and protect our children’s right to education by rejecting this bill.

Mahalo for your time,

Lacey Lien

I wonder why the DOE isn't speaking up in opposition to this? Do they have any idea how many parents will pull their kids out of schools?

Make no mistake about it, legislatures that support this bill have contempt for our constitution. Nevertheless, they are supposed work for us, the People.

Josh Greene is pushing this. Remember, he was the same one that was 100% incorrect about everything related to Covid.

I OPPOSE HB1118. Reasons:

It is an infringement on religious freedoms, specifically the 1st Amendment of the Constitution of the United States, in violation of the right to practice one's religion freely.

The sanctity of life is the belief of the Christian faith and One Love Ministries, that all life is given by and sacred to God. Therefore, God alone is sovereign over life. Abortion violates this belief. The fact that the cells grown from an aborted fetus were used in the development of most vaccines is grounds for any Christian to object and be exempt from receiving a Covid 19 vaccine.

(Genesis 2:7, Genesis 9:6, Psalm 139:13-16)

- Our body is a temple of the Lord in which the Holy Spirit dwells. Christians may object to mandated vaccines and ask for an exemption, because they would not want to put an experimental drug in their body, which is a temple of the Lord.

Honorable Chair, Vice Chair, and Members of the Committee,

I write in strong OPPOSITION to HB1118, which seeks to eliminate religious exemptions from Hawaii’s already draconian immunization requirements for school-aged children. This bill is an egregious attack on religious freedom, parental rights, and bodily autonomy, and it sets a dangerous precedent for government overreach into deeply personal medical decisions.

The First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution guarantees religious liberty, ensuring that individuals are free to practice their faith without government interference. HB1118 would force families to violate their deeply held religious beliefs in order to access education. This is not just an issue of health policy—it is a direct assault on religious freedom.

Many religious traditions emphasize bodily integrity and the belief that medical interventions should be a matter of personal conscience. Some faiths object to vaccines derived from or tested using fetal cell lines, while others oppose any medical procedures that alter the natural immune system. To strip families of their right to make medical decisions in accordance with their faith is tyranny, not public health policy.

Parents have an inherent and natural right to make medical decisions for their children. Government bureaucrats should not override the personal, informed choices of families. By removing non-medical exemptions, this bill forces parents into compliance with state mandates, disregarding their ability to weigh risks and benefits for their own children.

Proponents of HB1118 argue that public health outweighs individual choice, but since when does the government get to determine what risks parents must accept? Where does this end? If the state can dictate forced medical procedures today, what else can it mandate tomorrow?

Let’s not forget the recent history of government-imposed medical coercion. During the COVID-19 era, Hawaiians were forced to choose between their livelihoods and a experimental shot that we now know was never fully tested for safety and efficacy and had pages of side effects released later that were not available at the time for informed consent. We saw:

- Unlawful mandates that prolonged suffering and stripped away personal freedom.
- Censorship of those who questioned government narratives.
- Power-hungry bureaucrats who ignored informed consent and medical ethics.

This bill continues that dangerous trend, entrenching government control over personal medical decisions. The argument that "public health emergencies justify extreme measures" has been weaponized to strip away freedoms, and those measures have only expanded since COVID-19, not disappeared.

Supporters of HB1118 claim that eliminating religious exemptions is necessary for herd immunity and protecting vulnerable children. However, history does not support this claim. States that have removed religious exemptions have not seen significant changes in disease outbreaks, but they have seen increased medical discrimination and families forced out of schools.

Public health must balance protecting the community with respecting individual rights. The government does not own our bodies or our children—medical decisions must remain a matter of parental discretion, not state control.

If the goal is public health, the solution is education, not mandates. The state could:

1. Improve informed consent laws, ensuring parents receive unbiased information about risks and benefits.
2. Offer alternative accommodations, such as robust exemption education programs, rather than outright bans.
3. Respect the diverse medical and religious beliefs of Hawaii's families instead of forcing compliance through legislation.

The true test of a free society is whether it protects individual rights even when it's inconvenient for those in power. Hawaii has already gone too far down the road of medical authoritarianism. Our elected officials should be working to restore personal freedom, not eliminate what little remains.

I urge this committee to reject HB1118 and uphold the fundamental rights of parents, individuals, and religious communities.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,
Nicholas Zehr

Sample testimony

"I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB 1118, which seeks to eliminate personal and religious exemptions for vaccinations in Hawaii. This bill is an alarming overreach that disregards fundamental constitutional rights, stripping parents and individuals of their ability to make medical decisions in alignment with their deeply held beliefs.

Religious freedom is a cornerstone of our Constitution, and forcing individuals to choose between their faith and education is unacceptable. Many families have sincere religious objections to vaccines, and removing this exemption would violate their rights. The government should not interfere with these deeply personal decisions.

Furthermore, medical freedom is essential. Parents, not the state, should decide what is best for their children’s health. HB 1118 assumes a one-size-fits-all approach to medicine, ignoring the reality that medical decisions must consider individual risks, prior adverse reactions, and unique health conditions.

Additionally, this bill fails to acknowledge those who have already been granted religious or personal exemptions. While it allows some exemptions to be grandfathered in, this unfairly creates two classes of students—those who are allowed to exercise their religious rights and those who are not. This is discriminatory and unjust.

I urge you to oppose HB 1118 and stand for medical freedom, religious liberty, and parental rights. Hawaii should respect its citizens’ ability to make informed health choices rather than mandating medical procedures against their will.

Thank you for your time and for representing the people of Hawaii. I respectfully ask you to vote NO on HB 1118."

Aloha Committee Members,

Unfortunately, vaccination has become a controversial political football. Development of modern vaccines throughout the 20th century has brought unheard of health benefits to humans worldwide. Since 1950, we have Globally Eradicated smallpox, a scourge of humanity from ancient times that killed hundreds of millions, if not billions. We have almost globally eradicated polio, another millenia old killer of mankind. Only in the most remote and least develop places is polio still infecting people.

COVID-19 vaccines developed through the visionary leadership of the Trump Administration saved countless lives in America and abroad. We no longer fear devastating outbreaks of measles, anthrax, polio, malaria, yellow fever, and whooping cough in this country. We are blessed by God to have had such incredible health interventions.

I do not often discuss my Catholic faith in public debates, but I am deeply inspired by the Culture of Life articulated by the Church. Protecting and nuturing life from natural conception to natural death is a core part of humanity. Ensuring bonum commune (Common Good) is essential to a functioning society, with responsible adults.

I STRONGLY URGE this Committee to SUPPORT this bill!

Aloha,

I am writing to oppose HB1118, which would remove religious exemptions for school vaccinations in Hawai‘i. While I understand that vaccinations help prevent diseases, I believe this bill takes away important rights from parents and families.

1. Parents Should Have a Choice

Parents should have the right to decide what is best for their children. Some families have strong religious or personal beliefs about medical decisions, and they should not be forced to choose between following their beliefs or sending their child to school.

2. Protecting Religious Freedom

In America, we have the right to practice our religion freely. Some families choose not to vaccinate because of their religious beliefs. This bill takes away that choice and does not respect personal faith and values. If the state removes this religious exemption, what other rights could be taken away next?

3. Every Child is Different

Not every child’s body reacts the same way to vaccines. While medical exemptions exist, they are very hard to get, even when there are real concerns. Families should not have to fight for basic medical rights when it comes to their children’s health.

4. What’s Next?

If this bill passes, it sets a dangerous precedent. Today, the government says religious beliefs don’t matter when it comes to vaccines. What will they take away next? People should always have the right to make informed decisions for their families.

5. The Impact on Schools & Families

Hawai‘i already struggles with school attendance and a high cost of living. If children are not allowed to attend school because their families have religious beliefs against vaccines, more families may be forced to leave Hawai'i. This bill could make things harder for local families who are already struggling.

I believe in keeping people healthy, but we cannot ignore parental rights and religious freedom. Families should not be punished for making medical decisions that align with their beliefs. I strongly urge you to reject HB1118 and protect the rights of Hawai'i families.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Respectfully,

Anela

As a Christian educator with children, I strongly oppose the revocation of religious exemptions and to advocate for the fundamental right of parents to make choices that align with their faith and values. With living through COVID and having to take additional precautions to complete my tasks and perform my job, I understand that vaccines can be a way to create safety. However, I do believe that every family should have the right to decide and ensure it aligns with their faith and values.

Equally important is the right of parents to make decisions regarding their children's upbringing, education, and healthcare. Parents, not the government, are best equipped to determine what is in the best interest of their children, particularly when it comes to matters of faith and conscience. Revoking religious exemptions would force many families into situations where they must choose between their beliefs and compliance with state mandates—an unjust and unnecessary burden.

Religious exemptions and parental choice are not barriers to progress; they are safeguards of personal liberty and diversity. True inclusivity means respecting different perspectives and ensuring that no family is forced to compromise its values. I urge lawmakers to uphold these essential freedoms and protect the rights of individuals and parents to live according to their beliefs without fear of coercion.

Mahalo for your time,

Nashea

I am writing in strong opposition to HB1118, which seeks to repeal non-medical exemptions to immunization requirements. This bill is a direct attack on personal freedom, parental rights, and medical choice. The government must not have the power to force medical procedures on children or any individual.

The Government Should Not Mandate Medical Decisions

Medical decisions should be left to individuals and families, not the government. The risk of adverse reactions to vaccines is real, and HB1118 fails to address who will be held accountable if a child suffers from a severe reaction.

- Will the government accept responsibility for vaccine injuries?
- Will the state provide compensation for those who suffer adverse effects?

By mandating vaccines without allowing religious or personal exemptions, the government is overstepping its authority and removing informed consent, a fundamental principle in medical ethics.

The Hypocrisy of "My Body, My Choice"

The same lawmakers who advocate for "my body, my choice" in the context of abortion are now pushing forced medical procedures on children. This is a blatant contradiction—either individuals have bodily autonomy, or they do not.

- Why is bodily autonomy only respected when it fits a political agenda?
- If parents do not have the right to refuse a vaccine for their child, what will be mandated next?

HB1118 is Unconstitutional

This bill violates the U.S. Constitution by infringing on religious freedoms and parental rights.

- First Amendment – The right to religious freedom is protected under the First Amendment. Forcing parents to vaccinate their children against their beliefs is an unconstitutional government overreach.
- Fourteenth Amendment – The Due Process Clause protects the right of parents to direct the upbringing and medical decisions of their children.
- Ninth Amendment – Rights not explicitly stated in the Constitution are still retained by the people. The right to make personal medical decisions is one of them.

HB1118 Sets a Dangerous Precedent

If the government can mandate medical procedures for children, what is next? Will they extend mandates to adults? Will they decide what other medical treatments are compulsory? This is a dangerous path toward medical authoritarianism.

HB1118 Does Not Consider Natural Immunity or Individual Health Concerns

- Many children already have natural immunity to certain diseases. Why should they be forced to take a vaccine they do not need?
- One-size-fits-all medicine is bad science. Medical decisions should be based on individual health needs, not government mandates.

Vote NO on HB1118 – Protect Medical Freedom

This bill is an unconstitutional, unethical, and dangerous overreach of government power. I urge you to oppose HB1118 and stand for personal liberty, parental rights, and medical choice.

Vote NO on HB1118.

I stand in strong opposition to HB1118.

This Bill seeks to eliminate non-medical exemptions to vaccination requirements, which infringes on the right to make personal healthcare choices based on religious beliefs.

Due to its capacity to significantly limit the ability of individuals to opt out of vaccinations based on their religious beliefs, it would force citizens to choose between their faith and medical compliance.

If we have concerns about the safety and efficacy of vaccines, we should have the freedom to make the decision to opt in or out.

This is a violation of our fundamental constitutional rights.

It is a competent individual's decision to refuse medical procedures is an aspect of liberty protected by the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment.

I urge you to oppose HB1118.

Thank you for respectfully listening to my voice of concern; may heartfelt wisdom guide your decision,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB1118, which seeks to eliminate religious exemptions for school children. As a concerned citizen, parent, and advocate for religious freedom, I urge you to vote against this legislation, which directly undermines the fundamental rights of families to make decisions in accordance with their deeply held religious beliefs.

Religious liberty is a cornerstone of our nation’s foundation, enshrined in the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution. By removing the option for religious exemptions, this bill disregards the sincerely held beliefs of many families who seek to exercise their right to make healthcare decisions in accordance with their faith. Such a measure not only infringes upon religious freedom but also sets a dangerous precedent for government overreach into personal and parental rights.

Parents are best equipped to make informed decisions regarding their children's health and well-being. This bill would force families to choose between their faith and access to education, a choice that no parent should be forced to make in a free society. Furthermore, children who have been thriving in their educational environments would face unnecessary disruption, leading to potential negative social, emotional, and academic consequences.

Additionally, it is essential to acknowledge that religious exemptions have coexisted with public health policies for decades without significant detriment to overall public health. The current framework already allows for balanced measures that respect both public health interests and religious freedom. Removing religious exemptions does not significantly enhance public safety but instead alienates and marginalizes families who adhere to their spiritual convictions.

In a diverse and pluralistic society, it is crucial that we uphold the principles of tolerance, inclusivity, and respect for differing beliefs. Legislators have a duty to protect the rights of all constituents, including those whose religious convictions guide their healthcare decisions. I urge you to oppose HB1118 and uphold the fundamental freedoms that make our country a beacon of religious liberty.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I respectfully request that you reject this bill and protect the rights of parents and children to exercise their religious freedoms without government coercion.

Comments:

I am submitting testimony in strong opposition to HB1118, which seeks to eliminate religious exemptions for school immunization requirements. While I fully support efforts to protect public health, this bill fails to justify the need for such an extreme measure. It creates an unfair two-tiered system, infringes on religious freedom, and is based on incomplete data that does not show a true public health crisis.

1. HB1118 Creates a Two-Tiered System That Treats Children Unequally

This bill allows children who previously received a religious exemption to remain in school but denies the same right to their younger siblings. In my own family, my older child would be allowed to continue attending school with a religious exemption, while my younger child would be forced to comply with a mandate that contradicts our deeply held beliefs.

This arbitrary distinction:

- Discriminates based on birth year, treating one child differently from another simply because they were born later.
- Unfairly divides families, forcing parents to comply with contradictory rules for different children.
- Lacks consistency, as it acknowledges that religious exemptions were acceptable in the past but suddenly deems them unacceptable moving forward.

If the legislature believes that religious exemptions do not pose a significant public health threat for children already in school, then there is no logical reason to deny the same exemption to younger students.

2. HB1118 Violates Religious Freedom and Parental Rights

The First Amendment guarantees the right to freely exercise religion, and for many families, medical decisions—including vaccinations—are deeply intertwined with their faith. Forcing families to choose between their faith and their child’s education is not pono.

3. The Bill Ignores the Lack of a Public Health Crisis

The bill claims that declining vaccination rates justify eliminating religious exemptions but fails to provide evidence that this has caused increased disease outbreaks or a rising public health problem.

- Where is the data? HB1118 cites a rise in non-medical exemptions but does not demonstrate a corresponding rise in vaccine-preventable diseases.
- No documented harm. The bill does not provide statistics showing an increase in illness, hospitalization, or death due to declining vaccination rates.
- Hawaii already has high immunization rates. Herd immunity remains intact despite the existence of religious exemptions, proving that they have not caused widespread public health risks. And if a vaccine like Covid-19 does not stop transmission, then herd immunity is irrelevant.

Legislation should be based on clear evidence of harm, not on speculative concerns about future risks. If there were a true crisis, the bill should include specific outbreak data demonstrating how religious exemptions are directly causing increased health risks. The fact that this evidence is missing raises serious questions about the necessity of HB1118.

Conclusion

HB1118 is an unnecessary and unjustified overreach that creates an unfair, two-tiered system, violates religious freedom, and is based on incomplete data that does not prove a public health crisis. If religious exemptions remain valid for older students, they must be equally valid for younger students. I urge you to oppose HB1118 and protect the rights of Hawaii families to make informed medical decisions in accordance with their faith.

Aloha Legislators,

Tonight I have been informed that this hearing is this Friday. I am not able to be there in person. I stand OPPOSED to HB 1118. This is something that is personal and should not be forced upon anyone. This is like someone who has diabetes, who wants to refuse treatment and not do dialysis. This is like someone who has cancer, and wants to decline treatment. Are you going to force someone to do treatments against their will? This is an individual's choice.

Passing a bill such as this is opening a "can of worms" that the government will be faced with in civil lawsuits. And that means being bogged down with more time and expenses.

Please don't pass this bill.

Testimony in Strong Opposition to HB1118 House Committee on Health

Chair Takayama, Vice Chair Lee Loy, and Members of the Committee,

I submit this testimony in strong and unwavering opposition to HB1118, which seeks to eliminate the non-medical, including religious, exemptions to school vaccination requirements. This bill represents an egregious overreach of government authority, trampling on fundamental rights of bodily autonomy, parental authority, and religious freedom—rights that are protected under both the U.S. Constitution and the Hawai'i State Constitution.

The decision to vaccinate must remain with families, not the government. Parents and guardians have the inherent right and responsibility to make medical decisions in the best interests of their children. Stripping away this right disregards the diversity of medical, ethical, and religious beliefs that exist in our society. It is not the role of the State to dictate what medical interventions must be administered to a child, especially when those interventions carry inherent risks.

Furthermore, this bill violates religious freedom. The First Amendment guarantees that individuals shall be free to exercise their religious beliefs without government interference. By removing the religious exemption, HB1118 directly attacks this fundamental freedom, forcing families to choose between their faith and their child's education. This is an unconstitutional and unconscionable mandate.

The principle of informed consent—central to ethical medical practice—demands that individuals have the right to accept or decline medical procedures without coercion. Vaccinations, like any other medical intervention, carry risks, including severe adverse reactions. It is a grave injustice to compel a medical procedure upon a child when a parent, guided by medical research, ethical concerns, or deeply held beliefs, deems it inappropriate.

I urge this committee to uphold the principles of bodily autonomy, parental rights, and religious freedom. The government must not force medical interventions on children against the will of their families. HB1118 is an unjust and unconstitutional bill that must be rejected and is a dangerous precedent that undermines fundamental liberties.

For the preservation of medical freedom and constitutional rights, I strongly urge you to OPPOSE HB1118.

Mahalo for your time and consideration and thank you for your service,

Laura Acasio

Comments:

Aloha Chair and Members,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB1118. This bill not only imposes unconstitutional restrictions but also infringes upon the fundamental rights of individuals as enshrined in the U.S. Constitution.

Violation of Constitutional Rights

1. First Amendment – Freedom of Speech and Expression

The proposed legislation unduly restricts the ability of individuals to express their personal and professional views. The First Amendment guarantees that individuals and organizations have the right to freely express themselves without undue government interference. If enacted, this bill would impose unconstitutional restrictions that could lead to censorship and suppression of lawful speech.

2. Fourteenth Amendment – Equal Protection and Due Process

The bill unfairly discriminates against certain individuals and groups, creating an unconstitutional disparity in how laws are applied. The Equal Protection Clause mandates that all individuals be treated equally under the law, and this bill would violate that principle by unfairly targeting specific populations. Additionally, the Due Process Clause prohibits the government from depriving individuals of their rights without fair legal procedures, which this bill fails to uphold.

3. Tenth Amendment – State Overreach

This legislation encroaches upon rights that should be left to individuals rather than being mandated by state or federal authorities. The Tenth Amendment reserves powers not delegated to the federal government to the states or the people, and this bill disregards that principle by attempting to regulate matters beyond its rightful scope.

Additional Concerns

Beyond the constitutional violations, this bill sets a dangerous precedent by granting excessive authority to the government over personal decisions. It undermines individual autonomy and opens the door to further encroachments on fundamental rights.

Conclusion

I urge this committee to reject HB1118 in its entirety. Not only does it fail to serve the interests of justice, but it also violates core constitutional protections that define our democracy. I respectfully request that you consider the implications of this bill and uphold the constitutional rights of all citizens by opposing its passage.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Testimony Opposing HB118

Dear Chairperson and Members of the Committee,

I am writing today in strong opposition to HB1118, which seeks to eliminate the religious exemption to vaccinations for school attendance. This bill is a direct attack on religious freedom and parental rights, and it sets a dangerous precedent for government overreach into deeply held personal and religious beliefs.

Key Concerns:

1. Violation of Religious Freedom

The right to religious freedom is protected under the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution. Many families hold sincere religious beliefs that prevent them from vaccinating their children. Forcing vaccination against these beliefs is a clear violation of their constitutional rights and could set the stage for further erosion of religious liberties.

2. Parental Rights and Medical Choice

Parents, not the government, should have the final say in what medical interventions are best for their children. Removing the religious exemption strips families of their ability to make informed medical decisions in line with their faith. This is an unacceptable overreach that disregards the fundamental rights of parents.

3. Lack of Justification for Removing Religious Exemptions

There is no compelling evidence that eliminating religious exemptions is necessary for public health. States with religious exemptions have not seen widespread outbreaks solely due to these exemptions. Many religious families also practice natural health and wellness, which contributes to their children's overall well-being.

4. Discrimination Against Religious Communities

By eliminating religious exemptions, HB1118 would disproportionately harm religious minorities and communities that hold alternative health beliefs. It could result in exclusion from education, forcing parents to homeschool or seek costly private alternatives, placing undue burden on families with limited resources.

Alternative Solutions:

Rather than eliminating religious exemptions, policymakers should focus on education, transparency, and informed consent, allowing families to make medical choices that align with their faith and values. Respecting religious diversity is a cornerstone of our nation's principles, and this bill disregards that foundation.

Conclusion:

For these reasons, I strongly urge you to vote NO on HB1118. This bill is an infringement on religious freedom, parental rights, and informed medical choice. The government should not have the power to force medical interventions that conflict with a family's sincerely held beliefs. Protecting religious liberty is essential to maintaining a free and just society.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I respectfully ask that you uphold our fundamental rights by rejecting HB1118.

Sincerely,

Nalani Hunsaker

I OPPOSE BILL 1118

I believe people should have the right to medical freedom. As we know, childhood illnesses help to build a strong immune system. In addition, there have been aborted fetus cells in some of the immunizations. This alone is a basis for religious exemption. Some of the shots havent even been tested fully. In 1986 there was a bill passed which makes the manufacturers not responsible for harmful effects of their shots. Until they have been tested fully and the manufacturers have culpability, I will oppose this bill.

This bill eliminates non-medical exemptions from immunization requirements for school entry, effectively removing the previous option for parents or guardians to opt out of required vaccinations based on religious beliefs.

Comments:

My name is Astrid Drolson, a resident of Kapa‘a, Kaua‘i, and I am writing to strongly oppose HB1118. This bill seeks to remove non-medical exemptions for school immunizations, which is a direct violation of religious freedom, medical autonomy, and the constitutional rights of Hawai‘i’s citizens.

Overview of HB1118

HB1118 aims to increase immunization rates by eliminating non-medical exemptions for school entry. While it allows children with existing religious exemptions for the 2024–2025 school year to remain exempt, it prevents future families from making faith-based medical decisions for their children. The bill preserves medical exemptions for children with qualifying conditions and ensures that students with individualized education programs continue receiving necessary services.

Why I Oppose HB1118

1. Violation of Religious and Constitutional Rights

The First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution protects the free exercise of religion. By eliminating religious exemptions, HB1118 forces parents to choose between their deeply held beliefs and their children’s education. This is an unconstitutional infringement on religious liberty.

2. Discrimination Against People of Faith

Many religious traditions include moral or ethical objections to specific medical interventions, including vaccinations. Preventing new religious exemptions unfairly discriminates against future families who hold these beliefs and sets a dangerous precedent for further erosion of religious freedoms.

3. Coercion and the Violation of Informed Consent

Medical decisions should be based on personal choice, free from government pressure. Informed consent requires that individuals be allowed to weigh risks and benefits without coercion. HB1118 removes this fundamental right by forcing compliance as a condition of school attendance.

4. Legal and Ethical Concerns

Other states that have attempted to remove religious exemptions have faced significant public resistance and legal challenges. This bill could lead to costly litigation for the state, as it undermines well-established constitutional protections.

Conclusion

While public health is important, HB1118 goes too far by stripping away the rights of individuals to make personal medical decisions in accordance with their faith and conscience. I strongly urge you to oppose HB1118 and protect the religious and medical freedoms of Hawai'i's residents.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Astrid Drolson

To exempt families for making a religious or even a concerned decision in protecting their kids from vaccinations as well as vaccine side affects like that of the Covid 19 vaccinations is their choice and decision as a family and should never be decided for them by the government. Perhaps we should focus our attention on bigger issues such as the homeless population or foreigners buying up our Aina, instead of forcing families to choose the health of their kids over receiving an education.

Aloha Chair and Committee Members,

I am writing in strong opposition to HB1118. This bill is government overreach, plain and simple. It threatens our fundamental rights-our right to bodily autonomy, our right to make medical decisions based on our own beliefs, and parents' rights to protect their keiki.

Hawai'i is built on respect-respect for our families, our kupuna, our keiki, and our personal choices. This bill disrespects all of that. It ignores the fact that every body is different, that medical treatments come with risks, and that no one-especially the government-should have the power to force those risks on anyone.

Medical decisions are personal. Every medical treatment, including vaccines, carries a risk of adverse effects-neurological issues, autoimmune disorders, long-term health complications. Those risks may be rare, but for the families affected, they are life-changing. The government has no right to decide that some level of risk is "acceptable" for someone else's child. That decision belongs to the parents, to the families, to the people who will actually live with the consequences.

HB1118 also tramples on religious freedom. Many in our community hold deep spiritual and religious beliefs that guide their medical choices. These beliefs should be honored, not dismissed by politicians who think they know better. No law should ever force someone to violate their faith to comply with a government mandate.

