EXPENDITURE EXPLANATION

There may be additional costs for the Board of Regents to staff the task force, however, these costs are not anticipated to be material and BOR has indicated they will be absorbed within their existing operating budget.

Current law provides for the course choice program which offers academic, vocational, and technical instruction, both in person and online, by education providers, institutions of higher education, and corporations that offer vocational and technical education coursework and which have been authorized by BESE to provide such courses. School Districts and University agreements currently offer academic coursework to students determined by district and BOR policy to be eligible to participate. Course offerings are provided through cooperative agreements between individual districts and credit granting institutions which vary in terms of tuition and fee charges, where the instruction takes place (at the institution or high school), and who conducts the course (college instructor or certified high school teacher). Currently, these dual enrollment costs are supported through the MFP Supplemental Course Allocation, Education Excellence Fund, and 8g allocations, other state and federal grant programs, as well as local revenues. Students may also apply Tops Tech Early Start awards towards tuition. Finally, districts may require students to pay some or all of tuition charges for certain courses.

REVENUE EXPLANATION

There is no anticipated direct material effect on governmental revenues as a result of this measure.
