5 college-level courses while simultaneously receiving remedial support aligned to the college-level 6 course(s); and

7 WHEREAS, Completion of a set of credit bearing courses for a program of study is a 8 critical measure of success toward post-secondary higher education completion; and

9 WHEREAS, The content in required courses should align with the program of study, 10 including, but not limited to, mathematics; and

11 WHEREAS, Enrollment in entry college-level courses should be the default placement 12 for many more students than is current practice; and

13 WHEREAS, Students who are significantly underprepared for college-level academics 14 require accelerated routes into programs of study through the use of programs, such as summer 15 intensive programs designed to remediate many areas of general education courses; and