This is about more than just one bill. If we allow this level of government control over our personal health decisions, where does it stop? What else will they decide they have the right to force on us? Our keiki are not the property of the state. Parents-not lawmakers-should be the ones making these choices.

I urge you to stand with the families of Hawai'i. Protect our rights, our freedom, and our keiki. I humbly ask that you all vote NO on HB1118.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Chris Caoagdan

I am opposing the bill HB1118 as I strongly believe it is our right to have a choice to what we do to our children's bodies. No form of government should be able to override what a parent knows is best for their child's health and well being. The media often says that there is no link between vaccines and autism or other neurological injuries. There is actually ample evidence that vaccines can cause injury to children and it has been cited for decades.

Vaccines may be helpful at times, but there is still a risk to a child's health when getting immunized. Parents need to have a choice in this. I have been a school teacher for over twenty years. I taught during the covid pandemic and now during a whooping cough outbreak, I have taught children who are vaccinated and many who are not.

Unvaccinated families have taken extra measures to keep their children healthy, and when they're sick, keep them out of school.

Requiring immunizations for all children in order to attend school is taking away our constitutional rights. We as parents must have a choice, especially because there's a risk.

I oppose HB1118, and plead that you do not pass this bill. Vaccines are full of harmful toxins and heavy metals that have injured millions of children with everything varying from basic immune deficiencies to severe loss of speech and normal cognitive and physical capabilities. Pharmaceutical companies are released of any liability for these children (while vaccines are a high profit business for them) and doctors are too, as well as not knowing how to help these children heal. Giving vaccines to our children should be the choice of parents, who know their child and their current health, and NOT the government.

Health comes from the inside out, and if the government wants to support children's health, please create initiatives for education and more funding for farmers to grow and provide healthy organic food for every family, and ban the abundance of cheap snacks made with tons of toxic chemicals (many of which are already banned in Europe) that are destroying our gut microbiome and healthy immune system that is naturally designed to fight off the pathogenic bacteria and viruses.

Please DO NOT pass this bill.

I strongly oppose bill HB1118! Aiming to deny our religious freedom from any and all vaccine injections for the purpose of attending public school is a violation of our constitutional right to have freedom of religion and the right to pursue happiness. The immediate and long term side effects that compromise the quality of life that is our inherent birth right is appalling. With all my God given rights I oppose this bill whole heartedly.

As a mom to 5 I believe it is my sole religious right what is injected into my children's body . I do not think that doing away with religious exemptions is threatening any lives . If you believe that a vaccine is saving lives why worry about the unvaccinated. You forced Covid vaccinations how well did that turn out? where was the science behind putting countless youth at risk for side effects the rest of their lives. I kindly ask that if you believe so deeply in your vaccine that you trust that the majority of the population will be safe after getting their vaccine and that you leave the parents religious beliefs and our American rights in place .

Dear Members of the Legislature,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB1118, which seeks to eliminate religious exemptions for vaccination requirements. As a concerned citizen of Hawaii, I believe this bill infringes upon the fundamental rights guaranteed to us by both the Hawaii State Constitution and the United States Constitution.

First and foremost, the Hawaii State Constitution Article I, Section 4 explicitly states, "No law shall be enacted respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." The elimination of religious exemptions for vaccinations directly contradicts this provision, as it prohibits individuals from exercising their religious beliefs freely.

Moreover, Article I, Section 2 of the Hawaii State Constitution asserts, "All persons are free by nature and are equal in their inherent and inalienable rights." This includes the right to bodily autonomy and the right to make decisions about one's own health and well-being. By removing religious exemptions, the state is undermining these inherent rights and imposing a one-size-fits-all approach that disregards individual beliefs and circumstances.

Furthermore, Article I, Section 5 guarantees, "No person shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, nor be denied the equal protection of the laws." The removal of religious exemptions not only infringes upon religious freedom but also fails to provide due process and equal protection for those whose beliefs conflict with mandatory vaccination requirements.

In addition to the protections offered by our state constitution, the First Amendment of the United States Constitution ensures that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." This fundamental right to religious freedom is a cornerstone of our democracy and must be upheld at all levels of government.

The implications of HB1118 are far-reaching and set a dangerous precedent. By eliminating religious exemptions, the state is essentially saying that individual beliefs and freedoms can be overridden by legislative action. This raises a critical question: What constitutional rights will you look to remove next? If the state can mandate vaccinations without regard to religious beliefs, what other personal freedoms and protections will be sacrificed in the name of public policy?

In conclusion, I urge you to reconsider the implications of HB1118 and to respect the constitutional rights of all Hawaii citizens. The elimination of religious exemptions for vaccinations is not only unconstitutional but also a violation of the fundamental principles of freedom and autonomy that our nation and state hold dear. I respectfully request that you oppose HB1118 and uphold the rights and freedoms guaranteed to us by the Hawaii State Constitution and the United States Constitution.

Thank you for your attention to this critical matter.

Sincerely,

Keoki Edwin K. Liftee-Kau

Comments:

I am submitting this testimony in strong opposition to HB1118, which seeks to remove the right to a religious exemption from vaccination requirements for school attendance. This bill is a direct infringement on religious liberty and parental rights and disregards the deeply held convictions of many families in our state.

Religious Liberty Must Be Protected

Our nation was built on the fundamental principle of religious freedom, and removing the religious exemption disregards this fundamental right. Faith-based objections to vaccinations are rooted in sincere beliefs, and forcing individuals to violate their conscience to access education is both unjust and unconstitutional.

The First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution and numerous state protections guarantee the right to practice one’s faith without government coercion. The government has no place dictating which religious beliefs are valid and which are not.

Parental Rights & Medical Autonomy

Decisions regarding a child’s health and medical care belong to parents, not the government. By eliminating the religious exemption, HB1118 would force families to choose between their faith and their child’s education, an impossible and unfair choice. Parents must be able to assess medical risks and make informed decisions based on their values and beliefs.

No Justification for Removing the Exemption

There is no compelling public health emergency that warrants eliminating religious exemptions. In fact:

- States that uphold religious exemptions have not seen a surge in outbreaks caused by exempted individuals.
- Vaccination rates remain high despite the presence of exemptions, meaning that those who choose not to vaccinate for religious reasons pose no substantial risk to public health.

Discriminatory Impact on Religious Communities

If this bill is enacted, it will disproportionately affect religious minorities and conscientious objectors who hold beliefs that do not align with government mandates. It could lead to educational discrimination, forcing many faith-based families into financial hardship as they seek alternative education options outside the public system.

A Call for Respect and Balance

Public health policies must be balanced with the preservation of individual rights and freedoms. Instead of coercion, policymakers should focus on education, dialogue, and transparency, allowing families to make decisions in accordance with their faith.

Conclusion

For these reasons, I urge you to oppose HB1118 and uphold the rights of parents and religious individuals. This bill is an unnecessary attack on religious freedom and medical choice that does not serve the public good. Faith and conscience must never be sacrificed for the sake of government mandates.

Please vote NO on HB1118.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,
Michael Hunsaker

Vaccines are neither safe nor effective. Our next door neighbor died hours after getting a vaccine shot for Covid. My daughter, who has been vaccinated for Covid, gets sick fairly often since then. I have observed that friends and colleagues who have gotten vaccinated for Covid have faced and continue to face health challenges that they did not before getting vaccinated. Regarding vaccines in general, there remains the legitimate question regarding the connection between autism and vaccines. Also, not everyone reacts the same when exposed to toxins in the environment. Some are able to withstand what is debilitating to others. This is explained as it relates to chemical toxins in the environment in the book Our Stolen Future by Theo Colborn and John Peterson Myers (Dutton Adult, March 1996). Vaccines can be dangerous and harmful, and what has been granted under the title of religious exemption is nothing less than the freedom to choose our personal medical treatment, which is the birthright of every citizen of the world. Please oppose HB 1118 and allow Hawai'i's parents the freedom to continue to choose what is right for their children.

OPPOSEING BILL 1118

I strongly oppose Bill 1118 because I believe in the fundamental right to medical freedom. Childhood illnesses play a natural role in strengthening the immune system, and removing non-medical exemptions disregards parental choice in healthcare decisions.

Additionally, some vaccines have been developed using cell lines derived from aborted fetal tissue and harmful metals (causing major health problems) which raises serious ethical and religious concerns for many individuals. This alone should warrant the continuation of religious exemptions. Furthermore, certain vaccines have not undergone long-term testing to fully assess their safety. The 1986 National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act granted manufacturers immunity from liability for vaccine-related injuries, meaning they are not held accountable for potential harm.

Until vaccines are thoroughly tested and manufacturers are held responsible for any adverse effects, I cannot support a bill that forces medical procedures without the option for informed refusal. Bill 1118 strips parents and guardians of their right to make medical decisions based on their beliefs and concerns, and I urge lawmakers to reject it.

The very foundation of our Nation was built on Religious Freedom and it is OUR INALIENABLE RIGHT, ENDOWED BY OUR CREATOR, to Exercise our Religious Beliefs However We See Fit!

Parents, NOT Elected Officials, get to decide based on their deep held beliefs whether or not they want to vaccinate their children. Hawaii, with our dictatorial governor Green at the helm, continues to have NO Regard For the Citizens of Hawaii and our Rights to Bodily Sovereignty! If you vote yes and pass this bill you are telling all of us who stand in opposition of this bill that you have NO RESPECT and NO REGARD for the Constitution and the Freedoms bestowed on each and every citizen of Hawaii! Stripping Parents of their God Given Rights is not just wrong it is Illegal and if this bill passes this will not be the end of this! We will not allow our rights to continue to be trampled on! Comments: I strongly oppose HB 1118, which seeks to eliminate religious exemptions for vaccinations. Vaccines come with risk and where there is risk, there should be choice. As the world observed during COVID, not all vaccines prevent the transmission of communicable diseases, nor do they always provide immunity to the recipient. Our rights and children's rights to participate in society, receive an education, and practice our faith should not be determined by injections. I urge you to consider the history of vaccine failures and recalls. I urge you to acknowledge that MANY products, once licensed by the FDA and deemed safe and effective, are often found deadly, harmful, and ineffective years later. I urge you to consider that many people have sincere religious objections to injecting vaccines into their bodies (like contamination of their blood/God-given bodies, a betrayal of their Faith, the use of aborted fetal cells in many vaccines' manufacture, etc). The government should not interfere with one's privately held religious beliefs and force people to choose between their faith and education. I vehemently oppose HB1118 and ask our representatives to do the same. Mahalo, Carey Vierra

Hearing Date: [2/7/25]

Chair(s), Vice Chair(s) , and Members of the Committee:

Aloha,

My name is Skye Rhoden, and I am submitting testimony in strong opposition to HB1118, which would remove religious exemptions for school vaccinations in Hawai'i. While I understand the public health benefits of vaccinations, I believe this bill undermines essential parental rights and religious freedoms.

1. Parents Should Have the Right to Make Medical Decisions for Their Children

Parents are the primary decision-makers when it comes to their children's health and well-being. Some families hold strong religious or personal convictions about medical treatments, and they should not be forced to choose between adhering to their beliefs and ensuring their child receives an education. The government should not interfere in such deeply personal decisions.

2. Preserving Religious Freedom

Religious freedom is a fundamental right in America. For many families, vaccination decisions are not simply about health but about faith and conscience. Eliminating religious exemptions disregards this fundamental freedom and sets a dangerous precedent for the erosion of personal and religious liberties.

3. Every Child is Different

Not every child's body responds the same way to vaccines, and while medical exemptions exist, they can be extremely difficult to obtain—even when legitimate concerns are present. Families should not be burdened with unnecessary legal or bureaucratic battles when making informed medical decisions for their children.

4. The Dangerous Precedent of HB1118

This bill raises a significant question: if religious beliefs are dismissed in the context of vaccinations, what other rights might be taken away next? The government should not have the authority to override religious convictions, especially when these beliefs have long been respected under the law.

5. The Impact on Schools and Local Families

Hawai'i already faces challenges with school enrollment and the high cost of living. If children are barred from attending school due to their families' religious beliefs, more families may feel forced to leave the state. This legislation may unintentionally deepen Hawai'i's existing socioeconomic struggles by placing additional burdens on local families.

Conclusion

While public health is important, it should not come at the expense of parental rights and religious freedom. Families should not be penalized for making medical decisions that align with their deeply held beliefs. I strongly urge this committee to reject HB1118 and to uphold the rights of Hawai'i families.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Respectfully,

Skye Rhoden.

My testimony in opposition to HB1118

My religious beliefs are very personal to me. I am guided in everything I do by my faith. To be able to practice my religion without judgment or question is simple human decency, and I find it very offensive for our Governor and Legislature to invade the spiritual realm of my life. In order to explain why vaccines conflict with my religious beliefs, I'm going to start by telling you a bit about my own personal background. I've been spiritual my whole life. As a child, I felt God's omnipresence at a young age. My spirituality has been shaped by my interpretation of the Bible as well as several other sources to include the Urantia book which is one of the primary religious texts I grew up with. My parents read it extensively and so I was very familiar with the truths contained in this book which was a shaping force in my life and my identity. It guided me thru difficult times and helped me appreciate and value the best times. For anyone not familiar with the Urantia Book, it is very much about God, the life and teachings of Christ Jesus, the order of the universe, and truth. It is not in itself a religion and it embraces no specific practices other than personal prayer conducted in your own individual way. It's not an exclusive belief system and is compatible with other openminded religious beliefs or faiths. It provides ways to see, believe, act, and live in order to become a better human and find happiness, meaning, and fulfillment, and describes 'religion' as a purely personal and spiritual experience. "Religion is ever and always rooted and grounded in personal experience." The Urantia Book (102:8.7) "...True religion is a meaningful way of living dynamically face to face with the commonplace realities of everyday life." The Urantia Book, (99:4.3) "Religion is destined to become the reality of the spiritual unification of all that is good, beautiful, and true in human experience." The Urantia Book, (5:4.7)

As with any relationship, my relationship with God has evolved throughout the years. It was during my time as a young adult that I got caught up in my sense of self, human ego, and materialistic desires. I became preoccupied with more of the physical sense of life and existence which left me regularly ignoring my built-in spiritual sense. Looking back, I had lost touch with my faith. During those years I would rarely feel a oneness with God or His infinite love. Good would often seem fragmented or temporary and I often felt burden on my shoulders and fear in my heart. I held onto a mortal sense of myself during this period where my identity was locked into a physical existence bound by material birth and extinguished by physical death, and this would act like an anchor on my life dragging on all of my thoughts and all of my actions. It was during this time that I was driven mostly by money and made decisions based primarily on material comforts and material discomforts and financial gain. It was during this period of my adult life that I did choose to vaccinate and would exclusively seek medical and pharmaceutical treatment options for illness and pain. In retrospect, all of those things made me weak and stole away at the unlimited spiritual being that I am. My wife and I eventually found ourselves locked into very costly litigation over an investment property that we owned in Florida. But it wasn't until my Dad died during his battle with gall bladder cancer that made me realize that there was something missing in my faith.

My Dad was only 55 years old when he passed on. He had always been a very strong and powerful man. I had put my faith into his doctors and the chemo and radiation they were administering. They explained it was working and causing his tumor to shrink. But all I could see was his physical body slowly weaken and whittle away and die. Right before his death he told us that he was dying. It wasn't because of the tumor he explained, it was the chemo that was killing him. To me, it was like using dynamite for a rat problem in the basement of your house. Yeah the rat infestation would no longer exist. But neither would your house. For my Dad, the chemo and radiation attacked both the cancer cells and the good cells in his body. It shrunk the tumor but killed his immune system. After his death, I was plunged into a deep dark period of grief, I was angry. I was furious at his doctors, I was petrified of cancer, and I was angry at God. It wasn't that I began to question God's existence. I had far too much experience in my life so I knew that God existed. But I did begin to question God's all-goodness and His care and love for me.

What I needed was a deeper understanding of God. So I pulled out my bible and spent many months reading with one goal in mind, to find God and to gain a clearer understanding of His divine love that Christ Jesus knew so well. By doing this, I began to realize the infiniteness of God, of God as the eternal life, as our creator and the One that maintains each one of us at the point of health and safety in life. And Jesus's life on earth proved that this relationship we all have with God makes a huge difference in our daily lives. I began to realize, with respect to my fear of cancer, that fear is darkness. Fear is our perception of the absence of God's infinite good, and the second we perceive a little bit more, our relationship with God to that degree, fear begins to go away. Jesus taught us to challenge fear and to not get caught up in all the material sense of life. And so the way I found my freedom from all this anger and fear and financial stress and the loss of my dad was to open the light in my thoughts, to open the light to God, which is infinite light, and find the light within that disperses the darkness. Which is what I worked towards.

It wasn't until my wife and I decided to have children when I felt my faith fully transform me. I felt so loved by the allness of this infinite divine good that I turned even more to God and found the spiritual path that is right for me and my family. It was at this point where I truly began to believe in the healing message of God's great love as found in the Bible and the Urantia Book, and how to improve health and overcome disease through natural, holistic, and spiritual healing methods. This is when my family and I stopped ALL vaccination. My kids (currently age 12, 11, and 9) are the most vibrant and healthiest children I have ever seen and they have NEVER been vaccinated. My wife and I have filed religious waivers for vaccinations for all our children every year with the Hawaii State School System for their school, sports teams and extra-curricular activities. All three of our children were born at home naturally without any drugs or medication. This natural way is our way of life. It includes how we care for our entire health and well-being of the body, mind and soul through natural means supported by scripture. It is what I have found to be the most effective way for me to deal with medical needs.

It is my belief from Christ Jesus teachings and practice and prayer and my own personal relationship with Him, that I view God as divine good, as only good that never punishes, never causes sickness or pain or viruses or death but shows rather how to overcome them. I believe Christ Jesus showed the world the nature of God as love that enabled Him to heal through divine love. Jesus taught that there is an intersection between our spirituality and our daily experience. Scripture is very clear that health comes from God (Job 5:17-27; Hos. 6:1). Throughout almost all of the bible, medicine and physicians are seldom mentioned and reliance on them is sometimes considered wrong or useless (Mark 5:26): “And who had suffered much under many physicians, and had spent all that she had, and was no better but rather grew worse” (2 chron 16:12-13) “In the thirty-ninth year of his reign Asa was afflicted with a disease in his feet. Though his disease was severe, even in his illness he did not seek help from the Lord, but only from the physicians. Then in the forty-first year of his reign Asa died.” (e.g. also see Luke 8:43-48; Mathew 7:13-14), while health and healing is attributed to God (for example, Exod. 15:26; 1 Kings 17:17-24; 2 Kings 5:1-14; Mark 6:7-13; Acts 3:1-10; Acts 9:32-35; James 5:14-15).

Based upon my experience and scripture, God has already provided the medicines we need to heal and maintain our health. It is not for us to use drugs and vaccines for medical care. I believe God created an abundance of natural healing remedies, and that it is in our best interest to tune in to his wisdom and educate ourselves in how to restore and/or maintain our health and wellness by the use of what he created for us. Among these incredible gifts are the oils and herbs of plants. God created them and gave us the intellect to discover and learn how to use them. Essential oils are the true essence of a plant and each plant has its own set of benefits that is different from any other plant. They provided people of ancient times with the tools needed to tend to the sick and keep themselves free of pain and disease. The bible has countless passages about healings and health. Mark 6:13, “...and anointed many sick people with oil and healed them.” In fact essential oils from plants are mentioned almost two hundred times in the bible, and many of them are still in common use today. And there are numerous examples and scientific studies that show the many ways these plants can safely and effectively be put to use.

By learning how plants were used in the Bible, I have become more in touch with my faith, and feel closer to God and Christ Jesus as I use them in my everyday life. “With my holy oil have I anointed him” (Psalm 89:20); see also, Matthew 2:11. God spoke these words, and this simple act of anointment—in this case, directly from God—and shielded him from every adversary and illness for the rest of his life. By the time David became king, healing oils had been a pillar of health and spirituality for 1000s of years.

My family and I use many of these natural oils as medicine to protect against infection and treat illness and injuries. If we have a cold, or headache, or a respiratory issue, we have found that essential oils can be just as effective, or more so, as many over-the-counter medications—without all the side effects that come from a pill. Some essential oils also provide antiviral benefits, arguably going beyond what a pharmaceutical decongestant can accomplish. I personally rely on dragons blood (sap from dracaena cinnabari tree) for cuts and scrapes; oregano oil as my antibiotic; lavender and tea tree oils to calm any anxiety; frankincense for insect bites; kukui nut oil to heal sunburn, white willow bark for pain relief; eucalyptus for congestion, just to name a few.

When I was infected with COVID-19 during the pandemic, I never wavered in my faith, and my family didn't either. I took no medications nor received any medical care. I chose instead, as our family always does, to treat the illness solely with natural herbs and oils and prayer—and was able to get through it with relative ease. Another example, last year I had a surfing accident where my surfboard hit the bottom of my foot so hard that 3 of my toes folded backwards leaving 1 toe fully dislocated at the knuckle and hanging off to the side. I didn't go to the emergency room; instead, my wife helped me get my toe back into place and, through prayer and the constant massaging of the injured area and white willow oil to ease the pain, I was able to find freedom and healing from that injury without any sort of medical intervention. Another example of how we incorporate natural healing into our spiritual journey, my wife has had numerous cases of skin cancer throughout her life with scars from multiple surgeries. Through prayer, my wife found God-inspired wisdom of the natural power of a combination of larrea, graviola, oleander and sanguinaria plant root extracts that has worked wonders on treating spots of skin cancer she has had over the past 10+ years. It has been an amazing thing to witness her apply it to spots of squamous and basal cell skin cancer and watch only the bad skin cells scab up while the good skin remains unaffected, and—a few days later—the skin cancer just falls out and her skin heals without any scarring. It's amazing. To rely upon your belief in spiritual power you will be strengthened inwardly by God's omnipotent power. Isaiah 40:29-31: "He gives power to the weak, and to those who have no might He increases strength..." The power of the Holy Spirit is the same power that "God raised Christ from the dead" Ephesians 1:19-20, and is the power that me and my family long have relied upon instead of medical interventions, pain killers, or vaccinations. I am one with God and seek wellness in the Holy Spirit, Romans 15:13: "Now may the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, that you abound in hope by the power of the Holy Spirit". The power of God protects my family from disease for God can even raise the dead. Luke 7:14-15, God said, "Young man, I say to you, get up!" The dead man sat up and Jesus gave him back to his mother.

I could go on-and-on with examples but to keep from going too long I'll provide one last description of how my family and I use prayer and God's natural medicines to combat disease and remain healthy. After what happened to my own Dad when he died from his chemo and radiation treatment, it was no question, to my wife and I, how powerful and incredible of an immune system God created in us. This truth was further revealed this past year when my wife's 76-year old father (who lives with us) was diagnosed with stage-4 esophageal cancer and given a terminal diagnosis and less than 10 months to live. Based on the size and location of the tumor that was bleeding internally, his doctors at Kaiser said there wasn't anything they could do for him, but they wanted to put him on an aggressive dose/regime of chemo and radiation that could possibly help further the study and understanding of how this type of cancer reacts. After much praying, my wife immediately got him out of the hospital and got him on a natural cancer regimen based on nutritional and spiritual treatments which have literally transformed his life and turned him into a brand new person. Within months he was off of all his medications. All of his long standing pre-existing health conditions disappeared. He's no longer diabetic. His high blood pressure and high cholesterol are now perfect. He has lost over 70 pounds; he looks 20 years younger; feels strong, healthy, and happier; and is in the best shape he's been in for the past 30+ years. Even his gray hair has started to turn dark.

Another amazing aspect to this story is that a few months ago he had 3-straight days of a healing experience quite similar to those gospel accounts of healing when people came in contact with Christ Jesus and experience a sudden life-changing healing through prayer. It was incredible to see the tears of joy streaming down his face as he described being "visited" with heavenly energy in the location of his tumor: the first day it was warm energy that seemed to be working in and around his tumor for over 30 minutes. The next day he described this incredible energy checking in and around that same location; and the third and final day, he described it as a “party” as if the energy was celebrating that he had been healed. This was such a momentous experience for our whole family that we recorded him on video as he described what had happened so we could document his experience. And I need to add that my father-in-law is a very scientific man, with 3 engineering degrees, so this entire experience has literally rocked his world. Every indication and test so far shows that his tumor is gone. And if you ask my father-in-law, he will straight-up tell you that he has been completely cured. This experience has been one of the most amazing things I have ever witnessed and just another amazing testimony to how we can all put God’s word into practice and incorporate the tools that he has given us. My father-in-law had terminal cancer and given 10 months to live and he is now 10 months past his diagnosis and is fully of energy, vitality and is more vibrant than ever.

It is through prayer and scripture that guides me in all decisions I make in life. I believe in healing myself with prayer, nutrition, and the oils and herbs of God’s plants and natural remedies instead of drugs, vaccines and surgery. I believe vaccination is an act of being unfaithful to God because I believe God enables immunity and keeps me and my family healthy. These religious beliefs are all I need for God to take care of me and my health. James 5:14-16, “Is anyone among you sick? Let them call the elders of the church to pray over them and anoint them with oil in the name of the Lord. And the prayer offered in faith will make the sick person well; the Lord will raise them up. If they have sinned, they will be forgiven. Therefore, confess your sins to each other and pray for each other so that you may be healed. The prayer of a righteous person is powerful and effective.” I believe that God wants us to gather in prayer to heal and use nature’s oils and nature’s remedies to heal. It is my religion to do the above and to strictly rely on the wisdom of God for my family’s health needs without interference from any drugs or vaccine or medical intervention. It is with deep conviction that I do not vaccinate because of my religious beliefs.

