Amy L. Archer, Research Analyst

SUMMARY

- Requires the Department of Health (ODH) to create information materials on type 1 diabetes for parents, guardians, educators, and other persons having care or charge of children.
- Requires public schools, community schools, STEM schools, and private schools that serve elementary school students to provide a copy of the informational materials to each student's parent or guardian.

DETAILED ANALYSIS

Type 1 diabetes informational materials

Department of Health requirements

Under the bill, the Department of Health (ODH) must create informational materials on type 1 diabetes for parents, guardians, educators, and other persons having care or charge of children. The materials must include pertinent information to inform and educate them about type 1 diabetes in children, including the following:

- A description of type 1 diabetes;
- A description of type 1 diabetes risk factors and warning signs;
- A recommendation that the parents or guardian of a student who is displaying type 1 diabetes warning signs should immediately consult with the student's primary care provider to determine if immediate screening is appropriate;
- A description of the type 1 diabetes screening process, the significance of the three stages of type 1 diabetes, and the implications of test results identifying the presence of each stage; and
- A recommendation that, following a diagnosis of type 1 diabetes, the student's parents or guardian should consult with the student's primary care provider to develop an appropriate treatment plan, which may include consultation with and examination by a specialty care provider, including a properly qualified endocrinologist.

The ODH must make the informational materials available on its website in a format suitable for easy downloading and printing.<sup>1</sup>

School requirements

The bill requires public schools, community schools, STEM schools, and chartered nonpublic schools that serve elementary school students to provide a copy of the ODH type 1 diabetes informational materials to each student's parent or guardian upon the student's enrollment in elementary school.<sup>2</sup>
