Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, an elector may use any of a number of identifying documents as proof of residence in order to register to vote, including a bank statement, paycheck, utility bill, property tax bill, check or other document issued by a unit of government, or current and valid operator's license or identification card issued by the Department of Transportation. Current law provides that such identifying documents must specify the elector's name and residential address. This bill adds the following to the list of identifying documents that an elector may use as proof of residence in order to register to vote:

1. A W-2 form.
 2. A medical billing statement.
 3. A service welcome letter, such as from a financial institution, utility, or credit card company.
 4. An insurance document.
 5. A report card, official school transcript, or certified school record.