I appreciate you taking the time to understand my deeply held personal religious beliefs regarding vaccinations and medical interventions. Please don’t repeal the religious exemption from immunization requirements! Wishing you peace, happiness and health.

Sincerely,
Joseph Shuan

HB No. 1118 Proposes to repeal the religious exemption of immunizations for school children. I oppose this for several reason, first being that I have family members who have had adverse reactions to a vaccines and their doctors refused to acknowledge or admit the correlation and causation of the reaction so no medical exemption would be available to them. The religious exeption gave us protection from harm.

This bill makes claims about strong evidence of effectiveness based on decades of experience. No mention is made about the negative effects on children: cases of SIDS, which was not a syndrome before wide spread vaccination standards were in place or the correlation to ADHD or autism. No mention is made of the studies showing that unvaccinated children are actually healthier with stronger immune systems - fewer doctor visits, fewer cases of syndromes or long term health issues than thier vaccinated counter parts. Unfortunately these studies get over shaddowed by the 'evidence' gathered by the pharmaceutical industry who profit on our injury for years to come. They create problems and sell us solutions and donate to political campaigns to propose bills like this one.

Education on how to boost natural immunity would do far more and cost less than imposing requirements on injecting undisclosed elements into our children. Gov. Green, in all his white board presentations during covid made no mention on how to be healthy or boost our natural immune system - he just said stay away from people and wear a mask, which just like requiring vaccinations, hurts more than helps.

Aloha,

I strongly OPPOSE house bill number 1118. Religious freedom has been foundational to the establishment of our country and a fundamental right since its conception. Religious freedom may not be important to everyone, but limiting, restricting, or removing it endangers all of our other fundamental freedoms we enjoy in this country. Exercising our deeply held religious beliefs when it comes to our health, and the health of our children is paramount to our pursuit of life, liberty and happiness Please vote NO to protect and preserve religious freedom, and all other freedoms.

Aloha nui,

I am writing today in strong OPPOSITION to this bill HB1118. As a Native Hawaiian, and mother of school-aged children, we do appreciate the option and freedom to choose what we put into our bodies. The Religious Exemption has allowed our ‘ohana to have keiki in school without the mandate to inject unwanted, foerign, and harmful materieals into their growing bodies. The RE allowed us a very necessary and accurate representation of how we value life and care for our health. Certain ingredients like "Fetal Cell Lines" as seen on Immunization inserts go against our values and beliefs. Health is not a "one size fits all" system. We believe our government, communities, and schools should certainly resepect that, as I’m sure you also have your own beliefs, and freedoms to choose for your family what you feel is best. Please continue to honor all families by providing options in choosing what is right, for theirs. The Religious Exemption was put in place as an option for a reason, and this private information should NOT be taken away. It is a violation of safety to many who are facing this. Mahalo for taking the time to consider how THE PEOPLE feel---families just like you working hard to not only survive here in Hawai‘i but to thrive.

Aloha Chair Takayama, Vice Chair Keohokapu-Lee Loy and the Honorable House Health Committee Members:

I write in Strong Opposition to HB1118, the removal of religious exemptions to vaccination requirements.

1. Hawaii's proposed legislation, is a national outlier, as public opinion on exemptions has become more favorable in recent years:

- Since COVID the percentage of those who “strongly support” school-related vaccination requirements has fallen sharply, from nearly half (47%) of U.S. adults in 2019 to barely a quarter (24%) in January 2025 (According to a survey published last week by the Annenberg Public Policy Center at the University of Pennsylvania).
- Last month, West Virginia Gov. Patrick Morrisey issued an executive order allowing for religious exemptions from mandatory school vaccinations, ending one of the most restrictive vaccination policies in the country. West Virginia legislators are expected to introduce a bill to codify that executive order into law.
- Mississippi also began allowing religious exemptions in July 2023, Under a federal court order.

2. The bill intro claims we must sustain a 95% vaccination rate to obtain “herd immunity” and protect the immunocompromised who supposedly cannot receive vaccines (tho many do). This theory has been proven false over and over. Most vaccines on the CDC schedule are not sterilizing (i.e. Covid & Pertussis), only provide personal protection, or in fact actually create infectious shedding from the vaccine recipient. This is a known fact amongst live viral vaccines such as MMR, chickenpox, and Hepatitis A where recipients are advised to AVOID immunocompromised people after vaccination.

3. Religious freedoms are enshrined in our Constitution, an inalienable right, which no man should come between. The government should never be the arbiter of one's faith, especially when it pertains to the injection of foreign chemicals (that carry known & unknown risks) into our bodies, with the sole purpose of altering God's immune system.

4. Forcing people to choose between their deeply held religious convictions and school enrollment will not (as the bill intro claims) increase vaccination rates. It will decrease school enrollment as well as initiate another mass exodus from the state. Covid showed the Hawaii people just how unscientific and tyrannical Josh Green's government can be....they will not stand for a COVID 2.0.

With Aloha,

Dr. Kim Haine

Aloha Chair, Vice Chair, and Committee Members,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB1118, which seeks to remove non-medical exemptions for vaccinations in order to attend school. While I understand the intention of this bill is to address concerns about rising non-medical exemptions, I believe it fails to consider important factors that affect both public health and parental rights.

1. Concerns About Vaccine Risks: One of the key concerns for many parents, including myself, revolves around the potential risks associated with vaccinations. For instance, the FDA Fact Sheet for the DAPTACEL vaccine (Diphtheria, Tetanus, Pertussis) includes a warning regarding Guillain-Barré Syndrome and Brachial Neuritis, two serious conditions that have been linked to the vaccine. The FDA states, “A review by the Institute of Medicine found evidence for a causal relation between tetanus toxoid and both brachial neuritis and Guillain-Barré syndrome.” This means that after receiving the DAPTACEL vaccine, a child may be at increased risk for these serious conditions.

Furthermore, it’s important to note that vaccine manufacturers are not held liable for adverse reactions that may occur after vaccination. This is a critical factor for parents when considering whether to vaccinate their children, as they cannot seek compensation for injuries that result from these vaccines. Given this, many parents feel it is vital to have the option to choose non-medical exemptions based on their personal beliefs and concerns.

2. The Right to Parental Autonomy: Another significant concern with this bill is that it infringes upon parental rights. By removing the ability to use non-medical exemptions, parents would lose their autonomy to make informed, personal decisions about what is best for their children’s health. Every child is different, and what may be appropriate for one child may not be for another. The decision to vaccinate should be a personal one, made by the parents in consultation with their healthcare provider, not dictated by the state.

3. The Context in Hawai’i: I understand that this bill is intended to protect public health by increasing vaccination rates. However, the reality is that in Hawai’i, children are not dying from vaccine-preventable diseases. In fact, the current vaccine coverage rates in Hawai’i are relatively high, and there has not been a significant uptick in outbreaks of vaccine-preventable diseases. This suggests that while vaccination is important, the need for extreme measures like removing non-medical exemptions is not justified by the data.

In conclusion, I urge you to oppose HB1118 for the sake of our keiki and the rights of parents to make informed decisions about their children's health. This bill undermines parental autonomy and does not adequately address the concerns of parents who are worried about the risks associated with vaccination.

Thank you for your time and consideration

Kilihea Inaba (Kaloko, Kona, Hawai'i)

Hearing Date: February 7, 2025

House Conference Room 329 / Videoconference

Aloha Chair and Members of the Committee,

I am submitting testimony in strong opposition to HB1118, which seeks to eliminate non-medical exemptions from immunization requirements in Hawaii. This bill directly infringes on the rights of parents and individuals to make informed medical decisions based on their personal beliefs, religious convictions, and unique health considerations.

Every individual should have the freedom to choose what medical interventions they receive, especially when it comes to vaccinations. By removing non-medical exemptions, HB1118 disregards the deeply held religious and philosophical beliefs of many in our community, forcing compliance with a one-size-fits-all mandate that does not account for individual concerns.

This proposed legislation not only erodes personal freedom but also sets a dangerous precedent for government overreach into private health choices. Families who have legitimate concerns—whether due to religious faith, past adverse reactions, or ethical objections—would be left without any legal means to make decisions that align with their values and circumstances.

Hawaii has always been a place where diversity and personal freedoms are respected. This bill threatens that foundation by taking away a fundamental right: the right to choose what is best for our own bodies and our children's health.

I urge you to oppose HB1118 and protect the ability of Hawaii's residents to make personal, informed, and voluntary medical decisions.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

I'm strongly against taking away religious freedoms. I can't understand why it he governmsnet things it okay for others like the lgbt communities to have rights to be and do anything they want, but yet governments continue to find ways to take away religious freedom.

There are numerous studies that prove people who took that vaccine have a wide array of issues later in life verses those who did not. Usually the effects are not immediate. It's usually long term & people are now having to detox from the vaccines they took as kids. The toxins in these vaccines continue to cause various genetic mutations and there are studies to support this fact.

It's a known fact that pharmaceutical companies have a history of including toxic ingredients such as heavy metals. People no longer feel safe and trust them. Look at the list of lawsuits. Look at the list of prescriptions that were eventually pulled off the shelf. Look at the fact that they've had to reduce the mercury levels in vaccines over recent years and now they are going to have to eliminate entirely.

Can't take away civil liberties. Can't punish people for not complying. The only real reason politicians like our governor are pushing vaccines is because they are bought and paid for. I saw the federal data of payouts to him and other politicians during Covid. It's not right.

I oppose HB1118 because no person or child should be refused equal opportunities in school because of vaccines interfering with their beliefs and practices that keep them connected to God and spiritual practice. Vaccines often contain unknown ingredients including those of aborted fetus' and animals. Why should a child be forced to put these kinds of ingredients in their body so that they can go to school? Religious exemptions have existed up until now and there haven't been major issues in schools with overspread of sickness.

Testimony in Opposition to HB1118

Hearing Date: February 7, 2025

House Conference Room 329 / Videoconference

Aloha Chair and Members of the Committee,

I am writing in strong opposition to HB1118, which seeks to repeal non-medical exemptions to immunization requirements in Hawaii. As a parent, community leader, and advocate for personal freedoms, I firmly believe that this bill undermines the fundamental rights of Hawaii’s residents by removing the ability to make informed, personal, and religious medical decisions for themselves and their children.

Medical choices should not be dictated by the government, especially when they involve deeply personal convictions and beliefs. By eliminating non-medical exemptions, this bill forces families into compliance with medical procedures that may conflict with their religious faith, ethical convictions, or individual health concerns. The right to informed consent and medical choice is a core principle of bodily autonomy and should be protected, not stripped away by legislation.

Furthermore, this bill disproportionately impacts families who have valid concerns about vaccine reactions, long-term health effects, or philosophical and religious beliefs that guide their healthcare decisions. Hawaii’s diverse community is built on the values of freedom, respect, and cultural understanding—values that should extend to medical choice.

Additionally, removing non-medical exemptions sets a dangerous precedent by opening the door for further government overreach into personal health decisions. A one-size-fits-all approach to immunization disregards the individual circumstances of Hawaii’s residents and erodes trust between the people and their government.

I urge you to uphold the rights of Hawaii's families to make informed medical decisions without coercion. Please oppose HB1118 and protect the personal and religious freedoms that define our state.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Comments:

I strongly oppose the proposed bill to eliminate religious exemptions for vaccines in public schools. While public health is essential, this bill infringes on fundamental religious freedoms and parental rights to make healthcare decisions for their children.

1. Religious Freedom

The First Amendment guarantees the free exercise of religion. By removing religious exemptions, this bill violates the constitutional rights of parents to make decisions based on their deeply held beliefs. The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services affirms the importance of respecting religious convictions in healthcare matters.

2. Informed Consent

The CDC emphasizes that vaccination is a personal decision, and parents should have access to information to make an informed choice for their children. Removing religious exemptions disregards informed consent and forces families to choose between their beliefs and their children's education.

3. Equity and Legal Protections

Religious exemptions ensure that families are not discriminated against due to their faith. The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission notes that denying religious accommodations can violate civil rights, and this bill could unfairly penalize families with religious convictions.

4. Public Health and Individual Rights

While vaccination protects public health, the World Health Organization acknowledges that vaccine decisions are influenced by cultural and religious beliefs. We must balance public health with respect for individual freedoms, including religious rights.

In conclusion, I urge the committee to reconsider this bill, as it undermines both religious freedoms and parental rights in healthcare decisions.

To members of the Hawai'i Legislature House of Representatives:

I am urgently requesting that members of the House of Representatives consider the following reasons for voting “NO” on HB1118:

1. PARENTS MUST HAVE A RIGHT TO SCRUTINIZE AND OBTAIN TRUE MEDICAL CONSENT FOR ANY AND ALL MEDICAL PROCEDURES PERTAINING TO THEIR CHILDREN.

Any healthy, sane, vigilant parent would want to be provided with a full ingredient list and possible adverse reactions pertaining to any substance being proposed for injection into their child’s body. Denying parents rights to informed consent and the right to say “no” is depriving citizens of basic human rights. Removing the religious exemption is a move in the direction of depriving Hawai’i parents and children of basic human rights.

2. Consider, is it true or false that the following vaccines contain cloned cells of ABORTED FETAL TISSUE?: HepA (Havrix), Hep A/Hep B (Twinrix), MMRV (Proquad), Varicella

True. In every single dose of a vaccines containing there are pieces from the cultured cell line of an aborted fetus—referred to as “human diploid cells” in ingredient lists. Fetuses were aborted and still-living tissues were harvested and tested for culturing viruses as the basis for culturing “human diploid cells”.

Do you support the abolishment of religious exemption for pharmaceutical products that contain aborted fetal tissue?

3. mRNA “vaccines” tamper with God’s design:

Purposefully introducing human-manipulated genetic material (mRNA) that causes a body's healthy cells to start manufacturing foreign proteins is tampering with God's design. What's more, there is evidence (in the paper sourced below) that the mRNA in these shots trigger our cells to code for non-target proteins approximately 10% of the time introducing random proteins into our bodies.

Do you support the abolishment of religious exemption for pharmaceutical products that interfere with God's design by artificially forcing our cells to create proteins God did not design?

(Source: <https://www.nature.com/articles/s41586-023-06800-3>)

4. While there is a concern that unvaccinated children may pose a health threat to their school communities, there is actually evidence to the contrary.

For example, what is the proven efficacy of a DTaP vaccine (one on the childhood vaccination schedule)?

Children that have received the DTaP vaccine can still contract and spread pertussis. According to the FDA, those vaccinated with DTaP will have fewer symptoms of pertussis, but will become infected and transmit pertussis, and "will be more susceptible to pertussis throughout their lifetimes." This means the children vaccinated for pertussis are more likely to catch and spread pertussis as asymptomatic carriers, while the unvaccinated are less likely to catch pertussis (and when they do will have symptoms and know to stay home).

Why would you mandate a vaccine without any exemptions that does not stop the spread of disease?

<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pubmed/30793754>;
<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pubmed/29180031>)

As another example, what is the proven efficacy of a the IPV Polio vaccine?

The IPV polio vaccine actually DOES NOT prevent transmission. Only the oral polio vaccine has been shown to reduce transmission, however the oral polio vaccine is not in use because it can cause paralysis. For the last 20 years, the only polio vaccine used in the U.S. is inactivated polio vaccine ("IPV") and it only potentially prevents polio from traveling from the digestive tract to the spinal column. Hence, those vaccinated or not vaccinated with IPV can EQUALLY become infected and transmit polio; but, it is the vaccinated who are considered less likely to have symptoms and thus more likely to spread polio.

Why would you mandate a vaccine without any exemptions that does not stop the spread of disease?

(source: <https://www.archive.polioeradication.org/polio-today/polio-prevention/the-vaccines/ipv/>)

Again, why would you mandate a vaccine without any exemptions that does not stop the spread of disease?

Thank you for considering these reasons for maintaining school religious exemptions for medical procedures to uphold basic human rights and parent's rights for informed consent for their children's bodies.

I strongly oppose HB1118. Non-medical exemptions to vaccines include philosophical, conscientious, religious or personal beliefs. These exemptions should be protected as a human and informed consent right to make voluntary vaccine decision making.

HB1118 would be a grievous violation of one's sincere religious or personal belief in opposing toxic vaccination if this exemption to vaccines is removed now or in the future. The constitutional right to have and exercise personal religious beliefs is an expectation that should be respected. Laws should not be passed that obstruct the exercise of this most fundamental of freedoms.

Do NOT pass HB1118 out of your Committee!

I oppsoe this bill. It is a violation of our constituional rights to have a choice when it comes to medical procedure to our body. One size does nto fiit all. Religious exemption is a right not a privelage and Gov Dr JOsh Green, is ovewr reaching and trying to violate our constituional right to practice our religious rights specifically when it involves children.

OPPOSE HB1118. STRONGLY OPPOSE!

Not only would this infringe on our 1st and 14th ammendment rights but it has been proven that vaccines do -in fact- cause injury and/or development delays!! At the core principal of FREEDOM, people should have a CHOICE to decide what is injected (or NOT injected) into their bodies. There are several reasons why religion plays a part into the decision of vaccines. Some are as simple as belief in a higher being and ability for bodies to self-heal or for Ke Akua to heal the body and illness. Some vaccines are created with living organisms derived from animals or human fetus. These are in direct violation of religious beliefs of many.

You cannot take away rights AND also deny responsibility for those actions if and when children will be harmed from severe side effects. Holding harmless the manufactures and administrators of such vaccines is a clear sign that these vaccines not passing clinical studies are truly harmful.

Religion is a protected right. The 14th ammendment prohibits states from infringing on rights from those with sincere religious beliefs.

Here is just ONE article and ONE study showing that YES, Vaccinated Children ARE at a HIGHER RISK of developmental delays, asthma, and ear infections than unvaccinated children. The study point blank says "longer-term health outcomes related to these vaccines and the vaccination schedule as a whole are LARGELY UNKNOWN"

A religious family, putting their trust and faith in a higher being, and in good conscious, cannot and willnot inject their dear and beloved child with such poison!

OPPOSE HB 1118.

This is government tyranical overreach into our protected freedoms! OPPOSE!!!

Aloha,

My name is Chanda Ferge, and I strongly oppose the bill, HB1118. I believe that parents should have the ability to make medical decisions based on their religious beliefs, for their own children, without interference from the government. We all as Americans have a constitutional right to freedom of religious practices. Passing this bill would be violating our first ammendment right. It is unconstitutional.

Furthermore, this bill would create discrimination against children who would be grandfathered in (if they have already received a religious exemption) and those who would not be allowed to have a religious exemption. This is unjust.

Thank you for your time in reading my testimony. Again, I strongly oppose HB1118.

Thank you for your willingness to serve as our representatives and being our voice in government.

With regard to HB1118 - To remove religious exemption from vaccination requirements in schools is, I believe, a violation of our first amendment rights as American citizens to have the free exercise of and the freedom to live out the different religious traditions, customs, and beliefs that exist in our country, state, and communities. With DEI being in the spotlight now in our country, I feel this bill will not be helpful in bringing reconciliation between the opposing views on this issue of diversity, equity, and inclusion. By removing religious exemption from vaccination requirements in schools, you will be excluding families of different religious beliefs from being able to participate in and receive a free and appropriate public education in our state.

I'm sure with the different views and ideas of the many people who work in the medical/health field we can come to common ground and a consensus on things that families, who would like religious exemptions, could do to protect themselves as well as the larger community. Are vaccines the ONLY thing that could help protect our community? What is recommended for those people that have a medical exemption? We were able to come up with ideas and things for those families to do to help protect themselves so that they are able to participate in and receive a free and appropriate public education, and I'm sure we can come up with ideas and things for the families wanting a religious exemption to do to help protect themselves and the larger community as well, and not exclude their participation in and receiving a free and appropriate public education.

Please do not pass HB1118.

Thank you for taking the time to read my testimony.

The vaccination schedule for newborns through age 18 have increased significantly over the last twenty years. I am writing to express my opposition to eliminating religious exemptions to vaccines. Who is the government to tell private citizens how they must walk out their faith? Why should children be denied an education because of their parents' religious convictions? This measure is about pushing conformity and stomping on bodily autonomy and constitutionally protected rights to practice faith without government interference. The government's job isn't to micromanage our health or require we receive injections, many of which are inadequately safety tested, not that that should have any bearing on it anyway. Let the government focus on paving our roads and protecting us from criminals. We will manage our own health and matters of faith.

To the members of the Health Committee. I'm submitting this testimony in opposition to HB1118. I'm a parent to a child who currently attends a public school here in Hawaii, under a religious exemption from the vaccination requirement. I also have 2 younger children that are not of school age yet. If this measure were to pass, it would create a major conflict with my sincerely held religious beliefs and my ability to educate my children in the public school system. This measure would allow some of my children to receive a proper education, and exclude the others simply because the 1st child had an existing exemption. This proposal makes no practical sense, and it infringes upon my First Amendment right to practice my sincerely held religious beliefs. Furthermore, there appears to be no evidence that an increase to the number of religious exemptions has posed a threat to the community. Please consider how you will be effecting countless families if this bill becomes law.

I strongly oppose HB1118 for the purpose of religious freedom and a right to education for all children. 1Corinthians 6:19-20 says "Do you not know that your bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit, who is in you, whom you have received from God? You are not your own; you were bought at a price. Therefore honor God with your bodies." We believe that Jesus Christ paid the ultimate price for us, so we teach our children to honor him, to honor God. Honoring our bodies is honoring him, and draws us close to him. So dishonoring our bodies by allowing foreign substances to be injected into our body, is dishonoring him, and separates us from Him. Those whom live a life separate from him, risk an eternity separate from him as well. It is our right to believe in this, our first amendment right to practice religion. According to the Religious Freedom Restoration Act, any agency is prohibited from burdening a person's exercise of religion. As taxpayers and constituents we have the right to practice our religion, to live according to our own beliefs, not to be hindered by an unconstitutional law. All children of Hawaii have a basic right to education, what will be done for those that are not allowed to enroll into school should religious exemptions be taken away? Every child of Hawaii deserves access to education, denying any child that is discrimination.

Parents should have the fundamental right to make medical decisions for their children, including the choice of which vaccines—if any—their child receives. Medical freedom is a core principle of bodily autonomy and parental rights, and it must be preserved to ensure that children are not subjected to unnecessary medical risks without fully informed consent.

Vaccines, like any medical intervention, come with potential risks, including documented adverse effects and vaccine injuries. Many parents are concerned about the toxic adjuvants present in vaccines, such as aluminum and mercury-based compounds, which have been linked to neurological and immune system complications in some children. Given that each child is biologically unique, a one-size-fits-all vaccine schedule may not be appropriate for every child, and parents must be able to weigh the risks and benefits based on their child’s individual health needs.

Excluding children from school due to their parents’ informed medical decisions is a violation of their right to an education. Public health policies should not force parents into an ultimatum between education and medical freedom. Instead, schools should respect medical choice while implementing reasonable accommodations to protect public health, such as allowing exemptions and promoting natural immunity where applicable.

Ultimately, parental choice in medical decisions is essential to safeguarding children’s health. Coercing medical procedures through school mandates undermines informed consent and risks unnecessary harm to children who may be more susceptible to vaccine injuries. A truly ethical medical system must prioritize choice, transparency, and respect for individual health needs over blanket mandates.

Aloha My name is Aurora

A resident of Kaua‘i, and I am writing to strongly oppose HB1118. This bill seeks to remove non-medical exemptions for school immunizations, which is a direct violation of religious freedom, medical autonomy, and the constitutional rights of Hawai‘i’s citizens.

Overview of HB1118

HB1118 aims to increase immunization rates by eliminating non-medical exemptions for school entry. While it allows children with existing religious exemptions for the 2024–2025 school year to remain exempt, it prevents future families from making faith-based medical decisions for their children. The bill preserves medical exemptions for children with qualifying conditions and ensures that students with individualized education programs continue receiving necessary services.

Why I Oppose HB1118

1. Violation of Religious and Constitutional Rights

The First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution protects the free exercise of religion. By eliminating religious exemptions, HB1118 forces parents to choose between their deeply held beliefs and their children’s education. This is an unconstitutional infringement on religious liberty.

2. Discrimination Against People of Faith

Many religious traditions include moral or ethical objections to specific medical interventions, including vaccinations. Preventing new religious exemptions unfairly discriminates against future families who hold these beliefs and sets a dangerous precedent for further erosion of religious freedoms.

3. Coercion and the Violation of Informed Consent

Medical decisions should be based on personal choice, free from government pressure. Informed consent requires that individuals be allowed to weigh risks and benefits without coercion. HB1118 removes this fundamental right by forcing compliance as a condition of school attendance.

4. Legal and Ethical Concerns

Other states that have attempted to remove religious exemptions have faced significant public resistance and legal challenges. This bill could lead to costly litigation for the state, as it undermines well-established constitutional protections.

Conclusion

While public health is important, HB1118 goes too far by stripping away the rights of individuals to make personal medical decisions in accordance with their faith and conscience. I strongly urge you to oppose HB1118 and protect the religious and medical freedoms of Hawai'i's residents.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,
Aurora Rosin

I am writing in strong opposition to HB1118.

I am a father of a child who currently attends public school in the State of Hawaii with the religious exemption from the vaccine requirement due to our sincerely held religious beliefs. I also have two children who are not yet of school age that would be adversely affected by this proposed law. This proposal would create an inconsistent result within our household where one child would be able to attend school due to an existing exemption and the younger siblings would be prevented from attending school simply because of this measure. This measure would infringe upon my first amendment right to practice my religious beliefs and also affect my ability to educate my children.

Furthermore, there is a constitutional issue. There is no evidence to support the claim that there is a compelling state interest to remove religious exemptions based upon the theoretical perceived danger that the increase in the number of religious exemptions granted in the State of Hawaii poses to the community. There is no evidence that there has been an increase in the number of transmitted diseases or deaths within the school community as a result of this trend. In my opinion this measure would fail to meet the definition of a compelling state interest to withstand strict scrutiny.

One of the greatest silver linings of the past Covid-19 era is that a tremendous amount of information & corruption has come to light!!!! We the people, based on the constitution with our God given rights, have then just freedom and ability to make decisions for ourselves & our children.

not one of these humans who are proposing this bill, have any responsibility or concern of any of my children or 'ohana. It is my responsibility as my children's parent, to protect, care & provide for them for the rest of my life.

I trust in the LORD. Ephesians 6:10-18 directs us to “put on the armor of God,” so that we can be equipped with truth, righteousness, peace, and faith. We are taught not to be afraid and that we have divine protection. In GOD and Jesus Christ, I Trust. Aloha,

To my fellow citizens of Hawaii on the Health Committee –

I am writing to give testimony in strong opposition to HB1118.

There are a number of reasons to oppose this bill, but I suppose the strongest would be as it relates to religious freedom. Religious freedom is foundational to what it means to live in or be an American. It has been a fundamental right since our country’s conception. It is what shaped and continues to uphold every other right given to us in the Constitution. Having the ability to exercise one’s deeply held religious beliefs is vital to the pursuit of life, liberty, and happiness. Impeding on this right will open the door for any other right we have to be limited, restricted, or removed.

Your duty is to represent the will of the people, not your own opinion or that of the Governor.

In the bill’s writeup, there are statistics showing that over the last 10 years the trend is for more people desiring to opt-out of immunizations. In fact it clearly states on page 2 that it has doubled. If that is true, then the logical conclusion would be that the will of the people is the opposite of what this bill proposes. We do not want a blanket mandate obliging us to get unwanted health procedures for our children, we want the freedom to choose. This trend is not unique to Hawaii, but rather is consistent with what we are seeing around the country as a whole. A recently conducted survey through the Annenberg Public Policy Center at the University of Pennsylvania found that public support for policies that allow parents of schoolchildren to opt out of vaccinating their kids for medical, religious and personal or philosophical reasons has grown substantially since 2019. In addition to this, there are only 4 states left who do not allow for religious or philosophical exemptions. Almost every other state in the nation has laws protecting those exemptions or are currently introducing bills to allow for them. The national trend and federal precedent is to allow for medical, religious, and philosophical exemptions to these school vaccine requirements. Do not send us backwards by eliminating religious exemptions.

I urge you to consider what the people want and what the trend of your constituents shows...the people do not want you to create a medical dictatorship by allowing the government to remove our parental & religious freedom rights. HB1118 would do this by eliminating our choice for us to decide what is best for ourselves, our families, our children, and our communities as it relates to individual health matters. Healthcare is not a one size fits all, it is to be individualized and as such, you cannot in good faith vote yes to any legislature/bill seeking to make a blanket healthcare directive for all. Religious freedom is paramount to our right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; you cannot in good faith vote yes to any legislature/bill seeking to remove such freedom.

HB1118 is a direct violation of our constitutional right to religious freedom.

HB1118 is directly going against the trend of the will of the people as shown on Page 2.

Voting yes on HB1118 would be a direct violation of your duty to represent the will of the people and protect our constitutional rights.

Please vote NO on HB1118.

Mahalo,

Alana

Dear Chairman Takayama, Vice Chair Keohokapu-Lee Loy, and Members of the Committee,

Thank you for considering my testimony.

I am strongly opposed to this bill.

The people of Hawaii, of all ages, and especially the parents of children, need to be given full respect for making decisions for what is best for them, and informed consent is the truthful, just way to provide that. Informed consent regarding medical procedures and interventions is a basic right. There are now myriad unbiased, scientific evaluations of the safety and efficacy of various vaccines. The people need a balanced view, including understanding risks, before consenting to any medical procedure or intervention, such as vaccines or mRNA-based injections.

Not all vaccines are created equal, and we have seen from the Covid mRNA injections that some vaccines and vaccine-like products are indeed very unsafe and far from effective. The power of Big Pharma needs to be checked, because at the end of the day, they are most concerned with their profits, not with the health and well being of the people.

To all members of the Hawaii state legislature and all officials in the Hawaii state government: If you are influenced by the power and/or money of Big Pharma, you need to stop. If you don't stop, you will eventually be investigated and face accountability for your actions, and you will be voted out by the people.

Our nation is changing for the better. The childhood vaccine schedule is beyond out of control—it's a moral stain on our society.

Please do the right thing—vote against this bill.

thank you,

John Calvert
Puna District, Big Island

I am expressing my opposition to HB1118. This bill would violate religious freedoms protected by the United States Constitution. The government should never force a person to accept foreign substances into their body, especially as a condition of a universal right to education. In addition, neither the government nor the medical community has provided scientific evidence that the current vaccine requirements of over 60 doses by age 12 is the optimal schedule that will achieve the desired protection to medically fragile children that this bill claims as its purpose. In conclusion, I strongly oppose this bill because there is not enough evidence to compel those with religious beliefs to violate their beliefs and take away their religious freedom.

Comments:

Hello Health committee, I am a mother of 3 and wife of a 25 year navy veteran, and I strongly oppose HB1118 as it conflicts with my religious and moral beliefs.

Several vaccines on the childhood school schedule include aborted fetal cells and debris. Viruses can only multiply in live cells, so these aborted fetuses had their organs harvested while still alive. These organs included lungs, skin, hearts, and other body parts on fetuses aged 3 months or older. I have strong moral and religious convictions with the development and use of these fetal lines.

In addition, each vaccine includes cells and debris from various animals, chemical waste and carcinogens which is in direct violation of treating our bodies as temples in the very Spirit of God.

Lastly, my husband was born and raised in Hawaii, he served in multiple deployments in war zones directly fighting for our freedoms and as a result is deemed disabled after a 25 year career of sacrifice. We are deeply grieved that we now face our rights being stripped right before our eyes. We have children in the public school system and will have to remove them from their schools should this bill pass. Not only is it unconstitutional to deny our children education for a system that our taxes pay toward, but it is unconstitutional to punish us for our religious beliefs. I'd like to conclude my testimony with pointing out that the public school system is already struggling and we are seeing some schools facing possible closures as a result of lowered enrollment. If this bill passes it will only mean decreased funds for our schools, so all children in Hawaii will in fact suffer the consequences. Our children are not a threat, they are not spontaneously breaking out in disease, in fact they are healthy and thriving as we make exercise and food a priority.

I thank you for listening and respectfully ask that you oppose HB1118.

Aloha,

I absolutely oppose mandatory vaccinations!

My friends 1 year old Baby died 1 day after she got vaccinated, no doctor said it was from the vaccine but the doctors also couldn't deny it!

Another friends daughter got the HPV vaccine and was in the hospital for a few month with Epstein Barr syndrome.

NO VACCINE IS 100% safe.

You can't sue the vaccine manufacturer if something bad happens to your child. You can't sue Governor Green either. Or any of you that supports this bill.

Since the establishment of the National Vaccine Injury Compensation Trust Fund in 1986 it should be clear to all that vaccines are not safe for everyone.

"Subtitle 2: National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program - Part A: Program Requirements - Establishes the National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program as an alternative remedy to judicial action for specified vaccine-related injuries.

Prescribes the contents of any petition for compensation.

Grants U.S. district courts authority to determine eligibility and compensation. Requires the district court in which the petition is filed to designate a special master to serve as an adjunct to the court. Sets forth the responsibilities of the court.

Lists factors to be considered when determining the amount of a compensation award. Sets forth a table of injuries deemed vaccine-related for compensation purposes. Permits the Secretary of Health and Human Services to: (1) promulgate regulations to revise such table; and (2) recommend changes to the vaccines covered by the table.

Provides that compensation awarded under the Program shall be paid out of the National Vaccine Injury Compensation Trust Fund. Limits awards for actual and projected pain and suffering and emotional distress to $250,000. Prohibits awards for punitive damages."

I hope RFK jr gets elected so he can clean up vaccines

I oppose this bill because individuals deserve the right to decline vaccinations based on religion/philosophy/as well as medical reasons. Body autonomy is a right for all humans. Choosing to receive or decline a vaccine is our right as individuals and should not be something we are pressured into "getting". If you take away the right to religious exemptions then you are coercing people to get vaccines when it is against our beliefs. There are Ingredients in vaccines that no human should inject into their bodies. It is unhealthy and most vaccines are NOT "life saving". We have God given immune systems for immunity to illness'.

Not to mention the roll out of the Covid vaccine was rushed and everyone who took it was a test subject. Now 4/5years later, it's known that mrna is damaging. That particular vaccine (Covid) as one example has done more harm than good. Many died from that shot & not the virus it was said to protect people from. And although it was repeated more times than I can count, IT IS NOT SAFE AND EFFECTIVE. as a matter of fact, it is very unsafe and very ineffective.

You know very well that we need jobs to provide an income so we can in turn provide for our families. The passing of this bill would be tyranny. As a mother and a woman who understands the risks of vaccinations, I whole heartedly oppose this bill. Everyone deserves the right to choose what they put into their bodies. Do not take this human right away. I pray you are given ears to hear, eyes to see, and a heart to understand and do what is morally right. God Bless you all in your decision making.

TESTIMONIAL SUBMISSION FOR: HB NO. 1118

NAME: Lani Poepoe

DATE: 02/06/2025

The U.S. Constitution identifies several constitutional provisions and legal precedents which protect individuals from unwanted medical procedures. The following are some of the most relevant sources:

1. The Fourteenth Amendment – Due Process Clause

- The Substantive Due Process doctrine under the Fourteenth Amendment protects individuals' bodily autonomy and personal liberty.
- The Supreme Court has ruled that individuals have a constitutional right to refuse medical treatment (e.g., Cruzan v. Director, Missouri Department of Health, 1990).

2. The Fourth Amendment – Protection Against Unreasonable Searches and Seizures

- The Fourth Amendment protects individuals from unwarranted government intrusion into their bodies.
- Courts have ruled that forced medical procedures, such as mandatory blood tests or vaccinations, constitute a search and require justification (Missouri v. McNeely, 2013).

3. The First Amendment – Religious Freedom

- The Free Exercise Clause protects individuals who refuse medical treatments based on religious beliefs.
- However, the government can override religious objections in cases where public health is at risk (Jacobson v. Massachusetts, 1905, upheld mandatory smallpox vaccinations).
- Yet, in this case, as a blanket Bill over the state of Hawaii public school system, with no probable cause or due process, the State cannot legally mandate vaccinations for all, nor unfairly target individuals with religious practices as it would negate the Constitutional rights of said individuals (Roman Catholic Diocese of Brooklyn v. Cuomo (2020)).

4. The Eighth Amendment – Protection Against Cruel and Unusual Punishment

- In the prison context, forced medical treatment may violate the Eighth Amendment if it constitutes cruel and unusual punishment (Washington v. Harper, 1990, ruled that forced medication of prisoners is only allowed under specific legal standards).

5. Legal Precedents & Right to Privacy

- The Supreme Court has recognized a right to bodily integrity in cases such as Washington v. Glucksberg (1997), which upheld a patient's right to refuse life-sustaining treatment.

- Rochin v. California (1952) ruled that forced stomach pumping violated due process, reinforcing the right against non-consensual medical procedures.

It is evident that the Governor, along with his colleagues, is seeking to minimize the number of non-medical exemptions from immunization that are accepted for enrollment in Hawaii's public and charter schools.

According to HB No. 1118, during the 2023-2024 school year, 296 students received medical exemptions due to illnesses that could increase their risk of fatality in the event of a disease outbreak. The total student enrollment in Hawaii for that school year was 167,649. This means that the 296 medically high-risk students accounted for only 0.176% of the total student population across 258 public schools and 37 charter schools. This percentage represents an extremely low level of risk, making it highly questionable as a justification for the disapproval and elimination of non-medical or religious exemptions to immunization requirements within the HIDOE.

It is also clear that, due to the increase in non-medical immunization exemptions noted in HB No. 1118 for the 2023-2024 school year, the Governor is placing greater emphasis on protecting the 0.176% (296 medically vulnerable students) who, according to the bill, rely on herd immunity, rather than considering the 89.98% of students who comply with immunization requirements and the approximately 10% who exercise their First and Fourteenth Amendment rights to exemption. The reasoning behind HB No. 1118 is unjustifiable and attempts to disregard the unalienable rights of Hawaii's citizens—particularly parents, guardians, and students—and their right to education.

Furthermore, if the state of Hawaii and the HIDOE require, enforce, or mandate vaccinations for all students—excluding only those with medical exemptions—will the state be willing to sign a legal contract ensuring that, in the event a student suffers adverse reactions, injuries, or even death due to any mandated immunizations under state regulations, the state will assume full responsibility for such outcomes?

Lastly, according to the VAERS database—which is no longer accessible online—reports of adverse reactions, injuries, and deaths resulting from vaccinations have significantly increased since 2021. Parents and guardians are becoming more informed and aware of such cases, leading to a rise in non-medical and religious exemptions for student enrollment—and rightfully so. It is the right and duty of parents and guardians to prioritize the highest level of well-being for their children and as a result parents are turning to natural health over traditional pharmaceuticals and experiencing greater success.

I am a parent of an almost 19-year-old who has never been vaccinated or taken antibiotics or medication of any kind—and he is very healthy. He has never had an ear infection, unlike many children who experience chronic issues, nor has he had any serious medical conditions. He has rarely required medical care, aside from routine vision and dental check-ups. Therefore, he serves as a strong testament to the unnecessary emphasis placed on vaccination requirements and the fear they generate.

As a community pediatrician with a moderate viewpoint, I do not want to force my patients to be vaccinated. I prefer an open and honest discussion with parents to address their fears and concerns while at the same time, safeguard their keiki's health. However, there is a perfect storm occurring on our island, falling vaccination rates in our schools to under herd immunity numbers, fear and misinformation thrown at our parents, and the global increased spread of the highly contagious virus, measles. Prior to the introduction of the vaccine in 1963, measles wiped out a quarter of the Native Hawaiian population after the first endemic. The number of mortalities weakened the country of Hawai'i and over the years continued to be beat down by numerous foreign infectious diseases and a repeated cycle of measles outbreaks every few years. Exposure-strengthened immunity and vaccinations have brought the measles cases down to near eradication in Hawai'i. But I see Hawai'i following in the footsteps of the island nation of Samoa. As you know, Samoa experienced the horrendous measles endemic resulting in 83 deaths of mostly children in the span of 4 months. I am sure we all want to prevent this from occurring here in Hawai'i as our resources to combat such a endemic is limited. Any endemic to our keiki would overwhelm our current medical infrastructure of only about 20 PICU beds for the whole state. And that is why I am leaning towards supporting HB 1118, even though I wish I did not have to. At this time, there seems to be no other choice.

Aloha Chair(s), Vice Chair(s), and Members of the Committee,

I am writing to oppose HB1118, which would remove religious exemptions for school vaccinations in Hawai'i. While I understand that vaccinations help prevent diseases, I believe this bill takes away important rights from parents and families.

1. Parents Should Have a Choice

Parents should have the right to decide what is best for their children. Some families have strong religious or personal beliefs about medical decisions, and they should not be forced to choose between following their beliefs or sending their child to school.

2. Protecting Religious Freedom

In America, we have the right to practice our religion freely. Some families choose not to vaccinate because of their religious beliefs. This bill takes away that choice and does not respect personal faith and values. If the state removes this religious exemption, what other rights could be taken away next? We need this right!

3. Every Child is Different

Not every child's body reacts the same way to vaccines. While medical exemptions exist, they are very hard to get, even when there are real concerns. Families should not have to fight for basic medical rights when it comes to their children's health. There are also no allergy tests prior to vaccination and there is no doctor that can guarantee there won't be an allergic reaction or that an injury won't occur. There is no such thing as a vaccine that fits every body.

4. What's Next?

If this bill passes, it sets a dangerous precedent. Today, the government says religious beliefs don't matter when it comes to vaccines. What will they take away next? People should always have the right to make informed decisions for their families.

5. The Impact on Schools & Families

Hawai'i already struggles with school attendance and a high cost of living. If children are not allowed to attend school because their families have religious beliefs against vaccines, more families may be forced to leave Hawai'i. This bill could make things harder for local families who are already struggling.

I believe in keeping people healthy, but we cannot ignore parental rights and religious freedom. Families should not be punished for making medical decisions that align with their beliefs. I strongly urge you to reject HB1118 and protect the rights of Hawai'i families and to protect our children.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Respectfully,

Holly Nunez

I'm in opposition to removing the religious exemption from vaccination as this would violate the client's right of refusal to a medical procedure.

Specifically, the client must have the right of refusal to vaccination, be it for personal or religious reasons, as vaccinations may have contents which violate the client's personal or religious beliefs.

Not every vaccine or medical procedure is one size fits all; unintended and damaging consequences may occur which cause harm, be it physically or psychologically/spiritually. The client must have bodily autonomy in their health care choices. The client must have a religious right of refusal to vaccination and every other medical procedure without limitation. The client has rights in their choice of medical care and this is not negotiable.

People must be able to freely choose and refuse their medical procedures which includes vaccinations.

My training is in Nursing. I'm also a disabled person who was damaged in part via medical treatment.

Dear Chair, Vice Chair, and Members of the Committee,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB1118, which seeks to restrict non-medical exemptions to immunization requirements. This bill undermines informed consent, parental rights, and medical freedom, which are foundational principles of a free society.

HB1118 disregards vaccines inherent risks by attempting to eliminate the ability of individuals and parents to make personal medical decisions. Each person’s health needs and risk factors are unique, and blanket mandates fail to account for the complex and deeply personal nature of healthcare choices. By removing non-medical exemptions, this bill would coerce individuals into accepting medical interventions that may not align with their religious beliefs.

Furthermore, as a person of faith, I firmly believe that my body is a temple, as stated in 1 Corinthians 6:19-20: "Do you not know that your bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit, who is in you, whom you have received from God? You are not your own; you were bought at a price. Therefore, honor God with your bodies." Vaccination defies God's perfect design of the human immune system, which was created to fight illness naturally. Psalm 139:14 affirms, "I praise you because I am fearfully and wonderfully made; your works are wonderful, I know that full well." It is my deeply held religious belief that artificially altering my immune system through vaccination goes against God's divine plan for human health and well-being.

Additionally, every child has the right to attend public school without being forced to compromise their religious beliefs. The First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution guarantees the free exercise of religion, which includes making medical decisions in accordance with one's faith. Public education should be inclusive and respect the diverse beliefs of all students, rather than forcing them to choose between their faith and their education.

The principle of informed consent dictates that individuals must have the right to decline medical procedures without coercion or penalty. By restricting exemptions, HB1118 sets a dangerous precedent that could lead to further erosion of medical choice, religious freedom, and bodily autonomy.

I urge you to oppose HB1118 and instead prioritize policies that respect medical freedom, informed consent, and individual rights. The government should not dictate medical decisions, especially because the National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program (NVICP) has paid out nearly $4.6 billion to individuals and families who have suffered vaccine-related injuries and deaths. This staggering amount, documented in the Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System (VAERS), underscores the fact that vaccines, like any medical intervention, are not without risk.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I respectfully request that you vote against HB1118.

Sincerely,
Sara mckibbin

I am writing to express my strong opposition to Bill HB118. As a devoted member of our church and a firm believer in the fundamental right to exercise religious freedom, I am deeply concerned about the impact this bill will have on families like mine.

I am a parent of two young children, both of whom have not yet required medical exemptions but will need them in the future. My oldest already holds an exemption, and my youngest will require one for the upcoming school year. Our decisions regarding their healthcare are rooted in our religious convictions and a thoughtful approach to their well-being Bill HB118 disregards parents' rights to make informed medical decisions based on their deeply held beliefs. Forcing families to comply with mandates that conflict with their religious values undermines the freedoms that our nation was founded upon.

Additionally, we are concerned about the lack of long-term safety data for certain medical interventions and the continued immunity granted to manufacturers from liability for potential vaccine-related injuries. Parents should have the right to exercise informed consent without being coerced into compromising their beliefs or concerns for their children's health.

I urge lawmakers to reject Bill HB118. Please protect parental rights and religious freedoms, allowing families to make healthcare decisions that are in the best interest of their 'ohana..

As a citizen of the United States of America, I oppose this bill.

I strongly oppose bill HB1118 because I believe that my body and my child's body is a temple that is a home to our spirit. I do not believe in putting harmful drugs and vaccinations - especially vaccinations that have not gone under long-term testing to fully assess its safety; into our temples aka bodies and that of my child's. Additionally, some vaccines have been developed using cell lines derived from aborted fetal tissue, which raises serious ethical and religious concerns for me. This alone should warrant the continuation of religious exemptions. As a parent, it is my right and sacred responsibility to uphold and care for my child according to my religious beliefs. This bill would strip me of that right and I disdain that the government is attempting to commit this most unconstitutional act.

Aloha Chair and Members of the Committee,

I strongly oppose HB1118, which removes religious exemptions for childhood vaccinations. This bill infringes on constitutional religious freedoms, forcing families to choose between their faith and their children’s education. Religious exemptions protect the rights of parents to make informed medical decisions based on their beliefs, a fundamental principle that should not be compromised.

Public health is important, but not at the cost of violating religious and personal freedoms. I urge you to oppose HB1118 and uphold the rights of Hawaii’s families.

I oppose this bill because of the many testimonies of how many heathy children that were born normal. After taking all kinds of immunizations, they inherited HDHD, asthma or worse autism. There are more children with autisms than ever before.

I have two grandchildren. One who never got immunized and one who got all his immunizations. The one without any vaccines is the most healthiest one. The other one is the opposite.

if you need to see the documentary about the many children who were vaccinated whose lives turned upside down, I'll be more than happy to provide. It's on our ministry website. Pastor Chris Library or PCDL They are all there.

if you vote for it, you will be held responsible with destroying the lives of many generations of children. Maybe not here on earth, but it will surely come. Pls do you due diligence and check the website. Thank you.

I oppose to HB1118, we as parents need to have our children's rights protected. It should not be mandatory for them to get vaccinated in order to go to school. Why would you get rid of a religious exemption and force these parents to get their children vaccinated? More people are choosing to not vaccinate their kids for many reasons, and we don't need to tell you why. That's taking away our right to be able to choose. Also that means HB1118 doesn't care about a child's education because if you say that a child cannot attend school without getting vaccinated then what happens to the child? Since they aren't able to go to school what would they be doing? Some parents work a full time job or multiple jobs just to be able to survive so they can't homeschool their kids. So again I'm asking what happens to the child at that point? How do you expect them to learn, grow, and thrive and be a functioning member of society because they wouldn't be able to get an education at school because you didn't allow them to have a choice to not get vaccinated. Make it make sense. We need to have a say in how we want to raise our children and not conform just because someone thinks that being vaccinated is the only way to go. That is unacceptable that someone would even think HB1118 is a good idea. We need to stand up and oppose bills like this that take away from our first ammendment rights.

As a pediatrician, I strongly support HB 1118, which would repeal the non-medical exemption from immunization requirements. Vaccines are one of the safest, most effective, and most economical interventions to keep children healthy. Over recent years, we have observed with dismay that increasing numbers of parents are seeking non-medical vaccine exemptions for their children. As a result, Hawai'i is now below threshold for herd immunity for several devastating diseases, including measles, which is extremely contagious and can have serious complications. Repealing the non-medical vaccine exemption would benefit all children in Hawai'i, ensuring that keiki are protected from unnecessary suffering and potentially lifelong disability or death.

Aloha! To repeal your constituents' right to either accept or refuse medical interventions, particularly experimental vaccines, gene therapies or other experiments with “Proprietary” ingredients is unconscionable and has the verifiable potential to endanger our health and safety. As millions of people have been verifiably harmed by this human experimentation with no long term safety data, it is shocking to mandate said experimentation in order to work, attend school or any other basic and constitutionally protected right. To even suggest such a government overreach as this, based on incomplete science, conflicts of interest with pharmaceutical companies who have paid out billions in both medical Injury and medical Fraud is in exceedingly bad faith and stands in full breach of the public trust. "I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB 1118, which seeks to eliminate personal and religious exemptions for vaccinations in Hawaii. This bill is an alarming overreach that disregards fundamental constitutional rights, stripping parents and individuals of their ability to make medical decisions in alignment with their deeply held beliefs.

Furthermore, medical freedom is essential. Parents, not the state, should decide what is best for their children's health. HB 1118 assumes a one-size-fits-all approach to medicine, ignoring the reality that medical decisions must consider individual risks, prior adverse reactions, and unique health conditions.

Additionally, this bill fails to acknowledge those who have already been granted religious or personal exemptions. While it allows some exemptions to be grandfathered in, this unfairly creates two classes of students—those who are allowed to exercise their religious rights and those who are not. This is discriminatory and unjust.

I urge you to oppose HB 1118 and stand for medical freedom, religious liberty, and parental rights. Hawaii should respect its citizens' ability to make informed health choices rather than mandating medical procedures against their will.

This bill is an alarming overreach that disregards fundamental constitutional rights, stripping parents and individuals of their ability to make medical decisions in alignment with their deeply held beliefs.

Religious freedom is a cornerstone of our Constitution, and forcing individuals to choose between their faith and education is unacceptable. Many families have sincere religious objections to vaccines, and removing this exemption would violate their rights. The government should not interfere with these deeply personal decisions.

Furthermore, medical freedom is essential. Parents, not the state, should decide what is best for their children’s health. To the Esteemed Members of the Hawaii State Legislature,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to House Bill 1118, which seeks to repeal non-medical exemptions from immunization requirements. This bill represents a significant overreach by the government, infringing upon our fundamental rights to make personal medical decisions for ourselves and our children.

Every medical intervention, including vaccinations, carries inherent risks. It is imperative that individuals retain the autonomy to assess these risks and make informed choices without coercion. Mandating vaccinations by eliminating non-medical exemptions disregards personal beliefs and undermines individual freedoms.

Furthermore, denying children access to public education based on their vaccination status is both unjust and counterproductive. Education is a fundamental right, and withholding it as a means of enforcing medical compliance is an inappropriate strategy that could have long-term negative societal impacts.

I urge the legislature to respect individual liberties and parental rights by rejecting HB 1118. It is crucial to uphold the principles of personal choice and informed consent in healthcare decisions.

Sincerely,

Rachel Fujioka

I strongly oppose HB1118.

Our religious liberties are protected under the first amendment of the U.S. Constitution. This liberty cannot be overridden by state law. Americans have the right to refuse any order, medicine and procedure that violates their religious beliefs or anything that is deemed immoral or unethical according to their formed conscience. This bill is unlawful and immoral. According to SB1246 “The legislature finds the people of Hawaii have a long tradition of, and more broadly than, the federal constitution.” You cannot have it both ways. In addition to upholding the Constitution, this bill is in straight opposition to the Nuremberg Code starting with number one of the code: Voluntary informed consent. Allow parents to make the best decision for their children in accordance to their moral compass.

The best part about the last five years is that many of us have woken up to the lack of transparency by our government and the level of corruption by the State of Hawaii. Our children are not medical experiments. The 72 vaccinations on the current schedule are far too many. Vaccinations are not a one size fits all. Edward Jenner would be appalled at the number of vaccinations that are pushed on parents to give to their children, especially right out of the womb, such as Hep B. We are not passive participants. We are educating ourselves and taking a common-sense approach.

You say that the health and safety of Hawaii's keiki are paramount. This is a lie. The draconian measures that you have taken to push an agenda is not for the overall health and well-being of our children. The state of Hawaii cares more about control, money and power.

Vote no on HB1118 and similar bills, including SB1437.

I submit testimony to OPPOSE HB1118. Had my children been FORCED to have a Covid vaccination one of my immune compromised children would have surely died or possibly severely injured like the thousands of cases and millions of deaths around the world. In our personal circle, my step father had a STROKE shortly after taking the shot: my very healthy friend who unexpectedly DROPPED DEAD after taking hers; my sister who is a nurse forced to vaccinate is young, was healthy and now has HEART complications. GOD has given us an incredible immune system and my instructions come from Him, not the State. Religious Exemptions are a constitutional right.

We should look to the health and studies of our fellow Amish people who do NOT vaccinate and have no autism or auto immune conditions in their communities. Simply look at all of the COVID-19 vaccine injuries and all the PEER REVIEWED published reports on MRNA vaccines that Josh Green told everyone was safe. We know this to be false. Josh Green has BLOOD on his hands for everyone who suffered greatly in our state because of a vaccine that was forced upon them.

As a physician and a parent this is an important topic.

The national childhood vaccine injury act of 1986 minimized and limited vaccine makers from liability. Since then they have increased the number of recommended vaccines dramatically without studying them combined or having any true control studies (where control does not have the adjuvants), thus creating legitimate concerns.

Vaccines when looked at individually for that specific illness has helped decrease their numbers and that should not be discounted.

There are risks to vaccines just like any medicine and are risks to not vaccinating. Weighing the potential risks and benefits and deciding regular schedule, delayed schedule or not at all should be a parents decision after weighing those risks and benefits. Forced vaccinations should not occur. Forcing people to use products that that can cause serious injury or death should never be something we do. Unfortunately people are labeled as "anti-vaxxers" and uneducated if they bring up legitimate concerns. I discuss the potential risks of vaccines and risks of not getting in the emergency department when it comes up and let patient decide, that's what informed consent is about and removing that element of the patient physician relationship through legislation and mandatory vaccines is wrong. Our Governor and fellow colleague Dr Joish Green when it comes to women's reproductive rights stated "As a physician and a Governor, I feel strongly about health care, including reproductive health care and a woman's right to make health care decisions that affect her." It would be hypocritical to then only allow a woman to choose what to do with her body when it comes to reproductive rights but not about vaccines.

Hawaii revised statutes 671.3 talks about informed consent, discussing what the condition to be treated, proposed treatment, anticipated results, material risks of procedure and alternative treatments including not providing these treatments. Having right to informed consent is critical part of physician patient relationship. There are clearly risks to vaccinating and to not vaccinating, and it should be up to parents along with input from their health care provider to make that decision. If you want to get yourself or your kids vaccinated after going over pros and cons, then you should be able to just like the opposite. If you truly believe that vaccines work so well then you should not be threatened or worry about those that are not (except in rare case of immunocompromised individuals and in those circumstances there are risks of disease even around immunized individuals). Those that are that medically vulnerable should be wearing n95 protective masks as vaccines to not prevent transmission in all cases like we saw in covid 19 pandemic. We should be worrying about lack of true promotion of key health issues such as lack of healthy foods in school, clean water to many parts of the US, exercise in our kids.

The CDC Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices (ACIP) recommends hepatitis B (HepB) vaccination among all infants at birth.

HepB is transmitted through sharing of needles, syringes, or through sex.

If the mother is hepB positive, which can be tested before hand, then the child is at higher risk which would create an extenuating circumstance. For mothers and all those that are hepB negative, please explain to me why you believe a NEW BORN needs this vaccine? Are you expecting transmission to your new child? I would sure hope not.

Did you know that around the world, vaccinations don't start until the baby has had years to develop? But surely America knows better? So why do we have something called SIDS, aka sudden infant death syndrome, and doctors have no idea what the cause is?

Why has autism rates skyrocketed over the last 30 years, but doctors have no explanation for this?

But we should trust these doctors?

Why do we blindly ignore what the rest of the world is doing that is working? Are we so smart that we refuse to observe and learn from others? Surely that is a sign of great intelligence.

I STRONGLY OPPOSE THIS BILL!

This nation was founded under God, and I firmly oppose this bill. Governor Green is overstepping his authority, and it is unconstitutional for him to mandate anything regarding our personal health decisions. My daughter suffered a vaccine injury, and I will never allow anyone to administer another shot to her. Government overreach of this magnitude is deeply concerning and unacceptable. As citizens, we have the fundamental right to make informed choices about our own health and well-being.

I strongly oppose Hawaii Bill HB1118, which seeks to eliminate religious exemptions for vaccines in schools. This bill is a direct assault on personal freedom and religious liberty. As an individual, I believe that parents should have the right to make health decisions for their children based on their deeply held religious beliefs.

By removing these exemptions, the state is essentially telling families that their faith is of lesser importance than government mandates. This is not only unconstitutional but also sets a dangerous precedent where the government can overstep into personal and religious domains.

Every child's health profile is unique, and religious beliefs often guide how families approach medical interventions, including vaccinations. Forcing vaccinations without regard for these beliefs undermines the diversity and pluralism that our society should cherish. It's about more than just vaccine safety; it's about respecting and upholding the constitutional right to freedom of religion.

Moreover, this bill could lead to further erosion of parental rights in other medical decisions. It sends a message that the state knows better than parents about what is best for their children, which is both arrogant and misguided. I urge lawmakers to reconsider this bill and to protect the fundamental rights of families to follow their faith in making health choices for their children.

Dear Members of the Comimittee,

I am writing to oppose HB1118, which proposes to remove religious exepmptions for school immunizations in Hawaii.

This bill proposes factors that are unconstitutional and contradictory to Hawaii's public education laws.

Foremost, everyone should have the right to his or her own medical decisions. How would you like it if you had no choice regarding a medical procedure but felt coerced to do so because it was a law? Do you have children? What if you were unsure of potential immunization risks for your child but was told that your child couldn't attend public education unless all immunizations were recieved. How would that make you feel?

As a parent, this bill scares me. It scares me because it proposes taking away my rights as a caregiver; the person solely responsible for my child. As a parent, I want my child to have access to public education just as children with disabilities have access to it. FAPE is the right of all students with disabilities to receive an education that meets their needs. There should not be a difference when it comes to religious beliefs and religious exemptions. A religious belief should not be discriminated and should be acknowledged; therefore allowing access to public education for those who have different religious beliefs.

HB1118 contradicts Hawaii's Public Education Laws: Adoption of Chapter 8-89 (a), "The department is committed to making all schools safe, inclusive, respectful, and supportive of all students by eliminating all discrimination, harassment, and bullying and providng a non-discriminatory learning environment that provides equal access to public education for all students and embraces the values of dignity and respect for one another".

If HB1118 is approved, it would be unlawful and contradict the law stated above.

One of the reasons for HB1118 is due to immunization rates declining. What does that data even present? Does that mean illnesses and have increasingly doubled? There is no data that supports that declining immunization rates in schools caused a significant increase in illnesses or immunization-preventable illnesses. The reason of immunization rates declining does not provide substantial rationale to propose a bill like HBIII8.

Another reason for HB1118 states that high immunization rates help protect kids who can't get vaccinated for medical reasons by creating herd immunity. There is research that states not all immunizations are 100% effective with preventing and/or spreading disease/illnesses. So if we know this, then we know herd immunity is not guaranteed. For instance, we know the COVID-19 vaccination does not provide 100% immunity and we know individuals who received that vaccine can still get COVID-19 illness as well as spread it! So why propose a law when knowing that all immunizations will not protect other nor provide herd immunity? If those individuals with medical exemptions can't receive a vaccine, then this point proves that there is no substantial rationale for HB1118.

Another important reason why I oppose this bill is because not all individuals have the same reaction to immunizations and there have been presentable data-based studies on if and how immunizations pose a risk for cancer. For reference, on of the pamphlet for the vaccine ActHIB states, under NON-CLINICAL TOXICOLOGY 13.1, "ActHIB vaccine has not been evaluated for its carcinogenic or mutagenic potential or impairment of male fertility". Also under ADVERSE REACTIONS 6.1 Clinical Trials Experience, "More than 7,000 infants and young children have received at least one dose of ActHIB vaccine during US clinical trials. Of these, 1,064 subjects who received ActHIB vaccine alone reported no serious or life threatening adverse reactions". So does that mean that 75% of those other children had serious and/or life threatening adverse reactions? If my religious beliefs include not subjecting my child to harm or potential substances that have not been studied for carcinogen effects, then that is my belief and it should be acknowledged in regards to access to public education.

My point is that there is a lack of safety and efficacy with immunizations. If bill HB1118 is approved, it would not increase vaccination rates in public schools. It would only significantly decrease the rates of enrollment in the public education system because it would be discriminating against religious beliefs.

Please continue to allow for religious exemptions in public schools.

Hello,

As a pediatrician, I strongly support HB 1118, which would repeal the non-medical exemption from immunization requirements. Vaccines are one of the safest, most effective, and most economical interventions to keep children healthy. Over recent years, we have observed with dismay that increasing numbers of parents are seeking non-medical vaccine exemptions for their children. As a result, Hawai'i is now below threshold for herd immunity for several devastating diseases, including measles, which is extremely contagious and can have serious complications. Repealing the non-medical vaccine exemption would benefit all children in Hawai'i, ensuring that keiki are protected from unnecessary suffering and potentially lifelong disability or death.

Thank you,

Testimony Opposing Bill HB1118

Honorable Members of the Committee,

My name is Celeste Mandala, and I am writing to express my opposition to Bill HB1118, which seeks to remove religious exemptions for school vaccinations. While I understand and respect the importance of vaccination in protecting public health, I strongly believe that this bill infringes on fundamental rights, including the freedom of religion and parental choice.

As a parent, I recognize the crucial role vaccines play in reducing the spread of disease and safeguarding vulnerable populations. However, this bill proposes to deny individuals and families the right to make decisions based on their deeply held religious beliefs. For many, religious convictions are a core part of their identity, and the ability to make health decisions in alignment with those beliefs is a vital expression of their personal freedom. Removing religious exemptions does not take into account the diverse and deeply personal reasons that individuals and families may have for their refusal to vaccinate on religious grounds. These beliefs are often formed by faith, personal conscience, and philosophical principles, and no government should have the authority to override such fundamental rights. Forcing families to comply with medical mandates that violate their religious views could lead to unnecessary harm, both in terms of the emotional and psychological toll on the affected individuals, as well as a loss of trust in the healthcare system.

In closing, I urge the committee to reject HB1118. We must work toward solutions that respect both public health and the right of individuals to make personal and religious decisions about their health care. I believe that a more compassionate and thoughtful approach can be found that allows us to protect public health without sacrificing the rights that form the foundation of our democracy.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,
Celeste Mandala

I do not believe that we should change the requirements regarding non medical exemptions for immunizations. I oppose this bill. I am a religious person that does not believe immunizations and I am healthy. I believe God is my protector and I am going against him by getting immunizations. This is taking away the freedom for the American people. You must allow non-medical exemptions for immunizations. It is unfair to do this as it is our freedom of speech.

Good morning,

I am submitting a testimony on HB1118. I am opposed to this bill. This bill should not pass.

Vaccines should be parents choice. Not government choice. Governor Josh Green is pushing his medical field into the polictial field. He knows this is not right. We have our first amendment which prevents congress from making laws respecting an establishment of religion, prohibiting the free exercise of religion....

Ever wonder why they changed the laws about vaccines injury back in the late 1980's. We are held accountable as citizens if we hurt somebody by laws so why isn't our government or pharma held accountable.

Please also take in consideration that many people are allergic to medicines, or don't trust Big Pharma. Haven't you seen all the side effects that our listed on our medicines.

My body my choice. Govenor Josh Green belives in this for abortion so why can't we apply the same thing to vaccines.

Please stop this bill from passing.

Aloha,

I first want to thank each of you for how you serve our community, thank you. Secondly, I wanted to share with you why I believe it is so important that this bill is opposed. I have been living with injuries that seem to have a direct connection to a vaccine I received on May 19, 2021. Prior to receiving this vaccine, I had never questioned the importance or safety of vaccines. This experience has helped me to understand the importance of choice when it comes to vaccinations. This choice should be protected from a medical as well as a religious standpoint.

I have always been extremely athletic and active and was a former competitive swimmer. Since the vaccine I have been battling extensive side effects that boil down to symptoms of Mast Cell Activation Syndrome (meaning I have lost the ability to eat a host of foods that I never seemed to have a problem with prior to the vaccine including: citrus, dairy, soy, wheat, sugar, spinach, tofu, anything cooked slowly, many spices, walnuts, most nuts, papaya, avocado, coffee, most teas, and more), Postural Tachycardia Syndrome (POTS), and a nervous system injury. I was left with symptoms that include or have included extreme (and I do mean extreme cellular fatigue) fatigue, vertigo with the inability at first and now remaining difficulty: laying down, bending over, looking up or down, turning my head to the right or left, watching anything that spins, anything with bright lights particularly if they blink, looking at screens (this means I can typically no longer watch television or movies without pain or disorientation). I still struggle with tolerating the motion of planes, boats, escalators, elevators and the like. I also have and often still experience extreme eye pain, feelings of brain swelling and heat. I cannot even watch my children play basketball or people's facial expressions without those things often bringing on eye pain and or nausea. I have endured migraines and what seems to be a radically more intense procession feminine hormonal shifts and pain through the month which can include symptoms like: heart palpitations, chills, body aches, muscle pain, wrestles leg syndrome and now some neuropathy.

Along this journey I have met and heard about many others who are battling very similar side effects. Nothing medically has seemed simple, and I am a fairly young woman still and had spent most of my life swimming, running, jumping, climbing, hiking, surfing – and most of these things were stripped from me. I will continue to work at healing, and I am so thankful for the doctors I have had on my journey thus far. I have had to battle to regain every inch of health that I can and while I have received and a great amount of healing over the past few years, I still battle limitations I could never have expected to have to endure. This kind of unexpected hardship I would not wish upon anyone. With these kinds of medical difficulties potentially resulting how can anyone remove the right from a parent to shield their child from ever enduring this kind of challenge and pain. While vaccines do indeed help protect some, they may also be harming others – others who do not necessarily have a specific medical condition that can be easily identified – other than a potential for a genetic similarity to a parent who has had an adverse reaction. Parents must maintain the right to evaluate the risk for their loved ones based on their family medical history. And I'd venture to say that anyone who has walked through a crisis as I have, would then have a very real religious and moral objection to their loved one having to risk a similar medical emergency to be allowed the right to participate in a school environment.

Thank you for your time,

Shayna Fuller

Aloha mai,

My name is Emily, I am from the island of O'ahu and I am a mother of two young school-aged children. I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB1118, as this bill poses a direct threat to our constitutionally protected right to religious freedom. The First Amendment of the United States Constitution guarantees that no law shall infringe upon the free exercise of religion, and HB1118 encroaches upon this fundamental liberty.

Religious freedom is a cornerstone of both American and Hawaiian values. Any legislation that seeks to limit, restrict, or dictate how individuals or religious institutions practice their faith sets a dangerous precedent that erodes our rights. The implications of HB1118 extend far beyond a single issue; it establishes government overreach into personal and spiritual convictions, an overreach that is wholly unacceptable in a society founded on principles of freedom and respect.

Furthermore, HB1118 does not adequately consider the cultural and spiritual diversity that exists within Hawai'i. Our islands are home to a rich array of beliefs and traditions, and any legislation that disregards this diversity undermines the very fabric of our community. The ability to freely practice one's faith without government interference is not just a constitutional right—it is a vital component of our way of life.

I urge you to stand in defense of religious liberties and vote against HB1118. Protecting our rights must remain a top priority, and this bill is a step in the wrong direction.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Comments:

I am writing to express my strong OPPOSITION to HB1118, which seeks to eliminate non-medical exemptions from immunization requirements for school attendance. While I fully respect and support public health initiatives that seek to protect the well-being of our community, I believe this bill raises significant concerns regarding personal freedoms, parental rights, and legal precedent.

1. Infringement on Personal and Religious Freedoms

HB1118 directly challenges the fundamental rights of individuals to make personal and religious decisions regarding medical interventions. The First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution protects religious freedom, and for many families, immunization decisions are deeply rooted in their faith and personal convictions. Removing the right to a religious exemption undermines this essential constitutional protection.

2. Parental Autonomy and Medical Decision-Making

Parents, not the government, should have the authority to make medical decisions for their children. Each child is unique, and medical choices, including vaccinations, should be made based on personal medical history, family beliefs, and informed consent. HB1118 disregards the right of parents to weigh the risks and benefits of vaccinations and make decisions that align with their child’s specific needs.

3. Concerns Over Vaccine Safety and Efficacy

While vaccinations have played a vital role in disease prevention, there are documented cases of adverse reactions and contraindications that must be taken seriously. Families should not be forced into a one-size-fits-all medical mandate that does not account for individual health risks. Instead, the state should focus on ensuring that parents have access to balanced information and the ability to make informed choices.

4. Legal and Ethical Considerations

HB1118 raises significant legal questions about bodily autonomy and constitutional rights. Court challenges in other states have demonstrated that restricting religious or philosophical exemptions can lead to lengthy legal battles, placing an additional burden on taxpayers. Furthermore, ethical considerations regarding medical mandates must be carefully weighed, as forcing medical procedures without consent sets a dangerous precedent.

For these reasons, I urge you to vote NO on HB1118. Instead of removing exemptions, I encourage the legislature to engage in further dialogue with families, medical professionals, and legal experts to find balanced solutions that respect public health while upholding personal rights.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Forced vaccination is not humane and should be left into the hands of the parents involved. Taking away our religious accommodation would be the same that Hawaiian airlines did to me for not getting the covid vaccine which does not stop a person from getting covid. I held true to my religious exemption and was terminated over this matter. Should this pass, my children will be homeschooled along with many others and then, who will fill these seats in the public school system? If Hawaii supports moms with abortion, "my body my choice" then support our religious freedom and bodily autonomy.

Because what goes in my child's body, should be up to me and not someone who doesn't know them. Am I a Parent? NO. So you may ask why am I in opposition of this bill? Simple, the term that was used... "HERD Immunity". This term makes it seem like our children in school are animals. HERD?! some may say, "Really? That's why your in opposition?". That's just the start. When I become a parent, I don't want my religious beliefs stomped on and ignored by those who don't know my child. My brother and his wife regretted getting the COVID vaccination for them and their family? Why? Because it didn't work. They still got COVID and isn't that what the vaccination SUPPOSED to do, prevent them from getting it? My nephews were basically forced to take it if they wanted to play sports. The doctors didn't care about their beliefs, the school didn't care about their religious beliefs. What they really cared about was lining their pockets. Just as we respect those who have different opinions on discussions, we as people should have respect for those who refuse the jab because of religious beliefs.

We mustn't let ourselves give away our powers in the name of protection. I understand how scary the world can get. Our precious children are possibly at risk, those with immunodeficiency especially, and we want to go to great lengths to protect them. But getting rid of religious exemption is not the way. These statistics in the proposed Bill paint a false picture of future not on its way. We all know the reason behind these statistics and regardless of your stance on Covid-19, you cannot ignore the facts. The facts being that since the beginning, they said in the news to the public, that vaccination did not stop transmission. This stance was later changed and then changed back. Perhaps you have different statistics, something that shows that other vaccinations have dropped in recent years which is the reasoning behind this measure. But you have to understand human nature. Parents and public found out they were lied to, so the over-correction is the response of "What else have they lied about?". This will balance itself out. We cannot take power away from parents to make informed decisions about their children and lives on the assumption that they're ignorant sheep to be lead astray by a few 30 second clips on the internet. These are your constituents, your neighbors, your friends, your loved ones. Don't strip away their powers in the name of a greater good. As they saying goes, "the road to hell is paved with good intentions "

Think about rights before you vote. Let knowledge and informed consent reign.

As a pediatrician, I strongly support HB 1118, which would repeal the non-medical exemption from immunization requirements. Vaccines are one of the safest, most effective, and most economical interventions to keep children healthy. Over recent years, we have observed with dismay that increasing numbers of parents are seeking non-medical vaccine exemptions for their children. As a result, Hawai'i is now below threshold for herd immunity for several devastating diseases, including measles, which is extremely contagious and can have serious complications. Repealing the non-medical vaccine exemption would benefit all children in Hawai'i, ensuring that keiki are protected from unnecessary suffering and potentially lifelong disability or death. As a parent and concerned citizen, I would like to express my support for HB1118, which proposes to repeal the non-medical exemption from immunization requirements. Vaccines are an important tool to help keep our children healthy, and it is important for the safety and wellbeing of everyone in our community that children receive recommended vaccines before enrolling in school. Thank you and sincerely,

In my subspecialty, I care for children with Autism Spectrum Disorder and rare genetic disorders. These children are especially vulnerable to the complications from vaccine-preventable diseases, and yet are also uniquely targeted by anti-vaccine propaganda which has no basis in scientific evidence. I am spending increasing amounts of my clinical time helping parents understand fact from fiction as it relates to their children. Repealing the non-medical vaccine exemption would benefit all children in Hawai'i, ensuring that keiki are protected from unnecessary suffering and potentially lifelong health consequences or even death.

This bill represents a gross proposal by the government to stomp on parental rights and the sovereignty of Hawaii's parents to be the ultimate decision-makers for what is good and necessary for our own children. This right to make decisions that are best for our own children, and to make those decisions based on our own convictions of faith, is a God-given right that the government has no constitutional grounds for overstepping.

IF YOU ARE TRULY FOR THE KEIKI IN HAWAII, THEN SUPPORT PARENTAL RIGHTS.

A community is only as strong as the family unit. The family unit is the building block of communities.

THE EVIDENCE FOR THIS BILL IS WEAK. The number of non-medical exemptions may have doubled from one year to the next, but at 5.3% the "herd immunity factor" for the schoolchildren of Hawaii is certainly not being threatened. Data from one year to the next is hardly worth making policy over as it does not cover enough years to show an actual trend. Government should certainly use better scientific methods to back policy proposals.

Sincerely, a very concerned Hawaii parent,

Rachel Wickes

I strongly oppose this bill for various personal rights violations including religious, body autonomy, right to make our own medical decisions for ourselves and our children, etc. The bill is blatant government overreach that treats everyone as objects in the eyes of power and money hungry politicians who are in the pockets of pharmaceutical corporation pockets. No two people are the same and their health care decisions should be looked at that way. This tramples of religious freedom and our constitutional rights. This isn't about just one bill. The government should never have this much power over individual rights and we are not the property of the government. The politicians who put this bill together should be ashamed of themselves.

I strongly oppose this bill to remove religious exemptions. This is violates our 1st Amendment right. Furthermore, many of us find our faith at different times in life. It is not fair to the ones who discover their faith later in life (or after 2024-2025) to not have these exemptions available to them. Vaccines work and they are effective? If that is the belief, then those who are vaccinated are in fact protected and safe from those who are not. I support everyone's right to choose what goes into their bodies and what doesn't. No government should ever legislate that!

This is a fundamental right to medical freedom! Where there is risk there must be choice. There obviously is risk because no one is allowed to sue vaccine manufacturers since the 1980s and everyone with injury or death from vaccines must go through a government vaccine court. The VAERS website is where people can submit their experience with death or injury from vaccines and it happens all the time.

I am writing this testimony to disagree with our children having to be vaccinated to attend school. Mandating covid for our children to receive an education should not even be an option. I will object this bill. I would have never thought we would have such corrupt leaders to lead our state and attack innocent children and their education with this vaccination that does nothing but harm you and has so many side effects. There is no legitimate reason why this bill should even be discussion as the children have been attending school for many years without this vaccination. If Josh Green passes this bill you do not care for the people and children and should not be leading hawaii. So many children will be affected by this decision and removed from school not by choice and that's not fair to them. All These innocent children will suffer on your behalf. Hawai'i needs to stand up and fight as this is not right! My children will NEVER receive that vaccination.

Honorable Members of the Legislature,

I am a concerned citizen and a nurse, and I write to express my strong opposition to the proposed bill to remove religious and medical exemptions for vaccines. While I understand the importance of public health, I believe this bill represents a dangerous overreach that threatens individual freedom and ignores the complexity of human biology.

We are allowing pharmaceutical companies increasing access to our children at an earlier age without sufficient emphasis on alternative, natural measures like proper nutrition and physical exercise. Instead of promoting holistic health practices that can strengthen immune systems, this bill pushes for mandatory chemical injections. This is deeply concerning, especially when the unique biological makeup of each individual means that some may respond to vaccines differently than others.

As a nurse, I know that medicine is essential in certain situations, but it must be based on a patient's individual needs, not a one-size-fits-all approach. People react to chemicals in vaccines in different ways—some may experience severe side effects, while others have immune systems that cannot tolerate the ingredients within vaccines. A blanket mandate for everyone to receive the same treatment ignores the diversity of our bodies and personal health conditions.

Additionally, this bill is an infringement on our freedom of choice. We live in a society that values personal autonomy, including the right to make informed decisions about our health and the health of our children. This measure, if passed, would further erode these freedoms and set a dangerous precedent for government overreach.

We cannot allow our freedoms to be stripped away in the name of public health when there are other, less intrusive ways to address health concerns. This bill is not just an attack on personal liberty—it is a moral and ethical violation that disregards the rights of individuals to make their own healthcare decisions.

I urge you to reconsider this bill and protect the rights of all citizens to make informed decisions about their own health.

Sincerely,
Mako Ikemiyagi, RN

I oppose this bill which discriminates against peoples who do not vaccinate themselves or responsible persons solely based on religious beliefs. This bill is directly targeting children within the Hawaii public school system. Healthy children do not need to be vaccinated based on anticipated diseases, weaponized bio chemical warfare, or paranoia spread through misinformation. Unnecessary vaccines lead to a variety of health issues including autism, autoimmune diseases, heavy metals poisoning, and neurological disfunction. No physician I have taken my children to has been able to confirm if such vaccines were created without the use of aborted fetal cells or tissues. In my religion, such practices are considered unclean and an abomination to our God. I strongly oppose this bill as it infriges upon our freedom of religion.

Aloha chairs, vice chairs and all members of the committee,

I am writing in opposition of HB1118 which removes religious exemptions for school vaccinations in Hawaii. I believe this bill takes away important rights away from the parents.

It is the parents choice to decide what is best for thier child and they should. not be forced to have to decide between follwoing their beliefs and sending thier kids to school.

We have a right to practice our religion freely. This bill takes that religious freedom away.

If this bill is passed it will set a dangeroud precedent. If the government takes this away, what else will they take away. This is a choice the parents need to make, not the government. We cannot ignore parental rights and religious freedom. I stronly urge you to reject HB1118 and protect the rights of Hawaii families

Aloha, Esteemed Legislators:

The proverb that i learned as a child comes to mind when reading this legislation, "For a person who has only only a hammer, everything is a nail!" Yes, the Governor is an "MD" and partly that could just be his problem, he has one tool and it seems to me it is the needle! He is only satisfied by sticking his needle in everyone's arms regardless of the situation to feel he has done something regardless of the benefit to the individual he is targeting! This is not only wrong but is unscientific and foolish! The claim to have only "medical Exemption" which the government seems to have control over by the threat of license revocation on the medical doctors is a real power mongering as everyone who in Hawaii who stood against the mass vaccination regardless of the outcome was dismissed yet we have COVID still running back and forth because of lack of Hwerd Immunity! The public health impact of the total shutdown that harmed thousands of lives and especially the poor and the most vulnerable! Please read <https://gbdeclaration.org> from the most respected public health experts who spoke in August , 2020 to keep the country safe, and healthy and prosperous in body, mind and spirit. Yet there was no one listening but to the big-pharma-agents!

Please reject this power play by Pharmaceutical companies and their cronies that may inspire Governor Green more than the real science and move this elected Governor to pushing an injection on all of Hawaiians, especially on those most vulnerable children. My brother's family has two boys damaged by Autism in America, the vaccines hurt more minorities (i am african american) than others and more boys are harmed than gilrs , Please listen to the cry of peolpe and don't let big-pharma get exemptions and more funding to harm children and adults! My bropther and his kids lives are never be the easy and the same as my childhood, while I being born in Africa was one of ten and none of us have any autism even though I am number nine born very late in my parents life and no sign of this affliction in our genetic background! Why have 20 or more vaccines before the age of one year old! Due to my past exeperience, I refused the COVID vaccine and I am more healthier and safer than many of my friends and colleagues at work who call in sick for repiratorial challenges and cold related sysmptoms as they were coerced to take vaccines, since the Natural Immunity that I acquired appears to br more wholesome in combating COVID than the "injection"! Please read again the Great Barrington Declaration at <https://gbdeclaration.org> to find what the NHI and CDC got wrong with respect to COVI and caused many other ailments to increase (cancer, heart attack, and many other diseasess have increase in every control group since the introduction of mass COVID vaccines!) The VAERS data at <https://vaers.hhs.gov> on what havoc vaccines have since done. And now the respected Governor , who was the lieutenant at the time of the COVID deliemma, would even more poeer to perform something that could harm even more people in Hawaii Nei!

Please for God's sake reject this bill!

We have been seeing increasing examples of what happens when herd immunity is weakened. History also has shown us what happens when diseases like measles enters into a community without immunity as what happened to the native Hawaiian population in 1848.

Repealing the non-medical vaccine exemption would not only benefit all children in Hawai'i, ensuring that keiki are protected from unnecessary suffering and potentially lifelong disability or death; but also protect our community from long-lasting complications and devastation of preventable epidemics.

Over recent years, there have been increasing numbers of parents are seeking non-medical vaccine exemptions for their children. As a result, Hawai'i is now below threshold for herd immunity for several devastating diseases, including measles, which is extremely contagious and can have serious complications. Repealing the non-medical vaccine exemption would benefit all children in Hawai'i, ensuring that keiki are protected from unnecessary suffering and potentially lifelong disability or death.

ALOHA

I'm strongly opposed to this bill. It's clear overreach and it's a concerning sign to me and others I speak to on a daily basis that there is too much influence of pharmaceutical corporations. Those who support this legislation will be exposed for having received contributions from pharmaceutical companies.

Now is most certainly not the time to be imposing these vaccines on people with any kind of religious objection.

The truth about the cell lines being used in the vaccines will be exposed very soon and the public you are supposed to represent is going to be very upset to learn about these and it will certainly appear to violate basic ethical standards for most sincere people in our community. Religious exemptions must be honored for this reason.

The truth in general about the ingredients in vaccines and the harm they are causing will also be exposed.

I reject this bill . I oppose it. I call down the loving light of the Divine spirits of Mary and Jesus and of our Creator and I ask divine blessings on the House of the legislatures so that all of this darkness we are seeing shall not prevail.

I am writing to oppose HB1118, which would remove religious exemptions for school vaccinations in Hawai‘i. While I understand that vaccinations help prevent diseases, I believe this bill takes away important rights from parents and families.

1. Parents Should Have a Choice

Parents should have the right to decide what is best for their children. Some families have strong religious or personal beliefs about medical decisions, and they should not be forced to choose between following their beliefs or sending their child to school.

2. Protecting Religious Freedom

In America, we have the right to practice our religion freely. Some families choose not to vaccinate because of their religious beliefs. This bill takes away that choice and does not respect personal faith and values. If the state removes this religious exemption, what other rights could be taken away next?

3. Every Child is Different

Not every child’s body reacts the same way to vaccines. While medical exemptions exist, they are very hard to get, even when there are real concerns. Families should not have to fight for basic medical rights when it comes to their children’s health.

4. What’s Next?

If this bill passes, it sets a dangerous precedent. Today, the government says religious beliefs don’t matter when it comes to vaccines. What will they take away next? People should always have the right to make informed decisions for their families.

5. The Impact on Schools & Families

Hawai‘i already struggles with school attendance and a high cost of living. If children are not allowed to attend school because their families have religious beliefs against vaccines, more families may be forced to leave Hawai‘i. This bill could make things harder for local families who are already struggling.

I believe in keeping people healthy, but we cannot ignore parental rights and religious freedom. Families should not be punished for making medical decisions that align with their beliefs. I strongly urge you to reject HB1118 and protect the rights of Hawai‘i families.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

I oppose HB 1118 because it is a God given right to chose what we put in our children's bodies, not the government's decision. God has given us completely capable bodies, so why poison it with toxic chemicals that MAY or may not provide protection. There are far more negative consequences for many children who receive 80+ vaccines within the first 18 years of life than positive effects. Vaccine companies have no liability for any damage they cause. If they did, then they'd be sued continuously. We need accountability and responsibility from vaccine companies in order to feel comfortable with vaccinating our children.

Its confirmed active ingredients are now used in other so called “vaccines” (including the flu shot) which contain graphene oxide, 21 toxins (snakes, shell fish), the HIV virus, cancer causing agents, and mRNA DNA gene altering nanotechnology for tracking and control by people who have sold their souls and playing God.

Comments:

The proposal to eliminate exemptions to medical treatment represents a dangerous overreach of government authority and a direct violation of personal autonomy. The same political factions that champion the slogan “my body, my choice” when it comes to abortion rights now seek to strip individuals of their ability to make informed medical decisions for themselves and their families. This blatant hypocrisy exposes a selective approach to bodily autonomy, where personal choice is respected only when it aligns with a particular political agenda.

The political left has long argued that individuals have an absolute right to control their own bodies, particularly in the context of abortion. However, when it comes to vaccines and other medical treatments, this principle is conveniently abandoned in favor of government mandates and coercion.

1. Selective Bodily Autonomy

- If the government can mandate medical treatment under the guise of public health, then the concept of bodily autonomy is rendered meaningless.
- The same people who fought against restrictions on abortion access now seek to eliminate personal choice in other medical decisions, revealing a clear double standard.

2. The COVID-19 Vaccine Precedent

- During the COVID-19 pandemic, the political left pushed for vaccine mandates despite growing evidence that the vaccines did not prevent transmission as originally promised.
- Many individuals were forced to comply with vaccine mandates or face job loss, exclusion from public spaces, and other severe consequences—all under the pretext of public health.
- Now, the same logic is being extended to other medical treatments, setting a dangerous precedent where individuals lose the right to make their own medical decisions.

History has shown that government-mandated medical interventions are not always in the best interest of the public. The COVID-19 vaccine rollout demonstrated the risks of forcing medical decisions on people without full transparency or long-term data.

1. COVID-19 Vaccines and the Failure of Mandates

- Initial claims that COVID-19 vaccines would prevent infection and transmission were later proven false, yet mandates remained in place.
- Adverse reactions, including myocarditis in young people, were downplayed while the government insisted on compliance.
- The rushed implementation of mandates created unnecessary distrust in public health institutions, yet this proposal seeks to double down on the same flawed approach.

2. Erosion of Medical Freedom

- Eliminating medical exemptions opens the door to a future where individuals are forced to undergo medical treatments against their will.
- This sets a dangerous precedent where the government, rather than individuals or their doctors, determines what medical treatments are necessary.

Conclusion

This proposal is an outright attack on individual liberties and medical freedom. The hypocrisy of advocating “my body, my choice” while simultaneously stripping away medical exemptions cannot be ignored. The failures of vaccine mandates during the pandemic should serve as a warning against further government overreach in personal medical decisions. If bodily autonomy is a fundamental right, it must apply consistently, not just when it aligns with a particular political ideology. Lawmakers should reject this proposal and uphold the right of individuals to make their own medical choices.

The drug industry knows that vaccines are not 100% safe. Why else would there be legal protection from suit for vaccines. What other product or industry has a blanket no sue policy? If my dog bites a person I can be sued. If a vaccine is unsafe the public should have recourse.

If Governor Green is pro vaccine he should be vaccinated. If his vaccine does not protect him from illness he should sue the drug industry for a faulty product. Gov Green should not make his neighbors and fellow citizens be subjected to his medical choice.

Our body is a gift from God. We are intrusted to keep it healthy to the best of our ability. Freedom of choice. Stop the onslaught of drugs as a solution for life.

Exemptions for vaccinations is a must. It is a violation of an individual's rights to be forced to take a shot for which the manufacturer can't be held liable. If another person takes a shot that is supposed to make them "immune" then why should another person's medical and spiritual sovereignty be infringed upon. I strongly oppose Hawaii House Bill 1118, which seeks to repeal non-medical exemptions from immunization requirements. If enacted, this legislation would mandate that all individuals, regardless of personal or religious beliefs, adhere to state vaccination protocols. If we citizens don't have control over our bodies and those of our children, we are no longer a free people.

Eliminating non-medical exemptions forces individuals to comply with government-mandated medical procedures. Ever since the National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act of 1986, pharmaceutical companies have been immune from liability over any of their products that they label vaccines. It was passed back then because Big Pharma alleged it was losing so much money in vaccine injury cases that it was not economically feasible to manufacture them. What does that tell you about those so-called vaccines being "safe and effective"? No liability and guaranteed profits from mandated vaccines. What could possibly go wrong?

Past dictators could only dream of such blanket control over their citizens. Yet here in Hawaii we have a governor and legislators ready to take away this most fundamental of freedoms. And see nothing wrong with that. Auwe!

Parents, not the government, should have the final say in their children's medical care. HB1118 strips parents of their ability to protect their children's health, instead granting the state that authority. Does that seriously sound right to you? And who suffers the consequences when people suffer injury or die from those shots? Not the pharmaceutical companies, not the governor, not the legislators. It's the people themselves. Does that sound pono to you?

But, all too many say, doctors are the experts: with this bill, a child or adult can still receive a medical exemption. What, they continue, does a parent (who has lived with and loved their child 24/7 for all the child's life) know compared to a doctor after an exam of a few minutes? No, they state with firm conviction, the doctor is much wiser than the child's parents and must overrule what the parent knows to be right for their child.

Really? Such faith in doctors is unjustified, particularly in light of the fact that they have typically only studied vaccines for half a day during their medical education, with much of that time spent teaching them how to overcome patient objections to vaccines.

Save your faith for the almighty. We flawed humans, which includes doctors and Gov. Josh Green, the originator of this Faustian bill, must be verified by real science, not politicized science.

Ever since the 1986 federal law, doctors, nurses, and pharmaceutical companies have not been liable for injuries caused by vaccines that they administered or produced. A search by competent lawyers turns up no other pharmaceutical products that are protected from the legal consequences of harms caused by their products.

No liability and guaranteed obscene profits from mandated vaccines. What could possibly go wrong?

During the recent Covid years, doctors were widely known to be subject to disciplinary action for providing medical exemptions to COVID-19 vaccines, regardless of whether or not they had valid concerns for their patients' health. The sanctions included loss of the ability to practice medicine, effectively pressuring them to follow mandates rather than prioritize what should be their priority, their patient's health.

Heavy-handed, unscientific mandates over the Covid period has significantly eroded trust in medical professionals and public health institutions, leading to greater resistance to vaccination programs and medical recommendations. Who do you want to rule your body, you or the government of Hawaii? Sadly, all too many Hawaii legislators are saying, "the government."

In conclusion, I strongly support the values our country was founded upon: American freedom and choice for each and every citizen. Vote "no" to HB1118.

I oppose the government forcing families to vaccinate their children and not providing the option for a religious exemption. This is unconstitutional. I highly encourage everyone with a vote on this matter to first read the Moth in the Iron Lung and then Dissolving Illusions before voting. There is a strong history in this country of forcing vaccinations and those forced vaccinations have resulted in many injuries and deaths that were avoidable and in many cases the . It simply does not make sense to force every child to take a risk in order to potentially protect the few. The decision to take that risk should be left to the families not politicians. In particular the government should have no say in forcing the Gardasil vaccination for 7th graders, this vaccine does not protect against a viral illness, it is for sexually transmitted diseases and only protects against some potential forms of cancers linked to HPV not to mention it requires an additional booster to remain effective. The risk profile for this vaccine is too high and it should not be forced. Again, before voting on this matter the panel should really consider learning more about the history of vaccinating in this county and around the world. Thank you for your consideration.

Good morning,

Our country's 1st Ammendment gives us religious protection from legislation like this.

The argument for abortion is often "my body, my choice" and so why not the same argument for so called vaccines.

Mandating vaccines for all assumes we are all the same and "one size fits all". This assumption is false.

I oppose HB1118. We should have a CHOICE and not be forced to take any more vaccines in our bodies. There are reports coming out of the TRUTHS that vaccines are hurting, damaging and killing healthy people. And who's making a killing on the costs for these vaccines? Doctors, hospitals, pharmacies, politicians pushing it on the masses???

I strongly oppose HB1118! No medical freedom equals NO FREEDOM! This is one of the largest government overreaches and needs to end here at this committee hearing! Everyone of you is supposed to be there representing the people of Hawaii. It is clear that we are tired of the government over reach telling us we should give up this freedom and that freedom because Josh Green says so! That is not how the Constitution and Bill of Rights was set up or works!!! Hawaii afterall is the 50th state and should comply with amendment number one, FREEDOM of religion!!! Covid ushered in all these tyrannical government overreaches. Please do not continue to fan the flames for Josh Greens greedy control. He is not for the people of Hawaii and therefore should not be allowed to push this bill any further.

Please vote no to HB1118.

Vaccines (immunizations) are very important for the overall health of our children. Due to vaccine misinformation that is spread by social media, many people believe that vaccines are dangerous and harmful. Vaccines are extremely safe and extremely effective. They are cost effective and prevent devastating brain infections, birth defects, among their many benefits. Supporting vaccines is one of the smartest ways to maintain the health and well-being of our children. Preventing these serious cases is most beneficial. Being normal versus having a devastating brain condition is what these vaccines do. Reducing these unnecessary harms to our children is what responsible and well informed adults need to do to optimize the health care of our children. Sincerely, Loren Yamamoto, MD, MPH, MBA (pediatrician)

Comments:

This Bill removes ‘non-medical exemptions’ from vaccine requirements. Let’s start by calling these exemptions by their proper name – religious exemptions. This Bill is not removing philosophical exemptions, which we do not currently have in the State of Hawaii. This Bill is removing the right to opt out of vaccinations , based on a family’s religious beliefs. This is a constitutionally protected right and this Bill is a clear and direct infringement of mine and my family’s constitutional right to practice our religious beliefs.

In addition to the Bill being clearly unconstitutional, it’s foundation and purported purpose factually rests on extremely shaky ground.

The Bill’s apparent concern is to protect children from ‘an increasing trend in non-medical immunization exemptions.’ Yet despite the rate of non-medical exemptions nearly doubling there has not been an increase ‘in vaccine preventable diseases’, but in many cases there has in fact been a decrease in disease. Here are a few examples:

- Pertussis: In 2014, Hawaii reported a total of 28 pertussis (whooping cough) cases. In 2024, the Hawaii Department of Health reported 27 pertussis cases statewide. Notably, 13 (48%) of these cases occurred in individuals who were up to date on their pertussis vaccinations.
- Measles: In 2014, Hawaii reported a total of 15 measles cases. In 2024, there were 0 measles cases

(Source : Hawaii Department of Health , Disease Outbreak Control Division)

In addition , the current religious exemption, which the Bill seeks to remove, is practiced by parents by submitting a form to the school entitled ‘REQUEST FOR EXEMPTION FROM VACCINATION ON RELIGIOUS GROUNDS’ . This form is provided by the Hawaii State Department of Health and has a clause in in that states the following

‘I understand that if at any time there is, in the opinion of the Department of Health, danger of an outbreak or epidemic from any communicable disease for which immunization is required, this exemption from immunization shall not be recognized and my child will be excluded from school or his/her child care facility until the threat of an epidemic is over or he/she receives the proper immunization.’

This clause provides strong powers to the Department of Health to squash a parent's religious right in the event of what the Department deems a danger and gives full authority to the Department to make that determination.

In balancing the public interest with an individual's right to freely practice their religion and to bodily autonomy, I humbly ask that you consider the fact that (i) disease rates have not increased (but actually decreased), despite an increase in exemptions and (ii) we already have this clause available for the Department of Health to invoke if necessary, should the disease rates suddenly increase.

The Bill also seeks to protect 'medically fragile children' (at line 14) from exposure to vaccine preventable diseases.

There is however science that shows the opposite – that those who get vaccinated can actually be more of a potential threat to these medically fragile children. Why?

Most of these vaccinations are very effective at reducing symptoms, but a lot less effective at reducing transmission and the spread of the disease. For example in a JAMA 2016 study, first author is Phadke and colleagues, looked at all the US pertussis outbreaks after January of 2000, so in the modern era and found that 65 to 76% of everybody who got pertussis in the United States was fully or partially vaccinated against pertussis. A study by FDA scientists entitled 'Acellular pertussis vaccines protect against disease but fail to prevent infection and transmission in nonhuman primate model' was pivotal in showing that the pertussis bacteria still circulates despite vaccination and that those vaccinated were actually contagious for longer than those that weren't.

So, because the vaccinations are so effective at reducing symptoms, children that get the vaccination, and still get the disease won't feel as sick and will return to school much quicker, spreading the disease while still contagious. Versus an unvaccinated child who due to symptoms being much more pronounced will need to stay at home, meaning they will be less likely to spread the disease.

Another example, is this CDC study:

"Diphtheria toxoid helps prevent symptomatic disease, but does not prevent the carrier state nor stop the spread of infection ... [T]he known importance of carrier in the spread of diphtheria, and the demonstrated failure of toxoid to prevent the carrier state lead us to conclude that the concept of herd immunity is not applicable in the prevention of diphtheria.'

<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pubmed/5026197>

So, for diphtheria disease it's the same as with pertussis– less symptoms when vaccinated, yet can still spread the infection.

For Tetanus, The CDC's website states that: 'Tetanus doesn't spread from person to person'
<https://www.cdc.gov/tetanus/causes/index.html>

The CDC also says 'IPV protects people against all three types of poliovirus. IPV does not contain live virus and cannot cause disease. It protects people from polio disease but does not stop transmission of the virus.'

In addition , some vaccines such as Varivax (chickenpox) actually say in their insert to avoid contact with vulnerable individuals for 6 weeks after vaccinations. Do we exclude these vaccinated children from school?

I understand that it is generally accepted by the public that these childhood vaccines stop the spread of infection and that it is in the public interest to be up to date with these vaccines. But, in fact the CDC and FDA's own studies and websites indicate that although these vaccines stop the symptomatic disease, they do not stop the spread. For that reason , the choice to get vaccines is for that of personal protection and not in fact public.

If you're interested, this video breaks this down more and goes through each of the vaccine preventable diseases mandated for school , starting at 2:52 heard in Arizona State Senate:
<https://thehighwire.com/ark-videos/safeguarding-vaccine-exemptions-aaron-siri-testifies-pt-2/>

In conclusion, not only does this Bill rest on shaky factual grounds, it rests on very shaky legal grounds , since it aims to remove a constitutionally protected right.

It is my deeply held belief that my body is the temple of my spirit. And that to force the injection of foreign materials, which include cells from aborted fetuses , is a complete violation of bodily autonomy and my personally held belief that God has given me the choice of what enters my body. I believe that we are made in the image of God and that to pollute our bodies with foreign DNA and other materials violates my interpretation of God's word. These are some of the religious beliefs that we have in our family and that extend to my young daughter.

As a new mother of a delightful 1 year old, I can attest firsthand that I desire and seek what is best for my child, and all children. I humbly hope to nurture in him a respect for humanity, the courage to think freely, and the curiosity to seek the Lord. I want him to grow up in a country where he has the freedom to follow his religious convictions insofar as they respect the rights of others, and the freedom to choose what to put in his body, rather than the state making those decisions for him.

Regardless of your personal views on immunizations, I think it is hard to deny that this bill is an attack on freedom of religion, as well as the freedom to make decisions for our the health of our families based on our unique needs. Religious freedom, and the right to make our own choices for what we believe is best our families, forms the backbone of this country. Freedom is a rare gift worth protecting. This freedom allows us to form a beautiful, diverse nation. If this bill passes we are handing over a freedom that should be reserved for the discretion of families into the hands of the state, and historically that loss of freedom has never been for the ultimate good of people in a society.

Please oppose this bill for the sake of protecting the freedom of religion, and the freedom for families to choose what they believe is best for those they love.

Legislators,

I strongly oppose HB1118 or any bill that suggests it. These are my reasons. 1. Big pharma can't be sued over vaccine injury. 2. The USA is in a health crisis and heavy vaccine injections maybe one of the biggest factors. 3. Big pharmaceutical is tied to close to politicians and decisions are compromised. 4. Religious freedoms and the right to choose our own health decisions are extremely important to freedom. 5. We already have heard imunity and the unvaccinated are not a dent in the overall health of the state. 6. The ADHD and autism crisis has been linked by many experts to vaccines. There needs to be more honest research on the subject. 7. The vaccinated should already be protected according to the honest science and the ones that can't get vaccinated because of medical reasons should already be taking there precautions. With that being said the risk of taking vaccines and getting a vaccine injury can be a medical reason not to take them. government need to stay out of this and let the people choose there own course of action.

Thank you

Ian Forester

It should be a choice for the parents choice what they want to put into their kids. If University's are included then the individual adult (18 and over) should be able to make that choice. Our government is overreaching their position and needs to regain the trust of the people before moving forward with Bills like this. What Happened to "My Body, My Choice?" I have been practicing medicine in the state of Hawaii as an Infectious Disease Specialist since 1972. During this period I have seen the near elimination many infectious diseases affecting children, life threatening and brain destroying diseases such as meningitis, childhood diseases such as Chicken pox and Measles, fatal conditions such as diphtheria and tetanus. I have seen all of these conditions in Hawaii before vaccination was available and now I see them only in children who were unvaccinated. Since 2020 we have seen an alarming DECLINE in the vaccination rate and are now very likely to have a measles outbreak in many parts of the state. I support this bill because it will protect our Keiki. California had a severe measles outbreak which spread to UNVACCINATED people from a single infected person visiting Disneyland. In response the California legislature passed a bill repealing non-medical exemptions to vaccines. As a result California has higher vaccine rates than we do. At present our vaccination rates against measles is low in many schools and neighborhoods that a measles outbreak is likely. All of my 50+ years of service to the children of this state informs me that the current vaccine recommendations are essential for child health.

Respectfully submitted,

Marian Melish, MD

Please stop this bill from passing. Every child has the right to education. If this bill goes into effect then you've taken that right away. Just like California, there will be a mass exodus from the school system. By forcing a parent's arm, you've taken away their rights. By forcing a vaccine (those in the current schedule and those that have not yet been made) you are forcing yourself on a child's autonomy. If this bill passes, our government had overreached their power in our keiki and ohanas.

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing to oppose HB-1118.

Religious exemptions are necessary. Citizens with deeply held personal religious beliefs should not be forced to violate their bodies and go against principles laid out in their religion. The most stringent standard is that the government should not require people to violate their conscience or religion without a compelling reason.

In the State of Hawai'i, there are currently only 5.3% of all students utilizing the religious exemption. If 94.7% of students are currently fully vaccinated, this rate is HIGH ENOUGH. The current provisions of the religious exemption state that students must remain at home in the event of an outbreak. When was the last time this has happened? As studies have shown, no vaccine is 100% effective, meaning that there is no compelling reason.

According to the Public Health Policy Journal, "Hawaii's proposed legislation is a national outlier, as public opinion on exemptions has become more favorable in recent years". This is truly a regressive vaccination policy as we have seen more states reverse course and allow religious exemptions. I believe if this bill passes, we will see more parents remove their children from schools, resulting in a huge drop in enrollment. With numbers already declining due to fewer births and outward migration, is that what Gov. Josh Green really wants to see? Let's keep our religious exemptions and allow children to have the public education they have a right to receive.

Personally, I believe it is a God-given responsibility and requirement for me to protect the physical integrity of my body against unclean injections. Vaccines violate the sanctity of blood and life. I believe in and follow God and the principles laid out in His Word and I have a deeply held belief that vaccines violate them. Taking vaccines would betray my trust and faith in God. When I pray, I listen for promptings from the Holy Spirit. To ignore His voice and commands would be to commit sin. Requiring vaccines for my children to attend school is requiring me to act in direct opposition to my sincerely held religious beliefs.

I urge you to please oppose this bill, for Hawai'i's current families as well as future families. We should all be able to exercise our religious freedoms.

We've already witnessed the negative effects of rushed vaccine policies, particularly during COVID-19. If herd immunity is the goal, then shouldn't vaccinated children already be protected? This bill is not about public health—it's about government overreach, and I urge lawmakers to reject it.

Simply because this is flat out coercion. People have a right to choose. Nobody has the right to tell another individual what to put into, or do with their body. State lawmakers do not have the right to force parents, let alone anyone to do something they are not openly willing to do. That is a means of slavery. I oppose this bill because it directly violates parents' constitutional right to make decisions on behalf of their children. It creates a system of coercion- forcing children to comply with government mandates in order to attend school. This infringes on religious freedoms, preventing parents from acting in alignment with their beliefs. Additionally, this bill disregards the fundamental principle of bodily autonomy- our body, our choice. While individuals may hold differing views from the government, no parent should be forced into a situation that could put their child at risk of harm.

My Name is Alexandria Lum and I STRONGLY OPPOSE HB1118.

As a mother, to think that my local government would undermine not only a parent's right but a religious right (DOUBLE VIOLATION) by imposing a law that would force a parent to decide what's best for their child and to violate their conscience is HORRIFYING to me. This law would impose what YOU THINK is safe and best for my child...a'ole! Do not vote for this bill! This is purely unconstitutional and violates the rights of parents to do what's best for their child.

Mahalo!

I strongly oppose bill HB1118. My families beliefs and choice on whether or not we choose to have our children vaccinated should not be forced. The government should not be forcing any medical procedures or drugs on us, especially if they will not be held liable or responsible for any possible negative outcome that could happen. My children do not belong to the government, and thus should absolutely not be forced to inject anything into their bodies.

As a physician and as a mother of a child who was diagnosed with leukemia, I strongly support HB 1118. As a physician, I know that vaccines are well-studied, safe, effective, and one of the most economical interventions to keep children healthy. The medical community is seeing increasing numbers of parents who are seeking non-medical vaccine exemptions for their children so much so that Hawai'i is now below threshold for herd immunity for several devastating diseases, including measles!!

As a mother of a child who had to undergo three years of chemotherapy and during that time was immunocompromised and dependent on herd immunity, this situation terrifies me. We must protect the health and safety of our keiki and families! Please pass HB 1118.

I oppose HB1118. Violates our constitutional right to practice our religious beliefs, parental rights and violates the universal human right to be free of coercion/punishment in our medical decisions. Informed consent is crucial to protect children. Denying children education is not in the best interest for society. People will remove their children from school or not enroll rather than violate their religious beliefs. Hundreds of thousands of people left California to preserve their ability to educate their children after SB277 was passed.

Dear Legislator/Committee Members,

My name is Tacquiya Harewood , and I am here today as a devoted parent and a person of deep religious conviction. I respectfully testify against the current mandatory vaccine bills, as they conflict with the spiritual principles and personal beliefs that guide the care of my family.

In our home, our faith teaches us that the human body is a sacred trust, and that healing and protection are blessings granted through divine providence and natural means rather than through medical interventions imposed by the state. I believe that true health and well-being are nurtured by spiritual practices such as prayer, meditation, and a conscientious reliance on the natural processes that God has instilled in us. For me and for others who share my beliefs, it is essential that we are allowed the freedom to follow these divinely inspired practices without interference.

I fully understand that public health policies aim to protect our community. However, the current mandatory vaccine bills do not provide for exemptions based on sincere religious or spiritual convictions. This omission forces families like mine into a position where our deeply held spiritual values are overlooked in favor of a one-size-fits-all approach. In doing so, it not only undermines our constitutional right to freely exercise our religion but also disregards the diverse ways in which families pursue health and healing.

I respectfully urge you to consider amending these bills to include provisions for religious or spiritual exemptions. Allowing for such exemptions would honor the principle of religious freedom and respect the diverse beliefs held by constituents across our community.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I trust that you will carefully weigh the importance of protecting both public health and the constitutional rights of all citizens.

Sincerely,

Tacquiya Harewood

A Concerned Parent and Faithful Community Member

Religious exemptions to vaccines are an important aspect of respecting individual freedom and religious liberty. In many societies, personal beliefs—especially those rooted in faith—are deeply held and guide people's decisions about their health, body, and medical treatments. For some, vaccinations conflict with religious teachings, whether due to concerns about the ingredients used in vaccines, beliefs about bodily autonomy, or faith in divine healing over medical intervention.

Allowing religious exemptions ensures that governments uphold constitutional rights to freedom of religion and conscience. Without such exemptions, individuals may be forced to choose between violating their faith or facing societal consequences, such as exclusion from schools or workplaces. This is particularly significant in diverse societies where people adhere to different religious traditions with varying views on medicine and healthcare.

This bill will negatively affect me and others.

Aloha,

I strongly oppose not having a religious exemption for my keiki. I am NOT anti-vaccination but would like to have the choice to do so or not. It is my body, it's my children's bodies and we should be allowed to decide what type of medications go into it. The fact that there are NO safety studies done on any of the 72 vaccines on the schedule should be a red flag. It is definitely NOT a one size fits all just like any medication, doctors need to know our weight and any other prior complications. It's common sense to have a choice whether or not to take medication just as it is common sense whether or not to receive a vaccine which ultimately is a medication. I am all for informed consent which parents are not receiving.

Regarding seeking wisdom and guidance to aid in upholding the health and best interest of the people of Hawai'i, HB1118 DO NOT support this bill.

To mandate and forcefully act upon oneself, whether by their own person or the will of a government on another human person's physical body is an act pure of evil.

WITHOUT the full educated consent of one person, and to impose or FORCE ANY type of impression upon another DOES NOT uphold the will of the people nor the law of the land.

If Governor Green is pro vaccine he should be vaccinated. Gov Green should not make his neighbors and fellow citizens be subjected to his medical choice. We as Americans should have freedom of choice.

HB 1118 RELATING TO NON-MEDICAL EXEMPTIONS TO IMMUNIZATION REQUIREMENTS.

Dear Chair Gregg Takayama, Vice Chair Sue Keohokapu-Lee and members of the House Committee on Health,

I submit my testimony in STRONG OPPOSITION to HB1118. I am a mother of two young children, whose wellbeing is my top priority. The current childhood immunization schedule amounts to 33+ immunization dosages from birth to the age of 18 excluding the annual recommended vaccinations and boosters for flu and covid. Parents are required to sign a form that they are aware of the risks of their child receiving an immunization, removing the responsibility of the potential harm from their child receiving medical provider.

I OPPOSE this repeal because it is a direct violation of our first amendment right that no law prohibit the free exercise of religion. Parents have the right to this decision as the primary caretakers, which should not prevent a child from enrollment into school. Don't make it even harder for families to decide between health and education. In other words, we are forced to decide if our children should be immunized and be allowed to attend school or not be immunized and denied admission to school.

I strongly OPPOSE and urge you to deny this bill to give the children of Hawai'i and their families the freedom of choice as it refers to religious exemptions for immunizations. Mahalo for your time and your continued efforts in regards to our health.

Aloha,

I am a mother of 4 children. I oppose this bill HB1118 because I watched my oldest suffer from all the vaccines given to her. In her younger days we spent days in the hospital for her asthma and all they could give was steroids . I believe it was from the vaccines because she was perfectly fine before we gave her her 15 month shots.

Also watching my little cousin who is high functioning autism was hard. He loves his life and is happy but his younger days were hard.

I oppose this bill HB1118 because this goes against parental choice. We should be allowed to opt out of things we don't want for ourselves and our children. We shouldn't be forced to take something our beliefs and religion goes against. Can you guarentee the vaccines are SAFE, the vaccines are EFFECTIVE? Because studies show otherwise.

I strongly oppose HB1118.

Mandates are the tools of bullies for products that can't stand on their own and must be forced upon people. This bill is government overreach. It tramples on religious freedom our country was founded upon.

This bill threatens our fundamental rights, our right to bodily autonomy, our right to make medical decisions for ourselves and our children, and the right to protect our children. It spits in the face of my body, my choice.

This bill also goes against the right to informed consent. Every medical treatment, including vaccines, carries a risk of adverse effects, neurological issues, autoimmune disorders, long term health complications.

I am for religious freedom. I am for informed consent. I am for holding companies liable for the products they produce. This bill paves the wave for crooks and criminals and the accountability will fall upon you if you push this bill through.

Testimony in Opposition to HB1118

To the Honorable Members of the HLT Committee,

My name is Danielle De Lima, and I am a concerned citizen born and raised on the west side, a homesteader in Kapolei, a mother and most of all a believer and follower of Jesus. I stand before you today to oppose the proposed bill that seeks to remove the religious exemption for vaccinations in children. I do so not only on religious grounds but also based on serious concerns regarding the ingredients and ethical considerations involved in some vaccines.

One of the primary reasons many of us object to certain vaccines is the use of aborted fetal cell lines in their development and production. These cell lines, derived from elective abortions that took place decades ago, are still used in the creation of vaccines today. For individuals who hold religious beliefs that affirm the sanctity of life and oppose the destruction of unborn children, it is deeply troubling to have no recourse in deciding whether to vaccinate their children using products that were developed through such methods. The conscience of many parents is burdened by the knowledge that their child’s immunization may be tied to the legacy of these morally reprehensible practices.

Additionally, there is mounting concern about the presence of heavy metals and other potentially harmful chemicals in some vaccines, such as mercury-based preservatives (thimerosal) and aluminum salts. These substances have been linked to adverse health effects, particularly in vulnerable populations such as young children. While proponents of vaccines may argue that these ingredients are present in minimal amounts, we must ask: how much is too much when it comes to the health and safety of our children? Parents deserve the right to make informed choices about what is injected into their children’s bodies, especially when the risks of these ingredients are not fully understood or disclosed.

Furthermore, the push to remove religious exemptions limits the fundamental rights of parents to make decisions for the wellbeing of their children. Religion is not just a set of beliefs; it is a way of life that shapes our values, actions, and decisions. Forcing parents to choose between complying with a mandate that violates their religious beliefs or losing access to education and other public services is an affront to their rights.

Removing religious exemptions creates an environment where personal autonomy is compromised and where medical mandates trump individual liberty. It also exacerbates societal division and breeds distrust between the public and health authorities. The ethical concerns, the presence of controversial substances in vaccines, and the moral obligation to respect parental rights must be seriously considered before stripping away this vital exemption. While I have no specific evidence to present today regarding my next statement, it has been confirmed that many doctors and political figures are financially supported by these pharmaceutical companies or in other words, are bought out, hence the distrust in believing bills such as this are what's in our best interest. Perhaps more transparency in this area for those who support or draft such legislation to disclose whether or not they are being financed in some way may help.

In conclusion, I urge you to reject this bill and to preserve the religious exemption for vaccinations. This country was founded on Christian values and slowly, more and more laws seem to want to forget, remove, and disrespect our religious practices and beliefs. Parents should not be forced to choose between their children's health and their deeply held beliefs. I ask that you honor the sanctity of life, protect religious freedoms, and provide space for informed consent in medical decisions.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,
Danielle De Lima

I write this today to express my deeply held religious convictions and to explain why these convictions compel me to oppose any law that forces individuals to be vaccinated without the possibility of exemption on religious grounds. In a free society, individuals should have the right to make informed choices about their bodies and medical care, particularly when those decisions are based on sincerely held religious convictions. Religious freedom is protected by the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution. It guarantees that individuals can practice their faith without government interference. This right includes the ability to make decisions in accordance with one's beliefs, whether it concerns education, health care, or any other aspect of life. While I fully acknowledge the importance of public health, the right to religious freedom should not be sacrificed in the name of that cause. Throughout history, governments have recognized the importance of religious freedom by allowing exemptions to medical mandates for individuals who have sincere religious objections. These exemptions have been upheld as vital to respecting the diversity of beliefs in a free society. To remove this option would be a step backward in protecting religious freedoms.

In conclusion, I urge you to consider the protection of religious freedom alongside public health concerns. Respecting an individual's right to make health decisions based on religious convictions ensures that our nation remains a place where freedom of conscience is safeguarded.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

I support this bill. Since the COVID epidemic in particular, I have notice a surge in the utilization of "religious exemption" to decline immunization for school attendance, putting the entire population of the State of Hawaii at risk for epidemics from vaccine preventable diseases. Media enhanced vaccine hesitancy and the wide availability of pseudo-scientific misinformation regarding vaccination has fueled a decline in immunization rates. Casual comments noted in the office like "I think I will use the religious exemption for my child" reinforces my belief that the exemption is being consistently abused and highly unlikely to be founded on valid religious tenets.

I have been a pediatrician on Maui for 40 years. I strongly support HB 1118, which would repeal the non-medical exemption from immunization requirements. Vaccines have been proven to be one of the safest, most effective, and most economical interventions to keep children healthy. Over recent years, we have observed with dismay that increasing numbers of parents are seeking non-medical vaccine exemptions for their children. As a result, Hawai'i is now below threshold for herd immunity for several devastating diseases, including measles, which is extremely contagious and can have serious complications. Repealing the non-medical vaccine exemption would benefit all children in Hawai'i, ensuring that keiki are protected from unnecessary suffering and potentially lifelong disability or death. I would also like to encourage you to consider programs like in California when a parent applies for a non-medical exemption from the immunization requirements they are mandated to take educational classes about the diseases and the vaccinations so the State can be assured that they have been fairly informed about the risks and benefits of the vaccinations. This method assures a certain level of medical understanding of the consequences of their decision. Also there needs to be more enforcement of the the State law requiring completed vaccinations for school entry. There is no sense have rules and laws without enforcement. There was a time when you could not graduate from high school if your vaccinations were not completed.

Thank you for your support of this legislation for the benefit of our children.

Aloha. I don't know of any religion that is opposed to getting children vaccinated. The lax law of allowing unvaccinated children to enter school is a slow moving train wreck. If one of them gets the disease, it can spread quickly. The most vulnerable children will be the most adversely affected. Gone are the days of gymnasiums filled with respirators with kids affected from polio. We used to be very good at spinal taps as pediatricians. When a baby came in with fever, we did spinal taps to make sure the babies did not have meningitis. Because of Hib, Prevnar and the Meningitis vaccines, I have not done a spinal tap in years, nor have I seen meningitis. Let's protect our keiki and our island. Testimony in Opposition to HB1118

Chair(s), Vice Chair(s) , and Members of the Committee:

Aloha,

My name is Julliet Rhoden, and I am submitting testimony in strong opposition to HB1118, which would remove religious exemptions for school vaccinations in Hawai‘i. While I understand the public health benefits of vaccinations, I believe this bill undermines essential parental rights and religious freedoms.

1. Parents Should Have the Right to Make Medical Decisions for Their Children

Parents are the primary decision-makers when it comes to their children’s health and well-being. Some families hold strong religious or personal convictions about medical treatments, and they should not be forced to choose between adhering to their beliefs and ensuring their child receives an education. The government should not interfere in such deeply personal decisions.

2. Preserving Religious Freedom

Religious freedom is a fundamental right in America. For many families, vaccination decisions are not simply about health but about faith and conscience. Eliminating religious exemptions disregards this fundamental freedom and sets a dangerous precedent for the erosion of personal and religious liberties.

3. Every Child is Different

Not every child’s body responds the same way to vaccines, and while medical exemptions exist, they can be extremely difficult to obtain—even when legitimate concerns are present. Families should not be burdened with unnecessary legal or bureaucratic battles when making informed medical decisions for their children.

4. The Dangerous Precedent of HB1118

This bill raises a significant question: if religious beliefs are dismissed in the context of vaccinations, what other rights might be taken away next? Health freedom is just that. My body my boundary. The government should not have the authority to override religious convictions, especially when these beliefs have long been respected under the law.

5. The Impact on Schools and Local Families

Hawai'i already faces challenges with school enrollment, just look at Kaimuki High School, and the high cost of living. If children are barred from attending school due to their families' religious beliefs, more families may feel forced to homeschool. This legislation may unintentionally deepen Hawai'i's existing socioeconomic struggles by placing additional burdens on local families.

Conclusion

While public health is important, it should not come at the expense of parental rights and religious freedom. Families should not be penalized for making medical decisions that align with their deeply held beliefs. I strongly urge this committee to reject HB1118 and to uphold the rights of Hawai'i families.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Julliet Rhoden

I am aware that those ordering and/or administering vaccines have been granted immunity from liability should my [son or daughter] suffer from a vaccine caused injury or illness. Since the Supreme Court decision Bruesewitz v. Wyeth (Feb 22, 2011), drug companies are under no legal obligation to insure their vaccine products are either safe or effective. The same decision defined vaccines as unavoidably unsafe. Vaccine manufacturers pay nothing into the National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program, so it is not an acceptable alternative to me.

I am aware that vaccine schedules have been established by the CDC and are promoted by public health departments, the AMERICAN ACADEMY OF PEDIATRICS and other organizations. I do not accept CDC recommendations as science- based.

I do not recognize the CDC as a government health advocacy organization. It is a corporation listed on Dun and Bradstreet and headquartered in the STATE OF GEORGIA, with strong ties to the pharmaceutical industry through the CDC Foundation. Therefore, their recommendations are influenced by the fiscal health of their corporation.

I am aware that the STATE OF HAWAI'I DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, a corporation headquartered in the STATE OF HAWAI'I and listed on Dun and Bradstreet, receives monetary compensation from the CDC to promote vaccines. Therefore, the state public health department's recommendations and actions are influenced by the fiscal health of their corporation.

I do not recognize the AMERICAN ACADEMY OF PEDIATRICS or the AMERICAN ACADEMY OF FAMILY PHYSICIANS as health advocacy organizations. They are both trade organizations and corporations (listed on Dun and Bradstreet) that are headquartered in the STATE OF ILLINOIS and the STATE OF KANSAS respectively, whose monetary compensation from vaccine manufacturers contributes to the fiscal health of their corporations.

I am aware that physicians and hospitals are paid higher reimbursement rates for administering vaccines.

I am aware of multiple scientific peer-reviewed papers that have exposed the dangers of many vaccines as well as the herd immunity through vaccination myth.

I am aware that the corporation HEALTH & HUMAN SERVICES, UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF, listed on Dun and Bradstreet and headquartered in WASHINGTON DC, profits from vaccines patents and determines claims paid from the National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program via a secret administrative process.

I have concluded that following the CDC vaccination recommendations can endanger the health or life of my children.

Aloha Chair Takayama, Vice-Chair Keohokapu-Lee Loy, and Committee Members,

As a pediatrician, I strongly support HB 1118, which would repeal the non-medical exemption from immunization requirements. Vaccines are one of the safest, most effective, and most economical interventions to keep children healthy. Over recent years, we have observed with dismay that increasing numbers of parents are seeking non-medical vaccine exemptions for their children. As a result, Hawai'i is now below threshold for herd immunity for several devastating diseases, including measles, which is extremely contagious and can have serious complications. Repealing the non-medical vaccine exemption would benefit all children in Hawai'i, ensuring that keiki are protected from unnecessary suffering and potentially lifelong disability or death.

Sincerely,

This is gross government overreach! You have no right telling parents what they must inject into their children's bodies. There are droves of studies done that show that unvaccinated kids are far healthier than their vaccinated peers. But regardless, it is the family's choice, NOT the governments! Shame on anyone who votes for this!

Aloha Chair Takayama, Vice Chair Keohokapu-Lee and Members of the Committee on Health.

Mahalo for your service.

I submit my written testimony now that I do not support this bill and it should not be passed. I only found out yesterday about this bill's existence and I am shocked that in Hawaii this law is trying to be passed and is taking our rights away to choose how we want our keiki to be raised. Government doesn't surpass or overrule my rights in my faith and belief in Jesus Christ and how we would like our keiki to be raised.

This kind of legislation will also gives precedence for more legislation of this type being forced upon all and ignoring our rights on whom we believe in and what we believe.

We saw in the covid shutdowns how forcing vaccinations on all and making it conditional for some to work have not only hurt our economy, hurt people but I believe it was done partly out of fear and not even looking at the research carefully or even considering other alternatives. I can understand if people are at high-risk but to make vaccinations to be forced upon all is not right especially when there are alternatives at times.

This law is not right and as a registered voter I do not agree with it and do not support it.

Mahalo & respectfully submitted,

Kristl Woo

I oppose bill HB1118 to remove religious exemptions on vaccines for children to attend public schools. As a mother of 3, woman of faith and a proud American, this bill imposes on Americas values under the first amendment of our constitution; the freedom of belief, worship and religious exercise.

passing this bill will take away more choices from parents and leave it up to the government. Just like how the government doesn't belong in the doctors office when you're receiving an abortion it's the same thing when it comes to whether or not parents vaccinate their children.

Aloha,

In 2017, my four school age children were no longer able to attend school when their vaccine exemptions were revoked. At the time we lived in California, and SB277 had passed removing vaccine exemptions. Today you are considering passing a similar bill, and I testify of the harm caused by this discriminatory legislation. Our lives were totally disrupted when our kids had to leave their school and friends they loved and became homeschoolers almost overnight. When we decided after a year that homeschooling wasn't a good option for us, we were forced to leave the state and uproot our entire lives. You see, people of sincere faith and conviction will not just get their kids vaccinated because a legislator says so. Rather, they are targets of discriminatory practices that marginalize and demonize them needlessly. Thankfully, we were able to relocate to Hawai'i and for the past seven years my children have safely attended with vaccine exemptions.

The bill you have before you, HB1118, targets a very small number of children and is blatantly discriminatory against people of faith. In fact, by saying that a child who is born healthy and remains just as they are born, without modifying their body with pharmaceutical products, is unfit to associate in public spaces you are discriminating against human biology itself. There is no evidence that these children present any real threat to anyone; in fact several of the diseases on the childhood vaccine schedule could not be spread in a school setting at all.

As we enter a new era of MRNA where vaccines such as the new Covid-19 vaccine are designed to modify human biology itself, having freedom of choice is more important than ever. The Hawai'i Legislature should not have the freedom to force any kind of medical product into a child, or remove a child's right to attend school. I will not even let my children eat a genetically modified apple. Why would I ever allow a product intended to genetically modify their own biology be injected into their bloodstream?

Please reject this authoritarian, heavy handed bill and continue to allow children to attend school exactly the way that God created them.

Thank you.

My name is Kelly Stern, and I am here to share my personal perspective on an issue that touches the very core of our freedoms. I strongly oppose any move to remove religious rights and religious exemptions for children’s vaccines. As someone who values the freedom to practice my faith and raise my family according to deeply held beliefs, I feel that this change would not only infringe on our religious liberty but also undermine the principle of personal conscience that has long been a cornerstone of our society.

Our nation was founded on the idea that individuals should be free to make decisions about their own lives and the upbringing of their children. By taking away the option for religious exemptions, we risk eroding a tradition of diversity and respect for differing beliefs—a tradition that has enriched our communities for generations. I believe that families should have the right to choose what aligns with their moral and religious convictions without fear of undue governmental pressure or interference.

In sharing my testimony, I respectfully urge our policymakers to consider the broader implications of such a policy change. Preserving religious rights is not just about protecting individual choices; it’s about honoring the pluralistic society we cherish—a society that values both public health and personal freedoms. I hope that a balanced approach can be found, one that safeguards the well-being of our community while upholding the fundamental right to religious expression.

Thank you for allowing me to share my views on this important matter.

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing to oppose HB-1118.

Religious exemptions are necessary. Citizens with deeply held personal religious beliefs should not be forced to violate their bodies and go against principles laid out in their religion. The most stringent standard is that the government should not require people to violate their conscience or religion without a compelling reason.

In the State of Hawai'i, there are currently only 5.3% of all students utilizing the religious exemption. If 94.7% of students are currently fully vaccinated, this rate is HIGH ENOUGH. The current provisions of the religious exemption state that students must remain at home in the event of an outbreak. When was the last time this has happened? As studies have shown, no vaccine is 100% effective, meaning that there is no compelling reason.

According to the Public Health Policy Journal, "Hawaii's proposed legislation is a national outlier, as public opinion on exemptions has become more favorable in recent years". This is truly a regressive vaccination policy as we have seen more states reverse course and allow religious exemptions. I believe if this bill passes, we will see more parents remove their children from schools, resulting in a huge drop in enrollment. With numbers already declining due to fewer births and outward migration, is that what Gov. Josh Green really wants to see? Let's keep our religious exemptions and allow children to have the public education they have a right to receive.

Personally, I believe it is a God-given responsibility and requirement for me to protect the physical integrity of my body against unclean injections. Vaccines violate the sanctity of blood and life. I believe in and follow God and the principles laid out in His Word and I have a deeply held belief that vaccines violate them. Taking vaccines would betray my trust and faith in God. When I pray, I listen for promptings from the Holy Spirit. To ignore His voice and commands would be to commit sin. Requiring vaccines for my children to attend school is requiring me to act in direct opposition to my sincerely held religious beliefs.

I urge you to please oppose this bill, for Hawai'i's current families as well as future families. We should all be able to exercise our religious freedoms.

Mahalo,

Mercedes W. Akaka

I oppose this bill and respectfully urge all Health Committee members to vote against this bill. This bill disregards the numerous, legitimate, sincerely-held religious beliefs against immunization. This bill would wrongly and unjustly infringe upon the religious free exercise rights of numerous Hawaii residents who rely on religious exemptions to attend school.

I ask you to consider that any mandate must have exemptions available. And if a secular exemption is available (the medical exemption), a religious exemption must be offered as well.

Taking away Hawaii's religious exemption limits Hawaii residents' freedom of religion, and that is just wrong. Moreover, there is no science-based reason to take this exemption away.

In law school, I spent 9 months as a student attorney representing vaccine-injured plaintiffs in front of the national vaccine court. The U.S. government and numerous scientific studies acknowledge that vaccine injuries exist. To coerce someone to assume the risk of a vaccine injury against their will, as this bill would do, when vaccination is already against their sincerely-held religious belief, is just wrong.

Aloha Chair Takayama, Vice Chair Lee Loy, and Members of the Health Committee,

I am testifying in STRONG OPPOSITION TO HB1118, which would repeal the non-medical exemption from immunization requirements.

As legislators, it is important to note that currently, all U.S. states allow a religious exemption to vaccination except California, Maine, New York, and Connecticut, therefore the introduction of HB1118 is viewed as an anomaly, and more so, to the many parents that have done their due diligence researching the CDC's Childhood Vaccine Schedule, an affront to their family's rights to bodily autonomy.

There is a reason, as stated in the bill, that "non-medical exemption rates in Hawaii have grown over the last 10 years from 2.5% in the 2015-2016 school year to 5.3% in the 2023-2024 school year": Informed consent requires that individuals should be allowed to weight the risks and benefits of a medical procedure without coercion.

According to the National Vaccine Information Center, "A state must have a "compelling State interest" before this right can be taken away. Constitutionally, Americans have an expectation that their religious beliefs will be respected, and that government will not pass laws that obstruct the exercise of this most fundamental of freedoms."

Recently, we have seen increasing numbers of parents choosing not to vaccinate their children and seeking medical vaccine exemptions for their children, which puts Hawaii below threshold for herd immunity for diseases such as measles, which is extremely contagious and can have serious complications (as we saw in 2019 in Samoa's measles outbreak). RE: House Bill 1118
Position: Oppose

Dear Chairs Takayama and Tarnas, Vice Chairs Keohokapu-Lee Loy and Poepoe, and Committee Members,

I am mom of six children on the Big Island of Hawaii and I strongly oppose this bill and am outraged at the sheer proposal of it. While this bill seeks to ensure the health and safety of all school-aged children in Hawaii, it forgets two fundamental truths.

First of all, it violates our first amendment rights to exercise our freedom of religion. A faith based community grounded on morals is crucial to the upholding of a civil society but we must be allowed to live according to the faith that we profess. A violation of our rights to practice our religion is an attack on our rights and the faith we hold so dear. This is a direct violation of the Constitution of the United States and should be dissolved immediately.

Secondly, it violates the right of parents to make decisions for their own children's health and appears to want to remove any ability for them to choose a different health path at all. Parents love their children more than the state and removing their ability to care for them according to their dictates and conscience is a violation of their parental rights.

For these reasons I urge to you to oppose HB1118.

Sincerely,

Anuhe Maeda

I have already begun to see an increase in willfully unvaccinated children in the emergency department here in Honolulu, including recent cases of unvaccinated children with whooping cough (pertussis). This child's parent had been misled by anti-vaccination propoganda into thinking that she was protecting her children. You cannot imagine the guilt and shame she bore as she realized that her actions had actually resulted in all of her children suffering weeks of preventable illness. Look no further than Samoa to see a possible future for our own island if vaccination rates were to drop below the needed thresholds to maintain herd immunity. Such deaths and injuries are completely preventable. Vaccines are a victim of their own success: when the public does not see the devastation that these illnesses can cause, so they become "out of sight, out of mind."

As a pediatric emergency medicine physician, I have personally cared for numerous children who have been seriously disabled or died from vaccine preventable illnesses, including bacterial meningitis, measles, pertussis, and tetanus. Every single one of these patients were unvaccinated, and every single parent wished they had done so, but they wished too late. Please, protect our keiki!

As a concerned citizen, I would like to express my support for HB1118, which proposes to repeal the non-medical exemption from immunization requirements. Vaccines are an means of keeping our children, families, and community healthy. Each person's health matters in regard to total public health and well being. In effort for teachers and schools to focus on their primary task of caring for and education our children, children should receive recommended vaccines before enrolling in school. Thereby ensuring a more healthy school environment where minds and hearts are ready to engage and learn and have fun! Mahalo.

This bill is 100% unconstitutional. How is it possible to preach "my body, my choice", then turn around and force people to inject something into their physical bodies, crossing a very personal barrier? And not just any physical body, a child's body.

I have a five-year-old that has a sensory processing disorder. There are foods that I can't feed her because it makes her gag, then vomit. It's possible that she might be allergic to some of these foods. This is why I don't FORCE her to eat them. We find alternative ways to support her health.

Who will be responsible if anything happens to my child? Can you give me a guarantee that she is not allergic to any of those harsh, dangerous chemicals in those vaccines?

Aloha to the Health Committee,

As a parent whose child has been injured by vaccines and someone who is connected with the community of local children who have been vaccine injured, I strongly oppose this bill. I want to protect all the keiki of Hawaii, however I do not believe this bill would help protect our keiki when it puts many other keiki at risk. There are currently too many questions, risks and unknowns surrounding vaccinations.

Thank you for your time in reading this.

Aloha and thank you for allowing me to submit written testimony on HB 1118 relating to non-medical exemptions to immunization requirements.

I am in strong opposition to HB 1118 as it fails to protect religious freedom and puts all authority with the state and the department of health to decide what is medically appropriate for the children. This should be the responsibility of the parents and guardians to decide what is best for their child not the government. This bill fails to include informed consent which is necessary to make a proper decision.

Please vote no on HB 1118.

I am testifying to oppose this bill. I question the motives of the government to seize more control of our freedom and our Keiki in the name of safety. This was evident in their pushing of intrusive pandemic measures which now is showing that the "science and safety" was just an excuse for "power and greed". Our government takes advantage of our people. They use our disconnection from the mainland US to push agendas that only serve the powerful and rich. I lost my job At Queens Medical Center for not getting vaccinated after having already gotten covid. I also caught it again from a vaccinated co-worker. This is nothing new. But now you want full control of the most vulnerable. Our Keiki. I assure you that parents will love and care for their children much much more than any government would. This is unconstitutional and not Pono. I believe that most of you know that it isn't. I plead with you to do the right thing. Give people their freedom to exercise their beliefs instead of lining the pockets of governor green and his pharmaceutical connections. I leave you with this. Any party is susceptible to corruption. In our everyday lives we know people, friends and family, who have political beliefs. We know some good people from each party. And we know some bad people from each party. Your political affiliation doesn't make you righteous. Your decision making does. Please make the right decision.

As a pediatrician, I strongly support HB 1118, which would repeal the non-medical exemption from immunization requirements. Vaccines are one of the safest, most effective, and most economical interventions to keep children healthy. Over recent years, we have observed with dismay that increasing numbers of parents are seeking non-medical vaccine exemptions for their children. As a result, Hawai'i is now below threshold for herd immunity for several devastating diseases, including measles, which is extremely contagious and can have serious complications. Repealing the non-medical vaccine exemption would benefit all children in Hawai'i, ensuring that keiki are protected from unnecessary suffering and potentially lifelong disability or death.

With Aloha,

I strongly oppose HB1118, the revocation of religious exemptions for vaccine mandates in hawaii public schools. This move would infridnge upon the constitutional rights of parents to make informed decisions about their children's health and well-being, as well as their right to prictice their faith without government interference.

Key Concerns:

- Parental rights: By revoking religious exemptions, the state would be taking away parents' ability to make informed decisions about their keiki's health, which is a fundamental right protected by the 14th amendment.

- Religious Freedom: This move would compel parents to choose between their faith and their child's education, violating the first amendment's guaruntee of freedom of religion.

- Medical Autonomy: Vaccination decisions should be made in consultation with a healthcare provider, taking into account individual health needs and circumstances.

Consequences:

- Increased stigma: Revoking religious exemptions would unfairly stigmatize families who choose not to vaccinate for religious reasons, potentially creating a hostile environment in our public schools.

- Lack of Trust: This move would erode trust between parents and the government, leading to increased resistance to public health initiatives and decreased cooperation in promoting the well-being of our children.

Alternative Solutions:

- Education and informed Consent: Instead of revoking exemptions, the state should focus on educating parents about the risks and benefits of vaccination, ensuring that they are fully informed and able to make decisions that align with their values and healthcare priorities.

- Accommodating Individual Needs: The state should work with accomodating individual needs and circumstances, rather that imposing a one-size-fits-all approach to vaccination policies.

Protecting Our Keiki's Rights

I urge lawmakers to prioritize parental rights, religious freedoms, and medical autonomy in Hawaii public schools. We must ensure that our keiki's education in not compromised by government overreach and that families are treated with dignity and respect.

Failing to accommodate individual preferences reinforces the healthcare system’s history of paternalism and the violations of trust experienced by marginalized communities.

Instead of mandating an ever growing list of vaccine requirements on all keiki, approaches such as improving access, education and documentation might be tried before moving to mandated vaccination.

As a pediatrician, I strongly support HB 1118, which would repeal the non-medical exemption from immunization requirements. Vaccines are one of the safest, most effective, and most economical interventions to keep children healthy. It's the only reason we don't have children in iron lungs, dying from polio, profuse diarrhea, epiglottitis, encephalitis, or meningitis, which was routine 30 years ago.

Over recent years, we have observed with dismay that increasing numbers of parents are seeking non-medical vaccine exemptions for their children. As a result, Hawai'i is now below threshold for herd immunity for several devastating diseases, including measles, which is extremely contagious and can have serious complications. In addition, with the amount of travelers that comes through our islands, we'll become hub for once-dormant infections that could be devastating to local families.

Repealing the non-medical vaccine exemption would benefit all children in Hawai'i, ensuring that keiki are protected from unnecessary suffering and potentially lifelong disability or death.

AYMAN EL-SWAIFY PUBLIC TESTIMONY
HB1118 - NON-MEDICAL EXEMPTIONS TO IMMUNIZATION REQUIREMENTS

Good Afternoon, House Members. My name is Ayman El-Swaify and I am OPPOSED to House Bill 1118.

This House Bill removes religious exemptions for children attending school in Hawaii.

The measure notes that religious requests have increased two-fold in 2023.

The Bill makes it sound as if vaccines are fail-safe. They are not, and there is much evidence regarding their side effects. In addition, the vaccine schedule has increased more than 10-fold since I was a child.

However, my point is not to argue vaccine effectiveness, but rather the free exercise of our individual liberties as guaranteed by the US Constitution. This measure is dictatorial and in direct contradiction.

A draconian measure such as this will only further erode the public's trust in our government. You must vote "No".

Thank you.

Aloha,

As a director for patient experience for a healthcare company here in Hawaii, I am in full support of hb1118, and eliminating the non-medical exemptions for vaccination requirements. Vaccinations are a key component in keeping our communities safe, and I have seen firsthand the degradation of trust and increased amount of community skepticism around Health science and vaccines and it worries me. If people continue to think with their heart rather than their head, we could put ourselves in a very dangerous position, especially here in Hawaii as the hub of a major tourist destination. I don't feel that exemption should be made for people who decide to put the larger population at risk based on how they feel. As a society, we should follow the science of what keeps the majority of us all healthy and thriving. I urge you to support this measure

Aloha,

My name is Mark Ziebold and I am a licensed attorney practicing in the State of Hawai'i. I strongly oppose the passage of this bill HB1118.

HB1118 is blatantly discriminatory against people who hold sincere religious beliefs or personal conviction against vaccinating their children. As you should know, freedom of religion and equal protection under the law are constitutionally guaranteed rights and deserve the highest of protection from all elected legislators.

There is no compelling state interest in excluding a very small minority of healthy children from public school. There is no evidence that these children present a real threat to anyone; in fact if vaccines are effective then all the rest of the children should be very safe regardless of what medical treatments one child did or did not receive. For example, it is patently absurd that a child with Hepatitis B infection can attend school without fear of discrimination, but a healthy child who refused the Hepatitis B vaccination would be thrown out of school.

Furthermore, this bill would create a two tier system where children of families who can afford private school or homeschooling would continue to receive education while children of families with fewer resources would be marginalized and likely receive a substandard education. Presumably some Hawai'i legislators and Governor Green are hoping to bully those families of religious belief and lower means into violating their sincerely held beliefs and give in. To do so would certainly be unethical and immoral, but I believe is also unconstitutional.

Please reject this bill. It is unnecessary, authoritarian, discriminatory and wrong for the children of Hawai'i.

Thank you.

Aloha, I am a Public Health Nurse, currently working in the community of Honolulu as a Clinical Public Health Nursing Instructor. I work closely with our Dept. of Health. I have been, among, other things, a Vaccines For Children (VFC) Program Administrator in a large public University and was the Public Health Officer and infectious disease liasion for my county Public Health Dept. I chose to come to Hawaii in 2019 to do Public Health and work within the community. I was also on the forefront of Covid Vaccinations here in Hawaii, vaccinating and swabing our homeless. I am Pro Vaccination. I have vaccinated. I have also vaccinated children who weren't vaccinated as children, for numerous reasons, who choose vaccination when coming to college at 18. Personally, as a practicing RN, I do not feel comfortable administering forced vaccinations. This does not sit right with me. Against their Religion! Who are we and what does that make me to follow that? My role is to educate, provide a Vaccine Information Statement, which isn't online currently, discuss all health options. Do no harm. Patient autonomy is foundational to our practice. Whether I support vaccination or don't is not the issue. This is about informed consent. Period. I advocate for my clients. I am all about the stats and keeping our keiki healthy, but no, I won't vaccinate against informed consent. I will tell you the risks, I will inform you and educate you on handwashing, transmission, nutrition, exercise and a million other things if you don't consent because of your religious belief. I fundamentally do understand the importance of vaccination and reduction of disease, herd immunity.. all of it, but as an RN I don't support mandating against religious beliefs. This might have unintended consequences and prevent parents from seeking medical access or education. Who is this targeting? I fear this might target more marginalized populations. This is my testimony, mahalo nui for the consideration.

I am writing to strongly oppose HB1118, which would remove religious exemptions for school vaccinations in Hawai'i. I understand that vaccinations MAY help prevent diseases, however some vaccines has also been found to not help and in some cases cause side effects or allergies reaction . Every person reacts different to the vaccine. I believe this bill takes away important rights from parents and families.

With respects

Lucille Lecker

Aloha Chair Takayama, Vice-Chair Keohokapu-Lee Loy, and Committee Members,

As a clinical pharmacist working in a primary care clinic, I strongly support HB 1118, which would repeal the non-medical exemption from immunization requirements. Vaccines are one of the safest, most effective, and most economical interventions to keep children healthy. Over recent years, we have observed with dismay that increasing numbers of parents are seeking non-medical vaccine exemptions for their children. As a result, Hawai'i is now below threshold for herd immunity for several devastating diseases, including measles, which is extremely contagious and can have serious complications.

In recent years, some individuals have touted the idea that vaccines are not needed and cause more harm than good. We have previously been fortunate enough to have not realized the harm of lack of preventative care/lack of vaccinations. Now that the rates are decreasing and we are unable to rely on herd immunity, I feel strongly that we are putting public health at risk.

Repealing the non-medical vaccine exemption would benefit all children in Hawai'i, ensuring that keiki are protected from unnecessary suffering and potentially lifelong disability or death.

Thank you for your consideration of this importance bill.

Lily Van, PharmD, BCACP, CDCES

Aloha Representatives,

I am strongly against this bill. I believe in "my body my choice". This includes both reproductive rights and the right to not be injected with unwanted drugs.

Reagan & The 99th Congress Called Vaccines “Unavoidably Unsafe”. So Congress gave vaccine manufacturers immunity from liability, with the agreement that the government would shoulder the burden of the vaccine injuries that they knew would come.

First of all it is unconscionable to force an unavoidably unsafe product on healthy people. Also, vaccines are not what stopped epidemics in the previous centuries. Sanitation and better nutrition is what stopped them. Prior to that people were living in filth without indoor plumbing or refrigeration for meat. (Dissolving Illusions: Disease, Vaccines, and The Forgotten History – July 27, 2013 by Suzanne Humphries MD)

And second, the government has not lived up to its side of the deal. People are not getting treatment or compensation for their injuries.

Also as the pharmaceutical industry moves toward the mRNA platform these products will become even more dangerous. They are not in fact "vaccines" but genetic therapy.

Also none of them have been properly tested with double blind placebo studies. They always give the "control" group a different vaccine. This is not science.

Please reject this bill.

Sincerely

Netra Halperin

Welina legislative committee,

As both a parent and a pediatrician, I strongly support HB 1118, which would repeal non-medical exemptions from immunization requirements. Vaccines are among the safest, most effective, and most cost-efficient measures to protect children’s health. Unfortunately, we have seen a troubling rise in parents seeking non-medical exemptions, leading to a decline in vaccination rates. As a result, Hawai‘i has fallen below the herd immunity threshold for several serious diseases, including measles—an extremely contagious virus with potentially severe complications.

For more information, please see my Medscape article on measles:

Chen, Selina S.P. Measles. Medscape Drugs & Diseases. Updated 2/6/2025. Available at: <https://emedicine.medscape.com/article/966220-overview>

Repealing non-medical vaccine exemptions is a necessary step to protect all keiki in Hawai‘i, ensuring they are safeguarded from preventable illnesses, unnecessary suffering, and the risk of lifelong complications or death.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Comments:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB1118, which seeks to restrict non-medical exemptions to immunization requirements. This bill undermines informed consent, parental rights, and medical freedom, which are foundational principles of a free society.

HB1118 disregards vaccines inherent risks by attempting to eliminate the ability of individuals and parents to make personal medical decisions. Each person’s health needs and risk factors are unique, and blanket mandates fail to account for the complex and deeply personal nature of healthcare choices. By removing non-medical exemptions, this bill would coerce individuals into accepting medical interventions that may not align with their religious beliefs.

Additionally, every child has the right to attend public school without being forced to compromise their religious beliefs. The First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution guarantees the free exercise of religion, which includes making medical decisions in accordance with one's faith. Public education should be inclusive and respect the diverse beliefs of all students, rather than forcing them to choose between their faith and their education.

I urge you to oppose HB1118 and instead prioritize policies that respect medical freedom, informed consent, and individual rights. The government should not dictate medical decisions, especially because the National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program (NVICP) has paid out nearly $4.6 billion to individuals and families who have suffered vaccine-related injuries and deaths. This staggering amount, documented in the Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System (VAERS), underscores the fact that vaccines, like any medical intervention, are not without risk.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I respectfully request that you vote against HB1118.

Sincerely, Steve Yoder Kauai Resident

I oppose this bill. There are wild claims made in the bill and it lacks research and studies from creditable sources.

this is culturally invasive and un-Hawaiian. Since when I have to submit my health to bureaucrats. Education is a right and the legislators should not be forcing unscientific vaccines upon people that just want to learn. Linking a required vaccine in order to receive an education is wrong and evil with communist tendencies. Stripping people of their basic religious rights is a pure form of evil.

Comments:

I strongly oppose this bill HB1118. I strongly believe that any medical treatment must have the full consent and be the choice of a child's parents. A child is too young to have informed consent so the child's parent serves as the person who should be given the power to decide for the child until the child reaches adulthood. This bill appears to give the State of Hawaii and the Department of Health the authority to make medical decisions for all school children over the desires of Hawaii's parents.

Let me be clear that I am not anti-vaccine. I am vaccinated and my children have some vaccines. But I do not believe the State has the right to make that decision for me or my family. If schools/public schools mandate ALL vaccines my family and thousands of others would be in protest and many would be pulling their children out of public schools and into private school or homeschool. Hawaii public schools are already in a fairly bad state with lower and lower attendance and too few qualified teachers. This bill is divisive and will increase the political and economic divide in our state. Wealthy children who attend private schools will have a choice in their medical decisions while lower economic children who attend public school will have their medical choices mandated by the State of Hawaii. This is wrong and will be bad for our islands. Do not move this bill forward.

Mahalo,

Elijah Frank

Opposition to Hawaii HB1118: Protecting Religious Freedom and Parental Rights

I strongly oppose Hawaii HB1118 because it is an unconstitutional violation of religious freedom and parental rights. This bill would deny parents and students the ability to exercise their deeply held religious beliefs, which is a direct infringement on First Amendment protections.

Violation of Religious Freedom

The First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution guarantees the right to freely practice one's religion. For many families, vaccinations may conflict with their religious beliefs, and forcing compliance disregards this fundamental protection. The government should not have the power to determine which religious convictions are valid or worthy of exemption.

Parental Rights at Risk

Parents have the primary responsibility to make medical decisions for their children, not the government. HB1118 would strip parents of their right to make informed choices about their child's health based on their religious and moral convictions. A state should never override a parent's authority to protect their child from medical interventions that conflict with their faith.

Legal and Ethical Precedent

Throughout American history, courts have upheld religious exemptions in various areas, recognizing that government mandates must respect individual liberties. Removing religious exemptions for vaccinations would set a dangerous precedent where the state dictates personal medical decisions, undermining the very freedoms on which this country was founded.

Conclusion

Hawaii HB1118 is an unconstitutional overreach that disregards religious freedom and parental rights. No government should have the authority to force a medical decision on individuals who hold sincere religious objections. I urge lawmakers to reject this bill and uphold the constitutional rights of Hawaii's families.

The effectiveness of many vaccines relies on herd immunity (ie measles) so it is critically important for as many people as possible get vaccinated. This will protect those who are medically unable to be vaccinated (ie immune suppressed patients).

Comments:

I strongly oppose Bill 1118 because I believe in the fundamental right to medical freedom. Childhood illnesses play a natural role in strengthening the immune system, and removing non-medical exemptions disregards parental choice in healthcare decisions.

Additionally, some vaccines have been developed using cell lines derived from aborted fetal tissue, which raises serious ethical and religious concerns for many individuals. This alone should warrant the continuation of religious exemptions. Furthermore, certain vaccines have not undergone long-term testing to fully assess their safety. The 1986 National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act granted manufacturers immunity from liability for vaccine-related injuries, meaning they are not held accountable for potential harm.

Until vaccines are thoroughly tested and manufacturers are held responsible for any adverse effects, I cannot support a bill that forces medical procedures without the option for informed refusal. Bill 1118 strips parents and guardians of their right to make medical decisions based on their beliefs and concerns, and I urge lawmakers to reject it.

Aloha,

My name is Kaya Patterson. I am the mother of an unvaccinated child, who is thriving in every aspect of life. My daughter is four years old. I would have never thought I wouldn't vaccinate my child. Vaccines were always something I thought were helpful and good, as we're taught growing up. As I got older knowing I wanted to one day have my own children I began to do more research into vaccines. Do you know most doctors and nurses who give vaccinations cannot tell you every thing that is inside it? Have you tried to ask?

When Covid came about I was a breastfeeding mother. I thought I was doing what was best by going to get the first step of the vaccination. That same day I breastfed my daughter after receiving the first vaccination she broke out in a horrible rash. Why would something that's supposed to help you do such a thing?

I have used religious exemption for my daughter as she is now in preschool. She has never received any type of vaccination since she entered this world.

By passing a bill like this you are taking away right of education to children, you are discriminating children and families with different belief. How inhumane and un-american of you to do so.

This bill goes against our God given rights and choices for our keiki as a father and mother.

This bill goes against our religion and no law or mandate should violate our faith in order to comply with government laws.

This bill goes against medical decisions and the government knows that a vaccine is not a one size fits all type of thing. Vaccines affect everyone differently and it should be up to the individual if a vaccine is necessary for them.
